Demand That 'Wild Women' Shall No Longer Hunger-Strike Themselves to Freedom.

'LET THEM DIE,' THE CRY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 8.—The militants took advantage of the presence of the King and Queen at the International Horse Show at Olympia this afternoon to enliven the proceedings there by talking and screaming at the royal visitors. The first to be ejected fought savagely.

She had hardly disappeared when two others took up the baiting. Their shrill denunciations of forcible feeding were drowned by the angry shouts of the spectators, which were followed by applause as the disturbers were unceremoniously run out of the building.

Public opinion is so exasperated by the continued excesses of the militants, and the Cat-and-Mouse act has proved so futile as a preventive, that further and more adequate measures are regarded as imperative. Various methods of dealing with the militants, such as deportation, birching, and the attachment of their funds, are advocated, but it is felt that none of these measures would effectually stamp out their destructive mania.

Very reluctantly many people have come to the conclusion that unless the law is to become a dead letter the imprisoned suffragettes must be allowed to suffer the extreme result of their self-imposed policy of starvation. In order to ascertain public feeling on the problem The Evening Standard has gathered the views of a number of representative persons, who were asked if they agreed to the suggestion that the hunger-striking suffragists should be allowed to die.

Sir Philip Burne-Jones considers the suffragettes are now such enemies of society that if they chose to hunger strike he would let them die. "I should place plenty of food near them," he said, "and then summon to the prison their fathers, mothers, sisters, and any other relatives, and admit them to the cell. If the women still continued to refuse food, I believe a majority of people would be for letting the law take its course."

Father Bernard Vaughan says: "There is nothing ethically wrong in letting them die. Let them start at once and make up for lost time."

The Rev. A. J. Waldron, vicar of St. Matthew's, Brixton, says: "I do not believe in forcible feeding. I think if the women refuse food they should be allowed to die."

The Rev. Richard Free, Vicar of St. Clement's, Fulham, says: "I think the suggestion a very good one. I have advocated it for many months past."

Lady Cowdray, Miss Jane Harrison of Newnham College, and W. H. Dickinson, M. P., on the other hand, hold the opposite opinion.

Lillah McCarthy, the actress, has never heard of anything so horrible and ghastly. "Why not commit open murder—cut their throats and make no bones about it?" she says.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Tuesday, June 9.—The activity of the militant suffragettes was confined yesterday to disturbances at the horse show and chalking "Votes for women" all over the interior of St. Edmund's Church at Northampton.

No Cabinet Council will be held for a week. It is therefore reasonable to suppose that no fresh legislation against the militants has yet been decided upon; but Parliament reassembles today, and some information may be forthcoming as to the intentions of the Government.

The Standard asserts that it has possession of plans of the Women's Social and Political Union for burning the Hampton Court Palace, the Stratford-on-Avon Church, Kings College Chapel at Cambridge, the Bodleian Library at Oxford, and the Lichfield Cathedral.

The militants do not appear to be concerned at the threat to prosecute subscribers to their funds. One of the leading organizers said:

"For the Government to take such action would be like putting their heads into a hornet's nest; they would have to prosecute women nearer home than they think. Our subscribers are connected with members of the Government, and the wealthy women who help our war chest have influential relatives, who although neutral now, would not remain so in the face of prosecution."

Students of Trinity College, Dublin, yesterday raided the headquarters of the Irish Women's Franchise League and threw all portable property into the street.

Mary Richardson, who mutilated the Rokeby "Venus" and was sentenced to a term of imprisonment, was rearrested last night under the "Cat and Mouse" act. She was a frequent visitor at the hotel where Miss Mary Blomfield stayed prior to creating a scene at the Court at Buckingham Palace.

American Suffragette After Page.

Noisy demands for a conference with Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador, were made at the Embassy to-day by a woman giving the name of Mrs. H. Wanderhouse, who declared she was an American. She said she was among the deputation of suffragettes which was broken up while attempting to march to Buckingham Palace on May 21 to present a petition to the King, but she refused to tell anybody except the Ambassador what she wished to complain about. She threatened to continue visiting the Embassy until Mr. Page consented to see her.

HOLDS MARSHALL 2 HOURS.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, June 8.—An automobile carrying Vice President Marshall, Mrs. Marshall, and guests broke down on the Washington Boulevard last night, and for two hours the plight of the party was not pleasant. The Vice President's guests were Secretary of War and Mrs. Garrison and Attorney General McReynolds. They had motored over from the capital to see Miss Lucy Burleson, who recently underwent an operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Bad luck followed them from the time they started home. The tires of the machine were punctured three times before they had left the city limits. The automobile was proceeding slowly along the boulevard a little later when an inner tube burst. Many automobilists were stopped by an uplifted arm and the difficulty explained, but none had the tube needed until M. Braunstein of this city came along in a touring car. He had an inner tube that would fit, and while the two parties chatted the chauffeurs repaired the stalled car.

100 MEN IN LABOR RIOT.

Pickets Attack Workers Going Home from Factory Under Guard.

A hand-to-hand encounter in which 100 men participated and in which a dozen or more were injured occurred late yesterday afternoon at Sixth Avenue and Thirty-first Street, as a result of differences between rival labor unions.

The fight started when fifteen men attacked a group of employes of the L. & S. Stern cloak and suit factory at 116 West Thirty-second Street. The attacking party, according to witnesses, were members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers of the World, while those attacked belonged to the International Ladies' Garment Workers, a rival and older organization.

Seventy-five workers were going under guard from the factory yesterday afternoon, when a number of them left the guard and hurried to catch a Sixth Avenue car. They were no sooner separated from the guard, the police say, than the pickets were upon them with clubs. In a moment there was a free-for-all fight, with fists, feet, clubs, sticks, and stones in use.

Into the midst of the fray Patrolman Fitzgerald of the West Thirtieth Street Station rushed alone. He was the only policeman near and for five minutes he battled single-handed against all of the combatants within his reach. They returned blow for blow with him, and he was cut and bruised in many places.

Attracted by the uproar, Detective Grossberger, also of the West Thirtieth Street Station, joined Fitzgerald. He, too, received many bumps and drew his revolver to intimidate those around him.

The prisoners described themselves as Isaac Levine, 40 years old, a suit presser, of 55 East 103d Street, and Charles Pearlstein of 217 East Broadway, a private detective, one of the guard for the employes. The two injured men were Tobias Bookbinder of 1,330 Franklin Avenue and Samuel Mularsky of 693 East Thirteenth Street.

LINER PASSES CANAL LOCKS.

Goethals and Big Crowd See the Alliança Towed Through.

PANAMA, June 8.—The first passage through the Gatun locks by an ocean liner was carried out successfully today by the Panama Railroad steamship Alliança, a vessel of 4,000 tons.

The trip was made a test of the working of the electric towing locomotives in handling a large vessel. The operation passed off without any incident, the time required being about an hour and a half each way.

A large crowd of spectators witnessed the vessel's passage, and Gov. Goethals also was present.

COLON, June 8.—This was a notable day in the history of the Panama Canal, when the steamer Alliança, in charge of Capt. Huggins, passed through the Gatun locks to Gatun Lake and returned to her pier at Christobal.

The Alliança left her pier in the morning, reaching the lake two and a half hours later. Her arrival there was greeted with the noise of whistles and sirens of all the assembled craft. The ship was raised in the western lock 28 1-3 feet in fourteen minutes. From one and a half to two minutes were occupied in opening and shutting each gate; the rest of the time was required for the lock-filling operation.

On the return trip the passage of the locks was quicker, owing to the fact that the locks are more easily emptied than filled.

But Auto Maker Denies Aiming at Wilson's Newspaper Supporters.

DETROIT, June 8.—Henry B. Joy, President of the Packard Motor Company, today made public a letter to Marshall Cushing of New York, in which he intimates that manufacturers and business men throughout the country ought to boycott in an advertising way the newspapers which support the Administration of President Wilson. He disclaims such intent, but he makes public a private letter which he wrote in answer to a letter from Mr. Cushing, in which he says:

"If you were a business man selling goods at wholesale, or at retail, or manufactured them, would you advertise in publications which were seeking in every way to destroy business possibilities by creating conditions under which business could not thrive or exist except in a most modified degree over what would be possible by return to intelligent conditions?"

Further on the letter says:

"It certainly is his [a business man's] privilege to refrain from advertising in a publication which in his judgment is doing his business more harm by the doctrines which it advocates than he can receive in any possible way in benefit to his business by advertising therein."

Mrs. Lossaso of West Paterson Victim of Heart Disease.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., June 8.—Mrs. Maria Lossaso of 18 Vercelius Avenue, West Paterson, died of heart disease yesterday at St. Joseph's Hospital at the age of 110 years. So far as was known, Mrs. Lossaso was the oldest woman in the State.

Five years ago she was married to Anthony Lossaso of New York City, where she lived previous to coming to this city. Mr. Lossaso was married five times.

Mrs. Lossaso was born in Italy. According to friends she did not look older than sixty years.

TWO DETECTIVES BLAMED

New Witnesses Deny His Guilt—District Attorney Waives Ten Years of Sentence.

Alfred Schwitofsky's efforts, continued through five years or more, to convince persons of influence that he is a victim of police persecution, resulted yesterday in a hearing in the rooms of the New York County Lawyers' Association, 165 Broadway, before the State Board of Parole.

Samuel Untermyer and Assemblyman Mark Eisner appeared for Schwitofsky, who is serving a twenty-year sentence in Sing Sing for burglary and felonious assault.

The Board of Parole is not a court and has no power to swear or subpoena witnesses. Its function in this case is to hear witnesses who were not heard at Schwitofsky's trial three years ago, and give an opinion of the prisoner's guilt to Gov. Glynn for decision on executive action. Members of the board are Supt. of Prisons John B. Riley, ex-State Senator William Townsend of Utica, and Henry J. McCann of Albany.

Yesterday's hearing was brought about by Rabbi Jacob Goldstein, chaplain of Sing Sing and Tombs Prisons; O. F. Lewis, Secretary of the Prison Society of New York; Frank Marshall White, the writer; Mr. Untermyer, and Assemblyman Eisner. The first three were convinced by Schwitofsky of his innocence, and they interested the two lawyers.

The most effective incident in Schwitofsky's interest yesterday was the admission of Assistant District Attorney James A. Delehanty, who represented the State, that the District Attorney had become convinced by recently discovered evidence that Schwitofsky was not guilty of felonious assault, upon which charge ten years of his twenty-year sentence was based. The District Attorney was willing, Mr. Delehanty said, to recommend to the Governor that this ten-year sentence be revoked by a parole or pardon.

Story of His Life.

Schwitofsky was a witness yesterday afterooon. With tears in his eyes now and then he told the story of his life.

Schwitofsky began with the time when he was 2 years old. Today he is 37. Passing rapidly over his birth in America and return to Austria at the age of 2, he came to his arrival in America in 1899 and his falling heir to $25,400 from his grandfather's estate the next year. He told how he had lost nearly all of it in a mining investment. He had also invested money belonging to his sister, he said, but had withdrawn this as soon as the investment appeared shaky. She had lost nothing, he said.

With less than $3,000 left he married a girl from Austria in 1903. He opened a cigar store in New York, but lost most of what he had left in that venture. Then friends advised him to "play the races," and he did so disastrously. He soon found himself without a cent, he said, and harassed by creditors.

At this time, according to his story, two of his creditors told him they could get a job for him as house manager in the home of a wealthy man of Glenside, Penn., and that he could steal enough from his employer to pay his debts. He took the position, he said, simply to earn a living and with no intention of stealing. He worked for three weeks and then became ill. He was sick for a week, during which time a physician summoned by his employer treated him. At the end of his illness, his employer told him that his health would not permit his continuing his work and that he would have to pay the expenses of his illness.

It was on Thanksgiving Day, 1903, Schwitofsky said, that he was thus dismissed. During the three weeks of his employment the two men who had advised him to steal, he said, came to him as often as twice a week and repeated their advice, but he had rejected it. When he was dismissed in poor health, however, with his wife also ill, he stole jewelry worth more than $20,000 from his employer's home.

Confesses to Wife.

He came to New York, he said, and told his wife what he had done. She left her sick bed and attempted to recover the jewelry, part of which had been turned over by Schwitofsky to his two creditors, the remainder having been pawned, but she failed in her efforts. She wanted to restore the jewelry to its owner, Schwitofsky said.

Schwitofsky was caught through the treachery of a friend in whose home he was hiding, he said, and was tried and sentenced to serve five years in Philadelphia. His wife died while he was in prison, leaving him a son, who was cared for by a relative in Cincinnati until Schwitofsky's release on June 8, 1907.

After his release, Schwitofsky said, he went to get his son, and then worked at his trade of electrician in Indiana for several months and saved several hundred dollars. He returned to New York in 1907, he said, and had been in the city less than a week when his prison record in Pennsylvania became known to the police here, and he was arrested on a charge of vagrancy. At that time, he said, he had $251 in an Indiana bank and $87 in his pocket. Notwithstanding this, he was put in the "line-up" at Police Headquarters and pointed out to the masked detectives as a professional criminal.

"Arrest that man every time you see him," the chief of the detectives said, pointing to him, Schwitofsky asserted.

He was released without a trial on the vagrancy charge, but branded as a criminal. He invested his money in a restaurant and was doing well when two detectives whom he named as the ones who especially persecuted him arrested him on a charge of unlawful entry. At the time, he said, he was attempting to collect a bill at the home of the debtor who owed it. He was later acquitted of the charge on the testimony of this debtor.

While he was in prison, however, Schwitofsky said, his partner in the restaurant business sold out and left town with the proceeds of the sale, so that when he was released he found himself with only a few dollars. With this money he opened a delicatessen store in 117th Street in partnership with a woman, and, by doing odd jobs in electrical work on the side, he was able to earn a fair living.

In 1908, he said, he received a Black Hand letter demanding $200, with a threat that he would be attacked in his

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—It became known today on good authority that the Department of Justice had definitely decided that Charles S. Mellen, ex-President of the New Haven system, did not achieve immunity for himself by his recent testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission. This decision is definitely understood to apply not only to the indictment now pending against Mr. Mellen in New York because of his alleged part in the Grand Trunk transactions but also to the broader dealings of the New Haven.

Mr. Mellen's personal counsel, Mr. Crim, has served notice on the department that in regard to the pending indictment no case was left against his client. He based this largely on the ground of immunity involved in Mr. Mellen's sworn testimony under subpoenae from the commission. While this point cannot be stated as positively as what goes before, it is understood that Mr. Mellen feels that his immunity is general. His opening statement to Commissioner McChord has been taken to indicate plainly his optimism in that regard.

The Department of Justice is understood to feel that the Grand Trunk matter was entirely outside the Senate resolution of inquiry out of which the commission's investigation grew. If that contention should be sustained, it would put Mr. Mellen's testimony on that phase of his record altogether outside immunity. It would be practically in the category of volunteered testimony, though it came in the form of questions duly put by the Commissioners.

As to the general transactions of the New Haven, the department seems to take the position that Mr. Mellen's testimony, far-reaching as it was, was not wide enough to cover everything. This means that the department is considering certain things about which Mr. Mellen did not testify. Witnesses subsequent to Mr. Mellen assailed certain portions of his testimony as incorrect. This discrepancy may influence the department in its decision regarding future policies.

What subsequent witnesses particularly questioned in Mr. Mellen's testimony was his assumption of the rôle of a martyr to protect the declining years of the late J. Pierpont Morgan from the worry of an indictment. If the department should take the view that these witnesses came nearer the essential truth than Mr. Mellen, they might proceed against him in the hope of sustaining the testimony of men who denied the accuracy of Mr. Mellen's account.

Joseph W. Folk, chief counsel for the Interstate Commerce Commission, will go to New York tomorrow to inspect the work of examiners looking over the books of J. P. Morgan & Co. and personal papers of the late J. P. Morgan, relating to the New Haven financial transactions. Mr. Folk will decide whether the material gathered warrants the taking of more testimony before the commission or by deposition.

When Mr. Folk has made his report the commission will decide whether it is necessary to examine or take depositions from Directors of the New Haven and other persons who presented physicians' certificates that they were too ill to appear in person and testify.

FILLS THE RESERVE BOARD.

Washington Believes That Simmons and Farwell Have Been Selected.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—There was talk of a definite nature today that E. C. Simmons of St. Louis and J. V. Farwell of Chicago would be appointed to fill the remaining vacancies on the Federal Reserve Board, which will direct the new banking system of the country. No definite information was obtainable tonight, but the consensus was that the appointments of Mr. Simmons and Mr. Farwell might be received by the Senate at an early day.

George V. Roberts, Director of the Mint, has been mentioned for appointment. Another man whose claims have been considered recently is Cabell Bruce, a lawyer of Baltimore, but it is suggested that an appointment from Baltimore would be unlikely in view of the fact that geography must count in the selection of names, and the presence on the board of Secretary McAdoo of New York and Controller Williams of Richmond, Va., makes another appointment from the Eastern seaboard improbable.

There was a good deal of talk a few weeks ago about the chances of C. S. Hamlin, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, but although he is from Massachusetts, the Senators from that State have not been consulted as yet about the matter.

MRS. HOLMAN'S LOVE NOTES

Weeps as Missives She Wrote to Holman Are Read in Court.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 8.—Love letters written to her present husband were read to the jury today in the $50,000 conspiracy suit of Mrs. Elizabeth A. C. Holman against her divorced husband, the Rev. Cranston Brenton of Yonkers, N. Y., and Dr. Oliver C. Smith and Dr. Paul Waterman of this city, whom she accuses of locking her up in a Vermont madhouse until she signed a confession of infidelity. Mrs. Holman wept as she listened to the letters, and Brenton, who obtained the letters from Holman's divorced wife, sat quietly in the witness chair watching her.

Brenton made a general denial of Mrs. Holman's testimony. He said he thought his wife should have been placed in the Vermont institution because she was mentally abnormal and had corresponded with and loaned $1,000 to her present husband, before she had even met him. One of Mrs. Holman's secret letters to her present husband, entitled "A Note of Passion," read in part:

"I long so to be all yours at last, I am afraid to see you. Tonight you are mine, and mine alone. Dear God in heaven, to come in and find you waiting for me! I shall have thee, and possess thee."

BILL TO KEEP BRYAN OFF LECTURE STAGE

Two Years in Prison or $10,000 Fine for Cabinet Members Who Accept Pay for Speeches.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Lecturing on the Chautauqua circuit by Cabinet or other high officials of the Government would become an offense punishable by a fine of $10,000 or imprisonment for two years should Congress accept a bill introduced today by Representative Fred A. Britten of Illinois, a Republican. Pay for lectures other than actual traveling expenses during their terms of office would be forbidden. The bill also would apply to Senators and Representatives except that the delivery of lectures would be prohibited only while Congress was in session.

Mr. Britten said tonight that the bill was prepared for introduction last September. It was designed, he said, as a Congressional protest against the continued absence from Washington of Secretary Bryan, who delivered a series of lectures in various parts of the country. Mr. Britten reconsidered his decision not to present the bill when it was announced recently from Philadelphia that a lecture bureau had arranged lecture tours for the Secretary of State and several Congressmen, to begin on July 1.

"If Cabinet officers and members of Congress cannot live upon the pay provided for their positions," said Mr. Britten, "they should either demand an increase of salary or resign from the service in favor of others who would give their entire time to official duties.

"I am at a loss to understand how the Secretary of State can consistently leave his office when a state of war practically exists between this country and Mexico and the foreign policy of our Government is being laughed at by every civilized nation on earth.

"It is my firm belief that had Mr. Bryan remained in Washington during the past year when the Mexican situation was broiling, instead of lecturing for pay, the Government would still be in possession of the valued services of John Bassett Moore, whose general knowledge in dealing with foreign relations is now so sadly needed in the Department of State. Mr. Bryan's continued absence from his office made it necessary for Mr. Moore to assume responsibilities which were not satisfactory to him and which ultimately caused his resignation."

WOMAN LEADS BIG STRIKE.

PITTSBURGH, June 8.—A woman is the real director of the strike in the Westinghouse plants in East Pittsburgh. She is Miss Bridget E. Kenney of the Allegheny Congenial Industrial Union. Miss Kenney today disputed President Herr's assertion that no person had been discharged for joining the union. She says that she was discharged on Feb. 7 for attending a union meeting.

Miss Kenney was one of the organizers of the Industrial Union, and is Secretary of seven locals, two of which, Nos. 1 and 3, are now on strike.

The big powerhouse which supplies the three great plants with light, heat, water, and power will probably be forced to close, as there are not enough men at work to keep the fires going and pumps working.

In all it is estimated that 10,000 men are on strike. A report that the Westinghouse interests may notify the strikers that unless they return to work tomorrow they will be dismissed caused a stir today.

It was learned this morning that many employes of the Westinghouse companies who are at work in foreign countries installing machinery and electrical equipment have deluged the general offices with telegrams asking for information regarding the strike.

Several of these employes, it is asserted, have refused to continue work. One cable dispatch was received from South Africa which said that the sender would discontinue work until the strike was settled.

VICTORIA LUISE LISTS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 8.—A report published in Berlin and sent abroad that the Hamburg-American Line's 16,700-ton ocean-going excursion yacht Victoria Luise sank this morning in a dockyard of the Elbe, where she is undergoing repairs, and that a member of her crew was drowned, is declared at the line's office here to be exaggerated.

According to advices from Hamburg the facts are said to be as follows:

About 2:30 o'clock this morning the vessel suddenly listed violently to starboard at an angle of 45 degrees. The lurch was so sudden that the fifty members of the crew aboard were hurled from their bunks in the lower section of the ship, and owing to her slanting position were able to clamber to the upper deck only with the utmost difficulty. The man first reported drowned later turned up safe.

As soon as the vessel grounded divers were sent down to close the portholes through which the water poured into the ship, and to begin to pump out the flooded compartments. The water-laden vessel was so heavy that four powerful tugs working all day were unable to bring her upright, but reinforcements to be employed during the night will, it is hoped, accomplish the desired result. It is asserted that the position of the Victoria Luise is in no respect dangerous.

PRESS ASSAILS COLONEL

Detectives on Watch as He Arrives in Madrid Because of Hostile Newspaper Attacks.

MADRID, June 8.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt arrived at Madrid this afternoon, to attend the marriage of his son, Kermit, to Miss Belle Wyatt Willard, daughter of the American Ambassador.

The railway station was guarded by a score of detectives in civilian clothes on account of the hostility of the press. Tonight a detachment of police was quietly stationed in the gardens of the American Embassy, where the Colonel is staying.

Notwithstanding these precautions Joseph Willard, the American Ambassador, said the popular feeling was cordial. The Colonel later is likely to meet the King, who as a Catholic monarch cannot attend the wedding.

In tonight's editions the newspapers continue the attacks on Col. Roosevelt, Marina calling him an enemy of Spain, an American imperialist and would-be Emperor of Yankeeland. They all refer to his leadership of the Rough Riders.

Col. Roosevelt was met at the train by his son, Kermit; Mr. Willard, the staffs of the embassy and Consulate, the Chief of Police, and Under Secretary of State Ferraz. The Colonel passed the remainder of the day with the Willards, getting his first rest since he left Cherbourg.

Along 250 miles of the Colonel's trip today detachments of troops stationed every half mile stood at salute as the train passed. The salutes were not the Colonel's, but King Alfonso's, who had an ordinary sleeper attached to the train at San Sebastian. The King detrained at Medina and motored to the palace at La Granja.

The two breakfasted in the same public car. The King sat at one end and was served by his own attendant at he stared at the back of the head of Col. Roosevelt, who was facing the kitchen end. The Colonel rather grimly observed the servitor officially tasting the royal omelette before giving it to the King. The two did not meet, as the Colonel, being on Spanish soil, must be presented by the Ambassador, despite the fact that they already had met in London at King Edward's funeral. Col. Roosevelt did not comment on the royal presence, but passed his time in reading and talking to Oscar Straus, who assured THE TIMES correspondent that his trip had no political significance and that he was merely going to Madrid for the wedding.

Col. Roosevelt talked to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent several times on the trip from Paris. He explained that he had sent no reply to a cabled inquiry from THE NEW YORK TIMES regarding the intentions of the Progressives because, "This trip is just a spree, and I am not interested in politics now. I want to meeet the litterateurs and geographers and see the museums."

Col. Roosevelt authorized the correspondent to say: "If any political interview appears anywhere before my return to America, it is a fake."

HELD UP BY A WOMAN.

Saloon Keeper's Assailant Was Richly Dressed and Wore Gems.

Charged with holding up Albert Menjou, proprietor of the Maison Cafe Menjou, at 2,450 Broadway, in front of his home, the Stanley Apartments, 257 West Ninety-second Street, shortly before 2 o'clock this morning, a richly dressed woman, wearing several diamond rings, who said she was Mary Martin, 30 years old, of 224 West Eighty-fourth Street, was locked up in the West 100th Street station charged with attempted grand larceny.

According to Mr. Menjou, he has been accustomed to taking the day's receipts from his cafe, amounting to between four and five hundred dollars, home with him every morning. Yesterday morning, after he had closed his place, his son advised him to put the money in the safe, which hed did, and with two friends walked to Ninety-second Street and Broadway, where they separated, Mr. Menjou turning west in Ninety-second Street, in the direction of his home.

He said he had proceeded but a short distance when the woman accosted him, and when in front of his home she threw her arms around his neck. He said he felt one of her hands at his hip pocket, while the other hand was attempting to remove his gold watch and chain.

He shook himself free from her grasp and called for the police, running in the direction of Broadway. Patrolman Timmes and two other patrolmen met him and returned with him to the apartment house. No trace of the woman was found until the patrolmen entered the basement of the house. Near a coal bin they say they found the woman. She resisted arrest and was taken struggling to the station in a taxicab.

CALLS GENERAL STRIKE.

Italian Central Labor Exchange Resents Government Repression.

ROME, Italy, June 8.—The Central Labor Exchange to-day declared a general strike of workmen as a protest against what is regarded by the labor leaders as the summary action of the Government at Ancona and elsewhere in connection with yesterday's workingmen's demonstrations. Several anarchists were shot down at Ancona, four being killed.

It is regarded as probable that the strike will last only twenty-four hours.

The disturbances at Ancona continued today and the authorities are having difficulty in quelling the agitation. A body of workmen on their way to lower the flag on the City Hall to half mast came upon a Lieutenant of infantry and soundly beat him, breaking his sword and almost stripping his uniform from him.

TALKING BY WIRELESS.

Marconi Reports Improvement—One Test at 600 Miles.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 8.—As a result of recent experiments, William Marconi hopes to establish soon a wireless telephone between his office in Marconi house and his country house at Fawley, Hampshire, sixty-seven miles away.

"Already we have had conversations with Berlin," said Marconi today. "We could not hear all the words, but the test was very promising, seeing that we were talking over 600 miles. Recently we had wireless telephone communication between warships forty miles apart which was entirely satisfactory.

In fact, we could hear conversations going on in the room. 'I want a drink,' was one of the scraps we overheard."

BRITAIN TO STUDY WIRELESS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 8.—A State organization to study in the public interest the science of wireless telegraphy, ordinary telegraphy and telephony is proposed by the Postmaster General and a committee of experts whose report is issued tonight.

The committee suggests the establishment of a national research laboratory and a national committee of research to conduct theoretical investigations and experiments, and to co-ordinate and supplement the work now being done in the Government departments.

BLOWN FROM LOCOMOTIVE.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., June 8.—With his engine running at a high rate of speed west of Stamford yesterday a steam pipe in the locomotive blew out and Ernest Esterbrook, the engineer, was hurled from the cab window. He had his hand on the air brake at the time and he instinctively applied the air. The freight train stopped a short distance beyond where he lay.

BOSTON, June 8.—Edward F. Chapin of Chicago, 84 years old, who wooed Miss Mary L. Hall, 70 years old, more than half a century ago, married her at noon today. The bride is a sister of Mrs. C. H. Washburn, and a daughter of the late Rev. Nathaniel Hall. The bridegroom's three married daughters attended the wedding. There were many guests.

The Rev. Roger Sawyer Forbes, minister of the Unitarian Church at Meeting House Hill, which formerly was Dr Hall's parish, read the service. The bride was attended by a young cousin, Miss Knapp, a flower girl.

NINE FISHERMEN PERISH.

Two Vessels Are Lost in Storm and Another Is Missing.

CARAQUET, N. B., June 8.—All but three of the thirty-six fishing vessels which were caught in the storm off the north coast on Friday night had returned safely to port today. Of the three, two were lost with their crews, numbering nine men. The third schooner is missing.

The schooners which were lost hailed from this port and went down off Liscou Point. The bodies of five men were recovered.

THREE HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Brewery Truck Runs Into Taxicab in Twenty-third Street.

A man and two children were hurt slightly yesterday afternoon when the taxicab in which they were riding was run into by an automobile brewery truck. Those injured were Gabriel Cgarnecki and Annie and Iristiz Gyntruck, 3 and 5 years old, all of 29 East Twenty-ninth Street. An ambulance surgeon from Bellevue Hospital found that Cgarnecki had suffered cuts on his left ankle and that the children were suffering from shock. They declined to go to the hospital and went home.

The accident occurred at Twenty-third Street and Second Avenue. The taxicab was going north and had just turned to cross to the west when it was rammed by the brewery truck, driven by Gustave Meyerberg, which was going south. The occupants of the taxicab were thrown out and the cab was wrecked.

DIVER FINDS THE EMPRESS.

Special to The New York Times.

RIMOUSKI, Quebec, June 8.—A diver from the Canadian lighthouse tender Druid explored the accessible parts of the sunken liner Empress of Ireland today, but the work of recovering the bodies will not begin actively for a week or more. The ship was found to be lying on her side in about 120 feet of water.

W. W. Weatherspoon of the Canadian Salvage Company of Quebec and the Yankee Salvage Company of New York said today that apparatus must be brought from England before the divers could penetrate the ship.

"One of our divers went down twice," said Mr. Weatherspoon. "He located the ship, and we have buoys all laid. As soon as we get our apparatus here we will be able to go ahead."

When asked what he thought of the possibilities of recovering the bodies Mr. Weatherspoon said that would have to come from Capt. Walsh of the Canadian Pacific Railway. But Capt. Walsh absolutely refused to give out any information.

HUERTA CALLS OFF BLOCKADE; MAYO WARNED SHIPS

WORD SENT BY WIRELESS

WASHINGTON IS RELIEVED

But Hears the Antilla Incident Will Be Referred to the Niagara Conference.

WILSON ACCEPTS PEACE PLAN

HOPEFUL OF CARRANZA

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—By rescinding today the order for the blockade of Tampico to prevent the landing of arms for the rebels by the steamer Antilla, the Huerta Government dispelled the grave fears that prevailed here of a serious crisis that might end the peace negotiations summarily, and even bring on renewed conflict between the United States and Mexican forces.

Word reached the State Department before noon through Señor Riano, the Spanish Ambassador, who is caring for Gen. Huerta's interests here, that the Mexican dictator had decided to withdraw his declaration of a blockade.

It was not until several hours afterward that it became known that Gen. Huerta's gunboats had arrived off Tampico early this morning prepared to carry out the blockade order, and had been promptly told by Rear Admiral Mayo that he would not permit this.

According to the reports that reached here, no sooner had the gunboats hove to off Tampico than Admiral Mayo engaged the two commanders in a conference, and told them that the United States would not tolerate any interference with the commerce of Tampico.

That talk, without any order from Gen. Huerta, convinced the Huerta officers, for Admiral Mayo at once informed Washington that the Mexican commanders had yielded in the face of superior force.

It was not until later in the day that he and the two Huerta officers learned that the blockade itself was over and the gunboats would be ordered back to Puerto Mexico.

Orders from Foreign Minister Esteva Ruiz at Mexico City, transmited from Vera Cruz by the wireless instruments of American warships, gave the Mexican commanders at Tampico their first news of the suspension of the proposed blockade of Tampico and directed them to return to Puerto Mexico.

Admiral Badger reported that he directed Rear Admiral Mayo to offer the Commodore of the little Huerta squadron facilities for communicating with the capital. The offer was promptly accepted, and while the world was still wondering how Gen. Huerta would recall his navy from the dangerous mission on which it had been sent, the Commodore had received his orders and was on his way back down the coast.

Señor Riano had no explanation to give Mr. Bryan for Gen. Huerta's change of front. But Mr. Bryan appeared content with the bare statement of the fact. When he announced it to the press his face, which has been solemn of late, wore a broad smile.

When asked if the Spanish Ambassador had made any protest to the United States on behalf of Huerta relating to the landing of the Antilla's cargo, or if there had been any negotiations by this Government and the owners of the steamer Antilla with a view to diverting the ship from Tampico, he would not discuss the point.

Rumors to this effect were in circulation all day, but they seemed to have no basis and the Constitutionalist leaders expressed entire confidence that the Antilla would land her cargo at Tampico on Wednesday.

Question Goes to Niagara.

It was learned this afternoon on unquestioned authority that the whole question involved in the attempted blockade will be brought up at Niagara Falls. The settlement of the general Mexican question will include the alleged violation of the armistice by the United States in letting the Antilla leave New York and permitting the Sunshine to unload arms at Tampico.

Nevertheless it is felt here that it is an encouraging sign that Gen. Huerta should be willing to end a ticklish situation by withdrawing and submitting the immediate cause for friction to mediation along with other more impersonal issues.

Gen. Huerta's view is that having shown himself willing to co-operate with the mediators in the task of settling the Mexican disturbance, he is unwilling to be put in the position of jeopardizing the bigger issues by making trouble over a comparatively unimportant shipment of arms. He has learned from his representatives at Niagara Falls that negotiations with the American representatives were progressing fairly and he is determined that should those negotiations finally fail, the responsibility will not be laid at his doors.

In transferring discussion of the Antilla incident and the Tampico blockade to Niagara Falls instead of submitting it to certain defeat in a trial of strength at sea, Gen. Huerta is thought to feel that he is strengthening his position against the United States while maintaining a correct attitude in the eyes of the world.

While Gen. Huerta has undoubtedly taken pains to preserve the "correctness" of his course, his ending of the blockade is interpreted in several ways that suggest more personal advantages to him.

There have been indications of late that the United States was preparing for a resumption of close relations with the Constitutionalists in case mediation failed. Huerta had nothing to gain by that, and at the same time he may be trying to emphasize Carranza's stubbornness by showing again his willingness to listen to the suggestions of the mediators.

Some persons here see a close relation between the final response made today by the United States to the proposal of the mediators and Gen. Huerta's willingness to avert the threatened clash at Tampico. His representatives are understood to have been eager to have the United States Government commit itself one way or the other as to the mediators' proposal. According to this theory, Washington suggested that if the blockade was lifted an answer would be given, so it was done.

Still Hopeful on Carranza.

Huerta's decision to continue on a friendly footing the conversations at Niagara Falls makes the attitude of the Constitutionalists more important than ever. The Constitutionalists themselves realize this, and there were indications tonight that they expected some concession in their favor from the mediators.

President Wilson is not only hopeful that the Constitutionalists will be represented at Niagara, but also believes that despite their opposition to the discussion of Mexico's internal affairs at Niagara Falls, Gen. Carranza, when he is represented there, may find a way of making proposals of his own to the Huerta delegates which the latter might accept.

It is understood, however, that the Wilson Administration does not expect that Gen. Carranza will, even in such a contingency, make any offer that would involve a compromise on the principles underlying the revolution. It was suggested from a high official source tonight that perhaps the Huerta delegates, after the Constitutionalists were once represented, might be brought to a realization that they would gain more by accepting terms from Carranza through mediation than they could hope to obtain if mediation failed, and the Constitutionalists reached the City of Mexico.

WILSON ACCEPTS PEACE PLAN.

That and Huerta's Action Rouses New Hope at Niagara.

Special to The New York Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario, June 8.—The possible abrupt termination of the negotiations to bring peace in Mexico has been averted for the time being, at least, by the action of the Mexican Government in countermanding its order for the blockade of Tampico to prevent the steamship Antilla, which left New York last week, from landing her cargo of arms and ammunition there for the use of the Constitutionalist forces.

The situation is still serious, however, unless it be true that an agreement has been made whereby the Antilla's cargo will not be put ashore at Tampico. No information of such an arrangement has been received by the parties to the peace conference.

The announcement of the lifting of the blockade was an important development today, but it was hardly of greater significance to the peace movement than the disclosure that the United States Government had accepted in principle the plan of pacification drawn up by the American and Mexican delegates here. The American delegates today presented Washington's views on the pacification plan. These views were in writing. Some modifications in the terms were suggested, but the plan itself was virtually indorsed. None of the changes suggested was of a character likely to cause serious dispute, and it was made apparent that the Mexican and American Governments were in substantial accord as to the manner in which the pacification of Mexico should be brought about.

While details of the peace plan are necessarily withheld until there is a final agreement, it is known that a large share in the proposed provisional Government would be given to the Constitutionalists.

The plan calls for the establishment of a provisional Government, at the head of which shall be a neutral person, with a Cabinet of four persons, representing varied political interests. This Government would be brought into power in a constitutional manner when Gen. Huerta appointed as Minister of Foreign Relations the man agreed upon here for the provisional Presidency.

The new provisional President would name his own Cabinet, but men virtually selected here would be chosen by him. Constitutionalists would have a voice in the formation of this Cabinet, as at least, it is said, two of their party would be named. The new Government would be formally recognized by the United States, and would thus be able to float loans and rehabilitate Mexico's finances.

No other internal questions are included in the peace plan, as suggestions of a general character regarding agrarian and educational reforms are phrased in such a way as to constitute advice rather than dictation.

Blockade Suspension Explained

A statement given out by the Mexican delegates today showed that the order of the Huerta Government rescinding the declaration of blockade resulted from action taken by the delegates. The statement was as follows:

Shortly after the Antilla incident had begun the Mexican delegation addressed a note to the mediation plenipotentiaries, which became necessary, as the incident might have consequences which would affect the negotiations now being carried on here, and as the Mexican delegation considered it to be its duty to give to these gentlemen (the mediators) a part in everything that may have any influence whatsoever on the delicate task which they have voluntarily undertaken.

The Mexican delegation informed its Government of the step it had taken on the following day, but through one of the frequent and inexplicable delays to which cables to Mexico are now exposed, its message was retarded. Meanwhile the Mexican Government decreed the blockade of Tampico, intended only to prevent the unloading of the war material carried by the Antilla, and in no manner to interfere with cargo of any other kind or with the ships of any nation.

At the same time that the news of the blockade reached the Mexican delegation its message with regard to the note addressed to the mediating plenipotentiaries was being received in Mexico. The Mexican Government, finding that the blockade was not in accord with the proposals of the delegation and acting on the suggestion made by the same yesterday afternoon, declared it to be without effect and that the Antilla incident will be treated in the future in the manner which the Mexican delegation proposed in its note referred to above.

Two Questions Asked.

This statement did not disclose what was of primary importance in the matter, namely, the substance of the note addressed to the mediators. Late tonight, however, the Mexican delegates made public an explanatory portion of the note. This showed that the Mexican delegates suggested that in view of President Wilson's proclamation forbidding the shipment of munitions of war to either Mexican belligerent, it might be opportune for the United States Government to prevent by force the unloading of the Antilla's supplies at Tampico, "unless," as is naïvely set forth, "it is thought preferable that the Mexican gunboats detain the vessel and seize the contraband of war."

This second statement by the Mexican delegates was as follows:

To satisfy the repeated instances of the gentlemen of the press to the end that the Mexican delegation declare in what manner it laid the Antilla incident before the mediating plenipotentiaries, it now publishes an extract from its note to the same. The extract follows:

According to news published in the press, an hour after the Antilla had been cleared without difficulty by the fiscal authorities of New York, said authorities received the general order issued by the Washington Government forbidding the shipment of arms to Mexican ports. This order shows that it is the intention of said Government to show no preference for either of the combatants in Mexico, and it is natural to suppose that in the same spirit it will consider it opportune to give the necessary orders to the American naval forces to prevent the unloading of the war material in Tampico unless it is thought preferable that Mexican gunboats detain the vessel and seize the contraband of war. In this last case the American Government must not consider the act as hostile to the American nation, as the Mexican delegation places on record its Government's most earnest desire to avoid any incident which may disturb the peace negotiations.

The Mexican delegation's note closes by begging the mediating plenipotentiaries to take the case into consideration.

The Mexican delegation will esteem it a favor if the gentlemen of the press will endeavor to procure a full and literal publication of the above and of any future statements which it may issue, as a partial publication or a paraphrase are apt to obscure the meaning of the same.

The note containing these inquiries was transmitted by the mediators to the American delegates without comment or recommendation, but before word of this action by his delegates reached Huerta the order for the blockade of Tampico had been issued, and the Federal gunboats had been directed to proceed to that port. After Huerta learned of the inquiries made by his envoys he directed that the blockade order be revoked.

No answer to these inquiries has been made by the Washington Government as far as known. If an agreement has been reached whereby the munitions will not be landed from the Antilla at Tampico, the Mexican delegates will overlook the failure of the United States to answer their questions whether the shipment of munitions from an American port violated the armistice and whether under the armistice Mexican gunboats had a right to prevent the Antilla from unloading her cargo.

May Allow "De Facto Armistice."

The mediators learned from the American delegates today that President Wilson was making every effort to persuade Gen. Carranza to accept the invitation to participate in the peace conference on condition that the Constitutionalist forces cease hostilities and accept the basis of settlement agreed to by the American and Huerta delegates.

The assurances given by Justice Lamar and Mr. Lehman were emphatic, and the feeling grew during the day that in spite of the rather defiant statements that had been issued by Constitutionalist agents, a way might be found to insure Constitutionalist participation in the conference.

What the compromise proposition might be has not been made known by any of the persons here who can speak authoritatively, but the suggestion has gained currency that if there were a de facto suspension of hostilities by the Constitutionalists, although not officially declared, the mediators might be satisfied to accept private assurances from Gen. Carranza that he would not sanction any aggressive movements by his forces while the conference was in progress.

It would not do for the mediators to admit that they would accept such an arrangement, but there is a feeling in some quarters that if personal guarantees, supported, perhaps, by the United States, were given by Gen. Carranza and other rebel leaders, the mediators might consent to confer with Constitutionalist delegates. It probably would be necessary to obtain the consent of the Mexican delegates and their Government to this arrangement, but Gen. Huerta and his representatives at Niagara Falls have shown such a disposition to make the negotiations a success that no doubt is felt that the mediators would be able to induce them to accept such a proposal.

It is realized here that even if Carranza were in favor of agreeing to an armistice he might have difficulty in persuading his soldiers to accept it. One opinion held here is that Carranza fears that if he should consent to the proposal of the mediators to order his men to stop fighting his enemies in the Constitutionalist ranks might use his action as basis for a charge that he had surrendered to the United States and was afraid to continue his efforts to depose Huerta because he might become involved in a war with the American Government.

The rainy season is on in Mexico and military operations during the rest of the Summer will be attended by extreme difficulty. Knowledge of this tends to strengthen the belief that Carranza will make an effort to enter the peace conference along the line suggested.

The A B C envoys intend to publish an English translation of their latest note to Gen. Carranza, which he has thus far failed to answer. They will probably publish other correspondence with him.

Their purpose in doing this is to counteract the reports that Carranza is to be permitted to enjoy proxy participation in the Peace Conference on his own terms. At the same time reports are persistent that a Constitutionalist envoy is expected to arrive very soon.

It is evident that unless Carranza becomes a party to the negotiations they will not last much longer. The mediators, it is understood, think that discussion of the modifications in the pacification suggested by Washington can be disposed of in a short time, and there is reason to believe that they will insist politely that the conference shall end work within two weeks, barring always the possibility of the admission of Carranza delegates.

NO BLOCKADE, SAID MAYO

And the Mexican Ships Started Back to Puerto Mexico.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From a Staff Correspondent.

VERA CRUZ, June 8.—The authoritative statement was made here tonight that when the two Mexican gunboats, Zaragoza and Bravo, arrived off Tampico this morning from Puerto Mexico, the commander of the latter vessel called upon Real Admiral Mayo, who had hoisted his flag on the battleship Minnesota, lying outside of the port.

The Mexican naval officer informed Admiral Mayo that he had received orders from his Government to blockade the port. To this Admiral Mayo answered that he had orders to prevent such a blockade.

The two Mexican gunboats left Tampico this afternoon, steaming southward. It is reported that they are still being escorted by the United States cruisers Tacoma and Sacramento, which had accompanied them on their voyage up the coast.

WOULD NOT HAMPER ENVOYS.

Huerta's Foreign Secretary Explains Rescinding of Order.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 8.—The Huerta Government decided today to "suspend the effects of the blockade." at Tampico.

Señor Esteva Ruiz, Acting Secretary of Foreign Relations, used that phrase in a statement made to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent this forenoon, and added that there never had been any intention on the part of the Government to interfere with commercial shipments, but only to prevent the introduction of war materials through the port, now held by the Constitutionalists.

Señor Esteva Ruiz was seen at his house. To an inquiry in regard to the possible withdrawal of the Mexican delegates from the peace negotiations as the result of the possible landing of rebel arms at Tampico through the refusal of the United States to permit a blockade, he said:

"So far from our delegates being withdrawn from the Niagara Falls conference, I am in receipt of advices that the negotiations are in a very advanced stage, and have encountered no setback. Thus no international difficulty has arisen from the blockade.

"The Government of Mexico, having learned that its delegates and the mediators are taking some action with respect to the expedition of the steamship Antilla, which is said to have sailed from an American port with arms for the rebels, has decided, in order not to hamper such action of our delegates and the mediators, to suspend the effects of the blockade.

"The Diario Oficial will contain the War Department decree in that regard, setting forth also the grounds on which it is based."

ANTILLA'S PLAN UNCHANGED.

Ward Line Manager Says She Will Go to Tampico Unless Warned Away

Alfred G. Smith, Vice President and General Manager of the Ward Line, said last night that no message had been received by the company from the steamer Antilla except that she had passed Jupiter and was east of Sand Key when she last signaled. No message had been sent to her.

"The vessel is due to arrive in Tampico on Wednesday," said Mr. Smith, "unless the United States Government sends orders to the Captain of the Antilla not go into that port."

He added that if any change was made in the destination of the steamer he would be informed of it in due time.

HUERTA PREPARING TO GO.

Vera Cruz Newspaper Has Dispatch Saying He Will Resign.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From a Staff Correspondent.

VERA CRUZ, June 8.—Following a morning of much excitement, due to expectation of trouble at Tampico and an exciting incident when the Huerta gunboats would try to stop the steamship Antilla and the United States warships would prevent them, Vera Cruz was quiet again this afternoon, and instead of war the talk was all of peace and the probability of Huerta's early retirement.

La Opinion, the leading paper of Vera Cruz, prints this afternoon a dispatch from Mexico City stating that Huerta is ready to resign, and that the announcement of such action is expected at any time. La Opinion adds:

"This is the day set by the official organ of Huerta for the resignation of Gen. Huerta. The text of his resignation will be accompanied by a manifesto, directed to the people of Mexico, giving the position of Gen. Huerta and his reasons for renunciation."

The official organ referred to is El Imparcial of Mexico City.

Pasqual Luna y Parra, Sub-Secretary of Finance in the Huerta Cabinet, arrived at Puerto Mexico en route for Europe this morning. No explanation of his departure was to be obtained, but it is supposed that the possible collapse of the Huerta Government is the cause of his leaving.

By The Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, June 8.—Passengers arriving here by train from Mexico City seem convinced that Huerta will soon resign, "possibly before Wednesday night." A story is current in the capital that Huerta's resignation has been prepared and deposited in the British Legation.

Convinced that President Huerta may yet escape them, his opponents are circulating in the capital a handbill, calling upon the people to prevent his flight from the city. The handbill recites his alleged crimes and says that justice can be served only by his execution.

The fleet, which was to have left port this morning for five days' target practice, remained at its anchorage. This is said to have been due to the Tampico situation and the rough weather.

CARRANZA AT SALTILLO?

Unconfirmed Report of His Arrival —Villa Goes South.

EL PASO, Texas, June 8.—Gen. Carranza's special train is believed to have arrived today at Saltillo, where the Constitutionalist Commander in Chief intends to establish his Government and reply to the Niagara Falls mediators. But this is not definitely known, because the telegraph has been crippled by heavy rains.

It was reported here that Gen. Villa left Chihuahua to-day to begin the campaign toward the south. He stopped at Santa Rosalia, where it was said he would remain several days.

CHIHUAHUA, June 7.—In mobilizing the divisions of the North for the campaign on Zacatecas, it is expected that within a week most of Gen. Villa's troops will have left Torreon, although nearly 27,000 men must be transported.

So far only a small part of the Constitutionalist Army has been moved from Torreon to the vicinity of Zacatecas. About 20 guns and 500 men were asked for by Gen. Natera, who is in command of the troops investing Zacatecas. It is understood that the Federals defending Zacatecas number at least 4,000, but no determined resistance by Huerta troops is expected by the Constitutionalist leaders. It may be necessary, they say, to make an assault on the city proper.

Information has been received here that the railroad between Saltillo and San Luis Potosi has been destroyed by the Federals and that it will take six months of the hardest work to put it in shape for operation. The rails have been bent and twisted and the ties have been burned. Every bridge has been destroyed, as well as all water tanks and pumping stations. Much rolling stock has been demolished and cuts on the road are filled with the débris of trains.

The line from Zacatecas to Torreon, however, has been rebuilt by the Constitutionalists, and while they will not be able to use the Saltillo-San Luis Potosi Road, they at least have the satisfaction of knowing that it was ruined so utterly that the Federals will not be able to use it in a possible flank movement.

Gen. Villa will push the campaign on Zacatecas and points further south with all vigor, his supply arrangements being the most thorough he ever has made.

Carranza has not yet given his final answer as to whether he is willing to send delegates to the conference. Members of the Constitutionalists in Washington were in communication with him tonight over a special telegraph wire to Saltillo, but failed to receive final instructions for a response to the note of last week from the A B C envoys. His final answer is expected to reach Señor Zubaran tomorrow.

From three sources, close to the Constitutionalists, the statement was obtained today that it was more than likely that the Constitutionalists would send delegates to Niagara, and that Gen. Carranza and Señor Zubaran had almost reached an understanding on this point. From a fourth Constitutionalist source the statement was made tonight that Carranza had not settled the matter.

On one point the Constitutionalists here are agreed. That is that Carranza will agree to no armistice. He is also opposed to binding himself to allow the internal problems of Mexico to be discussed.

JAPANESE ENVOY MISSING.

No Word Yet from Diplomat Held Up at Sayula.

LONDON, Tuesday, June 9.—Luigi Barzini, in a dispatch from Mexico City to The Daily Telegraph, says that news reached there three days ago that the Japanese Minister to Mexico and an attaché had fallen into the hands of the revolutionaries. He says:

"It seems that the Minister and an attaché were on their way back from Manzanillo, where, according to the version of the incident given out by the Japanese Legation, they had gone for the sole purpose of visiting the Japanese cruiser Izumo. They left Manzanillo the latter part of May, and on June 1 they are said to have telegraphed the legation from Colima. From that point the Minister and attaché are understood to have left for Guadalajara. It appears certain that they did leave Colima, but it seems that in the neighborhood of Sayaula, a place of about 4,000 inhabitants, and about twenty miles further on, they found the railway lines torn up and communication interrupted in every direction. Apparently the Minister, after considerable difficulty, was able to send a note to the commander of the Izumo at Manzanillo by a messenger, informing him briefly what had happened and asking him to convey the news to the Japanese Legation in Mexico City. The commander's dispatch arrived on June 4 by way of San Francisco. From that time nothing further has been heard of the Minister, and the legation officials have been unable to get into touch with him.

"Messages from the Sayula district state that the people there have risen in revolt and joined the rebels, so that the Minister must be, presumably, in the thick of the revolutionary movement. It is hoped that the Minister is safe, but it is doubtful enough whether he can be at liberty. The Mexican Government has made every effort to find out where the Minister actually is. Troops have been sent from Guadalajara, reinforced by a flying column from the capital. It seems clear that these Government forces are meeting with resistance, for if their progress was unimpeded it is almost certain that some definite information would have been received before now.

"The Japanese Government was at once informed of the incident, but no reply, I understand, has yet been received to the cable message sent to Tokio. I have been given to understand also that strong pressure has been brought to bear upon the rebels from Washington, with the object of securing the Minister's release. Officials at the Japanese Legation naturally are in a state of greatest anxiety."

CANNOT FIND AMERICANS.

Doster and McKinney Still Missing, and No Trace of Them.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The Brazilian Minister in Mexico City has notified the State Department that he has been unable to find any trace of E. D. Doster, a newspaper man, and Patrick McKinney, another American, who were arrested there several weeks ago and released an hour later. He reported that Max Blum and George Duval were released from custody in Mexico City Saturday afternoon. They were held as spies.

The Minister also notified the department that an agreement has been reached between the Huerta authorities and the Pierce Oil Corporation in regard to restoration of the plant and products seized by the Government.

MAZATLAN IS STARVING.

Two Hundred Women Beg Federal Governor to Surrender City.

ON BOARD U. S. S. CALIFORNIA, Mazatlan, June 7, (by Wireless to San Diego, Cal., June 8.)—Two hundred starving women trailed in a straggling procession behind the carriage of the military Governor of Mazatlan today, imploring him to surrender the city to the investing rebels. The Federal garrison are not much better off for food than the non-combatants, whom they are supposed to be protecting.

The Captain of the port and his assistants were thrown into jail today by the Federal Governor for permitting the capture this afternoon of a Government tug by the Constitutionalists.

Three days' fighting at Santiago, Lower California, between the Federal and Constitutionalist forces was reported today to Rear Admiral Doyle. The result was indecisive.

At San Anita, Lower California, American property owners complained that they had been robbed by Federal soldiers. The Mexican cruiser Guerrero and the American cruiser Raleigh are headed up the Gulf of California.

NEW TAX RULING ON LIEN INTEREST

REAL ESTATE DEALS CITED

Treasury Clarifies Point in Law That Puzzled Many—Some Debt Interest Not Deductible.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The Treasury Department issued an important ruling today clarifying a proviso in the income tax law relating to the deduction from taxable corporate incomes of interest paid on indebtedness wholly secured by collateral. The ruling quotes the language of the statute to the effect that to warrant this deduction the security must be "the subject of sale in the ordinary business of such corporation," &c. Under this ruling real estate and other tangible property would meet specifications only in case the corporation or association offering it as security regularly dealt in that kind of property.

The ruling is addressed to Collectors of Internal Revenue by W. H. Osborn, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and reads:

This office is in receipt of numerous letters asking a ruling of this office as to the application of the following proviso quoted from sub-division (B) of sub-section G of Section 2, Act of Congress, approved Oct. 3, 1913, to wit:

Provided, That in the case of indebtedness wholly secured by collateral the subject of sale in the ordinary business of such corporation, joint stock company, or association, the total interest secured and paid by such company, corporation, or association within the year on any such indebtedness, may be deducted as a part of its expense of doing business.

Many of these inquiries come from corporations engaged in buying and selling real estate, which real estate is pledged for the payment of indebtedness, and the question submitted is whether or not such real estate is "collateral" within the meaning of the proviso quoted, and whether or not corporations paying interest on indebtedness wholly secured by such collateral may deduct from gross income as "an expense of doing business" the amount of interest paid on such indebtedness.

Relative to this, you are informed that "collateral," as used in the proviso, comprehends and includes real estate or any form of physical or tangible property bound for the performance of certain covenants, the payment of certain obligations, and if such real estate or other physical or tangible property is the "subject of sale in the ordinary business of the corporation" owning the same, that is, if such corporation is, as a matter of its ordinary business, engaged in buying and selling, or dealing in such property, the interest actually paid within the year on indebtedness wholly secured by such collateral (a mortgage on such property) may be allowably deducted from gross income under Item 4 (a) of the return form as an expense of doing business, without regard to the limit of deductible interest as set out in Sub-Division "Third," Paragraph (b), Sub-Section G of the Federal income tax law hereinbefore cited.

This construction of the proviso quoted is not intended to and does not authorize the deduction as an "expense of doing business" of any interest paid or indebtedness secured by property, real or personal, which is not the "subject of sale in the ordinary business of the corporation," but which is held by it for the purpose of, or as an instrument in carrying on, its ordinary business—such as the rights of way and other property of public utility companies, permanent office buildings and property of like character held or occupied for their own particular use or purpose in the furtherance of the objects of the corporation, but which property is not the subject of sale in their ordinary business, and which is simply occupied or used as an instrument or means of, or essential to, the carrying on of the ordinary business for the transaction of which they are organized. The fact that such property may be subject to sale under extraordinary or peculiar conditions does not qualify, but rather disqualifies it as "collateral" such as is contemplated by this provision of the act cited.

The only corporations, joint stock companies, or associations which will be allowed under this proviso, as herein interpreted, to deduct as an "expense of doing business" interest paid on indebtedness wholly secured by mortgage on real estate, or other physical or tangible property, are those corporations, joint stock companies, or associations which are organized and operated for the exclusive purpose of buying, selling, and dealing in the particular kind of property upon which the mortgage is given, and the particular property pledged for the debt upon which the interest is paid must be the "subject of sale in the ordinary business of the corporation."

Any corporation whose indebtedness is secured by a trust mortgage, or by any form of indenture which covers and includes in the lien any property which is not the subject of sale in the ordinary business of such corporation, will be and is excluded from the benefit of this proviso, as hereinbefore construed, and its interest deduction will be limited to the amount authorized in sub-division "third" above referred to—that is, the interest actually paid within the year, at the contract rate, on an amount of bonded or other indebtedness at no time within the year in excess of a sum ascertained by adding to the paid-up capital stock outstanding at the close of the year one-half of the total amount of the interest-bearing indebtedness also then outstanding.

Corporations which, under this ruling, are entitled to deduct as "an expense of doing business" the total amount of interest paid within the year on "indebtedness wholly secured by collateral the subject of sale in the ordinary business of such corporations," are required to state separately in their returns the amount of indebtedness upon which such interest is paid, segregating it from the indebtedness not so secured, and upon which the interest paid is taken credit for or deducted under item 6 (a) of the return form. The interest-bearing indebtedness stated under item 2 of the return form as one of the bases for determining the amount of interest which may be allowably deducted under item 6 (a) must not include any "indebtedness wholly secured by collateral the subject of sale in the ordinary business of the corporation." Failure to segregate the two forms of indebtedness will render the interest deduction under item 6 (a) subject to suspension and disallowance.

EVERIT SUES YOUNG NIXON.

$25,000 Damages Asked of Shipbuilder's Son for Assault.

Stanhope Wood Nixon, son of Lewis Nixon of 22 East Fifty-third Street, the shipbuilder, now Consulting Engineer and Commissioner of Public Works of the Borough of Richmond, appeared before Judge Hand yesterday in the Federal District Court and gave a bond for $10,000 in a civil suit brought against him for $25,000 damages by Edward H. Everit, chief engineer of the Southern New England Telephone Company.

Young Nixon, in police court at New Haven, on May 5 last, when charged with attacking and beating Everit, was fined $200 for a breach of the peace.

The defendant was a junior in the Scientific School at Yale and a member of the Society Berzelius. On Oct. 21 last he was one of a party of students who attended the performance of Gertrude Hoffmann at the Hyperion Theatre, New Haven. The appreciation of her talents took the form of a student riot through the town. Three students serenaded the actress at the Hotel Taft and others threw iron bolts through the windows of houses.

According to William H. Button of 2 Rector Street, counsel for Mr. Everit, the latter had been to New York that evening and went home on the train arriving about 2 o'clock in the morning. As he was going to his residence in St. Ronan Terrace and was passing the residence of President Hadley of Yale, in Whitney Avenue, he met three students, of whom young Nixon was one. They asked him to give them a match, and he refused. Then, it is alleged, Nixon followed the engineer for some distance, sprang over a stone wall, and began to belabor Mr. Everit. Everit was carried to the New Haven Hospital, and was found there to be so seriously injured that he hung between life and death until April.

Capt. Donnelly of the New Haven police has made an affidavit in connection with the case. In this he says that Nixon made several admissions to him concerning it. The young man said that when Mr. Everit refused to give the match, the students were so annoyed that they knocked his hat off.

This made Mr. Everit angry, and, dropping his suit case and umbrella, he chased the students down the street. According to the Police Captain, young Nixon said:

"I thought he was haughty about it, and I got vexed at him, and followed him along Whitney Avenue until we came to the place where I assaulted him. I hit him three times and knocked him down, and when I heard him yelling for help I stopped running and thought I would go back, but finally thought I had better not, as I would be apt to get into trouble."

INSPECT THE AQUITANIA.

Mayor Among Those Who Lunch on New Cunard Liner.

At the invitation of Charles P. Sumner, General Agent of the Cunard Line in this country, seven hundred city officials, railroad managers, steamship agents, merchants and newspaper men visited the new liner Aquitania yesterday at her pier at West Thirteenth Street. After the ship had been inspected luncheon was served in the restaurant under the direction of Ernest Fahrenheim, the victualing superintendent of the line, and Chief Steward William A. Allison.

Among the guests at the head table with Mr. Sumner were Mayor Mitchel, Controller Prendergast, Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith, Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson, Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation; William H. Truesdale, Col. William M. Black, Col. S. W. Roessler and Brig. Gen. R. K. Evans, U. S. A., in command of the Department of the East.

After the health of the President of the United States and King George had been drunk Mayor Mitchel made an address, in which he said that if his plans went through the city would provide ample harbor facilities for the biggest ships in the world.

Dock Commissioner Smith told of the work that had been begun in pulling down the old piers at the lower end of the river to build new ones one thousand feet long and he praised the skill with which Capt. W. T. Turner warped the Aquitania into her berth on Friday. Speeches were made also by Controller Prendergast, Gen. Howard Carroll, Col. William M. Black, President of the New York Harbor Board of U. S. Army Engineers, and others.

Dr. James Pointon, senior surgeon of the Cunard fleet, said yesterday that he had made the first voyage in the Lucania, Carmania and Lusitania, and now in the Aquitania.

store if he did not pay. "I went to the East 104th Street Station with the letter," Schwitofsky said, "and they told me there to go to Police Headquarters. I couldn't go there, though, because that's where the men were who persecuted me. So I bought a revolver to protect myself, and at the same time I got some pliers and other tools for my electrical work."

Through the efforts of a stool pigeon, Schwitofsky said, he was arrested while on his way home with the revolver and the tools by the same two detectives who had arrested him before. At the time of his arrest the newspapers printed long articles in which Schwitofsky was described by the police as the head of a gang of burglars that had been robbing many homes on the upper west side. Tools, memorandum books and other evidence were told of in the newspaper stories. No such evidence was produced in Schwitofsky's trial

In their attempts to connect him with some particular burglary, the witness said, the detectives, after many failures, succeeded in coercing some one to identify him. Schwitofsky was tried on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon and sentenced to serve six months on Blackwell's Island. His son had died while he was awaiting trial and he had attempted suicide in the Tombs by cutting the arteries in his neck and left wrist.

Schwitofsky served three weeks on Blackwell's Island and was then sent to Matteawan and kept for two years in the asylum for the criminal insane. Upon his release in 1910 he was arrested on the old 1908 burglary charge, and, he said, upon the promise of Judge Swann that he would get a suspended sentence, he pleaded guilty. He knew by this time, he said, that the police could convict him on perjured testimony when they wanted to.

Once more free, Schwitofsky went to work. He was often stopped on the street by his two enemies of the detective force and threatened with arrest. He lost at least one position, he said, because the policemen told his employer of his record. At last, he said, he obtained a position with the Silverman Detective Agency and learned while in this employment that the two detectives he had cause to hate were accepting $5 a day from the agency while assigned to duty in connection with a cloak and suit strike. He threatened to expose the men, he said, and did write a letter to the late Mayor Gaynor. The detectives told him, he said, to leave the city or they would "send him up" for life. This was late in 1910.

On Jan. 19, 1911, one Theodore B. Dale accused an unknown man of burglary and felonious assault in his home, at 71 West Forty-fifth Street, and on Feb. 1 Schwitofsky was arrested and charged with the crimes. He told yesterday of how three lawyers had been assigned to his case who had practically ignored him, of how he had been identified by persons under duress, of how he had not been able on account of his lack of means to produce a single witness in his defense, of how he had not been allowed to explain many things that counted against him at his trial, of how important witnesses had been ignored, and, finally, of how he had been convicted on both charges and sentenced by the late Judge O'Sullivan to twenty years in prison. The two detectives thus made good their threat, he said.

Schwitofsky went into many details. He testified for two hours, and was accurate in names and dates. Several times when Mr. Untermyer, who conducted the examination, was inaccurate in references he was promptly corrected by Schwitofsky.

The offense with which Schwitofsky was charged in 1911 grew out of the attempts of one Leo Gelsky to collect a note for $100 from Dale, who was a ladies' tailor. Dale had given Gelsky the note in reparation for personal injury inflicted. After several futile attempts to collect the note, Gelsky sent a friend to Dale's house to collect the note while he waited outside. This was on the morning of Jan. 19. The man soon came running out of the house with a revolver in his hand, followed by Dale, crying "Stop thief!" He had attempted to force the money from Dale with the weapon. The man was stopped first by Frank Harold, a taxi starter in front of the Hotel Webster at 40 West Forty-fifth Street, and again by Simon Genzburg, a tailor at 68 West Forty-fifth Street. Both released him when he told them of the character of Dale, who was notorious throughout the Tenderloin. This man was Schwitofsky, according to the evidence upon which he was convicted and sentenced to serve twenty years.

Yesterday, however, Gelsky, Gensburg, and John J. Duffy, a truckman, who saw the fugitive pursued by Dale, testified that Schwitofsky was not the man in question. None of them was called to testify at Schwitofsky's trial. Gelsky refused to give the name of his friend yesterday, saying that he would not "squeal." Gelsky has served three terms in reformatories and met the friend in his lawless days. He now has honest employment and has mended his ways, he said.

It was brought out yesterday by Schwitofsky's lawyers that Dale was arrested in 1912 while masquerading in women's clothes, and that he had committed suicide the day he was to have been tried. Bernard H. Sandler, Dale's former lawyer, and William Henderson, a nurse, who knew him for seventeen years, both testified that from remarks Dale had made to them they held the opinion that his suicide had been prompted by fear of punishment for the perjured testimony he had given against Schwitofsky.

A point that counted much in Schwitofsky's favor was the testimony of witnesses and the statements of his counsel tending to show that he had sought honest employment whenever he was out of prison. Assemblyman Elsner said that every time Schwitofsky had been released from prison he had gone to work within forty-eight hours and that every time he was arrested in New York he was taken from legitimate employment.

The various witnesses yesterday went into many details in attempting to corroborate Schwitofsky's story. Particular stress was laid upon the inadequacy of proof of guilt a Schwitofsky's trial, upon the efforts of the police to obtain perjured testimony against him, and upon the weakness of the evidence which convinced the jury of Schwitofsky's guilt. But evidence unearthed since the trial played the most important part of all.

The hearing will be continued at 10 o'clock this morning in the rooms of the New York County Lawyers' Association.

ASKS CHURCH TO AID $100,000 POLICE FUND

TELLS STORY OF HEROISM

Would Have Men in Blue Feel That the People Are Back of Them in Good Work.

In an address which he delivered yesterday afternoon at a meeting in the trial room at Police Headquarters, attended by more than 100 clergymen and other representatives of the churches, Police Commissioner Arthur Woods told why he had called upon the churches to co-operate in making a success of the athletic carnival to be held at Brighton Beach race track on June 26 and 27 for the benefit of the honor roll police fund.

Mr. Woods said it was the aim of members of the Police Department to raise $100,000 for the fund. He asked the co-operation of the churches, he said, because he wanted to show the policemen that the great majority of citizens believed in them and were willing to do all in their power to aid them. He also pointed out that to permit the policemen to go about selling the tickets would open up a new field for criticism. By many the old cry of graft would be raised. Then he added:

"I believe that the city can feel with a good deal of confidence that the Police Department is going to be a mighty uncomfortable place for grafters from now on, and is going to be uncomfortable not for what I am going to do, but for what the men on the force are going to do. And we want you to stand back of us and make this fund a definite expression of what the city thinks of the good work of the force, so that the force will get its mind on doing good police work and will get away from some of the unfortunate traditions which have been carried down."

The Commissioner's words were received with much enthusiasm by the clergymen, and it is probable that announcement will be made of the sale of tickets from the pulpits of many of the city's church. Among those at the meeting were:

John Nicholson, Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church; Father Sullivan, representing Mgr. M. J. Lavalle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral; a representative from the Church of the Holy Apostles, the Very Rev. J. W. Moore, C. M., President of St. John's College, Brooklyn; E. W. Wade of Holy Trinity, Brooklyn; Robert F. Y. Pierce, the Rev. Andrew Murphy, C. M.; S. D. Smith, Hope Baptist Church; R. Bayard Cutting of St. George's Church, the Rev. Edward B. Smith, Chaplain of Governors Island, and Thomas J. Fitzgerald, St. Gabriel's Church.

Commissioner Woods explained that the fund was being raised so that the widows of policemen killed in the performance of duty, or others dependent upon them, might receive immediate aid. The policemen, he said, had contributed generously in times past, but for them to continue to do so was a great drain on small salaries. It was hoped, he said, to create a fund large enough so that the benefits could be paid out of the income.

Several persons, he said, had promised to buy boxes for $500 each, and there had been a generous response as soon as the idea of holding the carnival was made known. Members of the police force, he said, were prepared to buy from $25,000 to $30,000 worth of tickets. Application for boxes, he said, should be made to Chief Inspector Schmittberger or to himself. The other tickets, selling from $1.50 to $5, would be placed on sale throughout the city.

If the policemen were to go out and sell the tickets themselves, he said, he believed that $200,000 worth could be disposed of without trouble. Such methods, however, were not to be tolerated in the department.

"We are not willing," he said, "to give a possible peg on which could be hung a suspicion of anything improper.

"We want to make the policeman realize that the town is with him and back of him if he tries to do right, even more strongly than it will proceed against him if he does wrong. We want to make the man on the street feel that when the call of danger comes, if he meets it, as he always does, this big city of ours is big and human and sympathetic enough to do its share toward making a little more easy the life of those he leaves behind him. It is a pretty tough thing for a man to go into certain danger."

Then Commissioner Woods said he wanted to tell of the heroism shown by some of the men.

"I was speaking at a dinner of Police Lieutenants," he said, "and, as I was about to go to another dinner, when I had left, a Lieutenant came to me with a serious look on his face, and said that Detective Palevenica, a young Italian detective, had been shot and had been taken to Flower Hospital seriously injured, they thought mortally injured.

"I went to the Flower Hospital, and he was there and had been shot through the body. The doctors had made a superficial examination and found that the bullet had pierced the body and passed through the upper part of the liver and the lower part of the lung. It was a very serious outlook for the young detective.

"I found that he had been shot by a desperate colored man and that the man had not been apprehended. I sent word to the Detective Bureau to start out and get that man. That was perhaps 10 o'clock. Between 1 and 2 o'clock the next morning many men were out searching the neighborhood; searching the house from top to bottom.

"They went down into a black cellar in the bottom of a tenement house—four detectives. As they went down they could not see anything. They called out to the man, if he was in there, to come out and give himself up. They were answered with a shot and they fired back, and again he fired. All in the darkness.

"A detective named Birmingham, who was in the lead, was shot in the sleeve, but it did not cut his skin. The detectives went into the dark cellar, reaching out ahead of them with their hands, feeling around for the man who had just assassinated a brother policeman, went in there until Birmingham caught him by the throat and knocked him down with his other hand. That is the kind of work that they do whenever they are called upon."

No Hope Outside of Republican Party, California Congressman Says.

CONDEMNS FOREIGN POLICY

Congressman Julius Kahn of California was the principal speaker last night at a special meeting of the Kings County Republican Committee held in the Johnston Building, in Nevins Street, Brooklyn. The meeting was called for the purpose of amending the by-laws of the committee so as to bring them into conformity with the primary election law. A resolution introduced by Congressman Calder put the meeting on record as wishing to "denounce in unmeasured terms" the "malign influence" of the Underwood tariff, and called on the people of Kings, regardless of politics, to join the Republicans in electing Republican Representatives and Senators at the next election.

Congressman Kahn told the Republican leaders that the Wilson administration certainly had treated New York State as if it really was what William Jennings Bryan in his three campaigns for the Presidency termed it—"the enemy's country." In support of this assertion he pointed to the treatment this State had received from President Wilson in the mapping out of reserve districts and appointments made on the Reserve Board.

"Business is dull all over the country," said Mr. Kahn. "The administration leaders may try to explain this depression as they may, the fact remains that it is here and the people will look to the Republican party to bring back prosperity.

"The legislation that the Democrats have placed upon the statute books is not producing the revenues that they had hoped for. There is a strong likelihood that there will be an enormous deficit in the Treasury by the end of the fiscal year, and even bond issues are hinted at. It all shows that theories may sound very plausible, but, after all, it requires experienced, practical men to run the ship of state.

"The foreign policy of this Administration has been a spectacle for gods and men. It has made us the laughing stock of the world. Our Mexican policy will prove a most expensive luxury. The failure to recognize Huerta has already resulted in the loss of lives of American soldiers and marines, and has cost us millions of dollars, and thus far has resulted in nothing but our humiliation. Even our effort to prevent the landing of arms and ammunition shipped to Huerta and consigned to Vera Cruz proved to be of no value to our Government. The very arms and ammunition that were stopped at Vera Cruz were subsequently landed at Puerto Mexico, and are now in the possession of Huerta.

"In the meantime the Administration has been giving its support to the so-called Constitutionalists. We know their history. They are bandits, cutthroats, and looters, and before we get through with this miserable business in Mexico they will probably be using the arms and ammunition which they received as the result of the abrogation of the embargo against the shipment of arms into Mexico against American soldiers and sailors."

M. RIBOT AGREES TO FORM A CABINET

Doubt in French Political Circles That It Will Last, Even if He Succeeds.

POINCARE'S FALL SOUGHT

Political War Rapidly Bringing a Financial and Business Crisis Upon the Country.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 8.—Although Senator Alexandre Ribot tonight formaly accepted President Poincaré's invitation to form a Ministry, having obtained the acceptance by Léon Bourgeois of the Foreign Porfolio and by Théophile Delcassé and Jean Dupuy of the Portfolios of Marine and Public Works, respectively, political circles are incredulous that he can succeed where Viviani Deschanel and Delcassé were forced to admit the impossibility of the task set thm.

The rocks on which the combinations hitherto have split apparently are the three years' service law and the financial questions; but the conviction is rapidly spreading that the real reason for the crisis is the determination of the Republican machine to eliminate politically President Poincaré, if not actually to force his resignation. The leaders of the official Republican Party have never forgiven his refusal at the Presidential election to withdraw in favor of Senator Pams, the machine candidate, and, despite his popularity throughout France, which they are constantly trying to undermine by attacking Mme. Poincaré's reputation, they have never ceased their tactics of obstruction, seemingly being prepared even to wreck the ship of state sooner than allow him to steer it successfully.

Thus, one Minister after another has professed his inability to agree about the three years' law or the financial proposals, which questions, it is argued, are only a 'convenient pretext for successive failures, designed to compel President Poincaré to admit defeat by appealing to his bitterest political enemy, M. Clémenceau, leader of the Radicals and formerly Premier, as chief of the Republican bloc. M. Ribot has admitted his intention to consult M. Clémenceau. If the former fails the latter's return to power seems inevitable.

Even supposing that M. Ribot is able to complete his Cabinet, his difficulty of obtaining a majority in the Chamber remains as great, since most of the powerful section of the united Radical-Socialists—whose nickname, "Radicaillaux," indicates that M. Caillaux, despite his apparent withdrawal, is still their real leader—generally favor a return to two years' service.

Although M. Clemenceau opposes the repeal of the present law, it seems likely that a majority of the Deputies would be willing to vote it, especially as the representatives of Southern France are comparatively untouched by the iron of German invasion.

The recent statement of M. Paléologue, French Ambassador at St. Petersburg, that Russia considers the maintenance of three years' service essential may convince waverers and enable M. Ribot to obtain the pledges of support needed, but there remain the financial difficulties, particularly the question of the forthcoming big loan, which wrecked M. Barthou's Ministry in the Winter and now seemingly is further from a settlement than ever.

The budget due last Dec. 31 is still unvoted, the necessary funds being obtained by the hand-to-mouth expedient of voting temporary appropriations monthly. Meanwhile, the Bourse is utterly stagnant, business is rapidly nearing a standstill, and everywhere there are rumors of imminent failures. The banks are gorged with paper which the public refuses to take up, the thrifty Frenchmen, true to tradition, preferring to hoard their cash rather than to intrust it to banks or investments.

Belgian Financier on Trial in Bogus Stock Case.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, June 8.—A gigantic affair of alleged forgery came before the Correctional Court today. The principal figure in the case is the financier, Nestor Wilmart, formerly a well-known race horse owned and sportsman, who was managing Director of the Ghent-Terneuzen Railway Company and who is accused of having manufactured and issued $3,400,000 of false stock and to have devoted the money so raised to financing a theatrical enterprise, horses, racing, and reckless personal expenditure. Wilmart was arrested in France in March.

Last year, according to the prosecution, no fewer than twelve spurious issues were made, and the corridors of the Brussels Criminal Court today were filed with solid piles of forged scrip. The financier confesses to having made the forged issues, but says he did so to meet losses suffered by the Ghent-Terneuzen Railway on an issue of stock regularly made, and that he hoped thus to tide over an evil moment and repay all banks in full.

LONDON LIKES SAM BERNARD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 8.—The joint production of "The Belle of Bond Street," by the Shuberts and George Edwardes at the Adelphi Theatre tonight, is likely to be a success, although the play itself receives unfavorable treatment at the hands of the critics.

For the acting of the American principals, however, there is nothing but praise. Sam Bernard, after an absence from the English stage of twenty-nine years, appeared as Hoggenheimer, and had a big personal triumph, as did Ina Claire in the leading feminine rôle. Whatever measure of popularity the play achieves will be mainly due to their excellent performance.

Mr. Bernard's quaint speech and antics kept the audience laughing throughout, and at the final curtain he had to make a speech, in which he said that it was the happiest moment of his life. Other American players receiving much praise are Ruby Norton and Sammy Lee.

Many Americans were among the audience, including Ethel Levey, Fanny Ward, Marie Cahill, and Mabel Taliaferro.

GERMAN DEMAND ON BRAZIL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 8.—The Frankfurter Zeitung, the well-known financial organ, states that the only condition under which the Deutsche Bank and Disconto Gesellschaft of Berlin could participate in the $100,000,000 loan to Brazil would be "adequate control of the country's finances." This, adds the journal, easily could be done by the hypothecation of the Brazilian customs revenue. A plan of this kind is said to be already under discussion by the syndicate which is being formed to make the loan.

The Zeitung adds that foreign capitalists who will furnish the money should not be intimidated by protests against the proposed arrangement now being raised in Brazil.

Gibbons Preaches in Switzerland.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, June 8.—Cardinal Gibbons, before a congregation of 1,000 in the Montreux Church, that seats only 800, delivered his first sermon in Europe, lasting twenty-five minutes, yesterday. Many American and English visitors stood throughout the service.

The Cardinal carefully avoided politics. The text of the sermon was the Blessed Trinity. He praised American citizens while referring to the dignity of human nature.

man arrested with several others after a disturbance at the Brompton Oratory yesterday, was arraigned today at Westminster Police Court. The Magistrate told her she would have to give a bond of $50 that she would be of good behavior for six months, and as an alternative would be imprisoned in Holloway Jail for fourteen days. Mrs. Fausten unhesitatingly refused to give a bond, saying she would rather go to jail, and she announced her intention of beginning a "hunger strike" at once.

"We have no King, but thank God we have Mrs. Pankhurst," was the defiant shout of Miss Napier, one of yesterday's brawlers in Westminster Roman Catholic Cathedral, when she was led away to the cells after refusing to give a bond for her good behavior when brought up at the police court today.

Charges Prisoners Are Poisoned.

The drugs conveyed into Holloway Jail to Grace Roe were to be used as an antidote, according to Miss Barbara Wylie at the meeting of the Women's Social and Political Union today. She referred to the summons issued at the instance of the Public Prosecutor against Arthur Barnett, clerk to the attorney for the Women's Social and Political Union, who was accused of providing the imprisoned suffragettes with drugs to make them violently sick after they had been fed by force so that they might be discharged from prison under the "Cat and Mouse act." Miss Wylie declared that the authorities deliberately poisoned the women's food with drugs with the object of making physical and mental wrecks of them, and that in her opinion the women certainly were justified in procuring an antidote.

The guardians of ancient structures in all parts of the country have adopted the most stringent precautions to protect the buildings against the vandalism of the militants. Guns and dogs have been requisitioned for this service. Two men armed with rifles and accompanied by two bulldogs have been placed on guard in the grounds of the historic priory at Christ Church, Hampshire, which dates from the twelfth century. This plan also is being adopted at other places.

MILITANT ARSON PLANS.

Titled Ladies and Clergy Named as Contributors to Fund.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, June 9.—The Standard this morning publishes a list of prominent subscribers to the funds of the suffragettes. The names include Princess Sophie Duleep Singh, Princess Catherine Duleep Singh, the Bishop of Lincoln, Lady Wolseley, Sir Johnston Forbes Robertson, Lady Lely, the Rev. Canon Grant, the Rev. H. K. Hope, the Rev. N. K. MacKenzie, Dr. Garrett Anderson, Mrs. C. Pelham Burn, Mrs. Douglas Hamilton, and Mrs. D. A. Thomas.

The Standard says:

"Do the clergy here named, with Dr. Hicks of Lincoln, support the burning of Wargrave and other historic churches? Do they approve the plan of campaign which has come into possession of The Standard for the burning of the Stratford-on-Avon Church, King's College Chapel, Cambridge; the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and Lichfield Cathedral?

"Do Princess Sophia Duleep Singh, Princess Catherine Duleep Singh, and Lady Wolsley, all of whom have enjoyed the hospitality of the King at Hampton Court Palace, approve of the burning of that historic residence, which has been marked for destruction for some time? Princess Sophia Duleep Singh and Princess Catherine Duleep Singh are housed as the King's guests at Hampton Court Palace, yet the Princess has given £51 and collected £6 7s in the last year to aid a union many members of which intend to burn Mampton Court Palace at the first opportunity."

TO PROTECT COURT BALL.

Elaborate Steps Taken to Keep Suffragettes from Buckingham Palace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, June 9.—Never before were such elaborate precautions taken to preserve the inviolability of Buckingham Palace as those in progress to prevent tonight's state ball from being marred by the intrusion of suffragettes.

The outburst of the suffragette at the Court last week and the exploit of the man who broke into the palace Sunday morning have put the Court officials on their mettle.

Tonight every possible point of entry will be watched and a vigilant lookout maintained on the whole interior of the palace. Although the guests asked to the state ball, which is by royal invitation only, are all persons in the royal circle whose names have been submitted to their Majesties, the list is being scrutinized again to see if among those invited are any who are known to cherish suffragette sympathies.

A large force of police will be on duty outside the palace, forming a cordon all around it. No pedestrians will be allowed on the pavement. Any known suffragettes seen in the neighborhood will be promptly escorted to a distance. Another body of men will be on duty in the two quadrangles and the garden behind the palace will be similarly guarded.

Inside will be a number of private detectives, as well as ushers, gentlemen-at-arms, yoemen of the guard, and lifeguardsmen. Nobody, however well known, will be admitted without an invitation card, and this will be inspected at the carriage entrance, at the Doric porch, at the foot of the grand staircase, and again at the summit.

1,000 TRADE LEADERS IN WORLD CONGRESS

DISCUSS BANK PROBLEMS

Novel Suggestion for a $90,000,000 International First Aid Fund—False Advertising Denounced.

PARIS, June 8.—The International Congress of Chambers of Commerce and Commercial and Industrial Associations was opened today in the great amphitheatre of the Sorbonne by Raoul Peret, French Minister of Commerce. About one thousand delegates were present. It is the sixth annual congress.

On the platform beside M. Peret were Myron T. Herrick, United States Ambassador; Gen. Victor Michel, Military Governor of Paris: Celestin Hennion, Prefect of Police: Arthur David-Mennet, President of the Chamber of Commerce of Paris, and a number of Government officials and leaders of the commercial world.

Addresses of welcome were delivered by the President of the Chamber of Commerce of Paris, by Paul Chassaigne-Goyon, President of the Paris Municipal Council; by Charles Legrand, President of the Permanent Committee of the Congress, and by M. Peret.

The widespread range of the activities of the congress is shown in the fact that delegates from thirty-seven countries answered to the roll call, while 369 associations, including 91 in the United States, representing nearly every State and Territory in the Union, are affiliated with the congress.

The countries from which delegates were announced are Argentina, Australia, Austria, the Bahamas, Belgium, Bermuda, Brazil, British India, the British Isles, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, China, Cuba, Denmark, Equador, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Luxemburg, Mexico, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, the United States, and Uruguay.

Charles L. Bernheimer, Chairman of the Committee on Arbitration of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, submitted a plan for international commercial arbitration, and Dr. Roberto Pozzi of Milan, Italy, moved a resolution approving of the reference to arbitrators of controversies between citizens of different countries, adding that the various Legislatures should clothe foreign arbitrators with powers to fulfill their functions and should provide for them the protection of the law and give executive force to the judgments pronounced by them.

Eugen Lendvai of Temesvar, Hungary, offered the following resolution:

> The Congress calls on the various Legislatures to deal with the publication of fraudulent advertisements, the wrongful use of exhibition awards, false statements of origin, and misleading names, quantities and prices of goods. They are also called on to stamp out illicit selling-off sales and the system of giving premiums to customers, the publication of trade secrets, and the bribing of employes.

Another subject that created great interest was a proposal for the unification of laws relating to customs warehouse certificates with the view of facilitating, extending, and guaranteeing credit on merchandise. This was laid before the Congress by Henry A. Rau of the Belgian Chamber of Commerce.

Uniformity of bills of lading was urged in a report by Henri A. Rau of the Belgian Chamber of Commerce.

F. F. Begg of the London Chamber of Commerce read a paper today before the Congress, in which he asserted that the new Federal Reserve act would introduce greater flexibility into the financial system of the United States, but would have only a small indirect, if not negligible, effect internationally. International machinery, he said, should be set up through the great banks, whereby there should be maintained at various points reserves of gold for use in times of panic. "A committee of the great banks," he said, "would, in event of a panic, direct a stream of gold toward the disturbed spot."

"I am of the opinion," he continued, "that $15,000,000 held at each of six large financial centres or the equivalent in bullion of local gold coin would be sufficient for practical purposes. We should have by this means a fund of $90,000,000 always available for the purposes of the scheme. Let it be observed that the $15,000,000 which would by hypothesis be lodged at the point of disturbance, should that point be one of the places included in the scheme, would be available at once. It would form a species of financial 'first aid' and could be released immediately to relieve the pressure."

William Willett of London reported a long list of organizations which have passed resolutions in favor of the bill for daylight saving.

"That so many as 154 hours of daylight are, to all intents and purposes, wasted every year is a defect in our civilization," he asserted. "Standard time is so fixed that for nearly half the year the sun shines for several hours each day while we are asleep and it is rapidly nearing the horizon when we reach home after our work is over.

"If we will reduce the length of one Sunday in the Spring by sixty minutes, of which no one would be conscious, we shall have sixty minutes more daylight after 6 o'clock on each succeeding day until Autumn."

CANADIAN AGENCY FAILURE.

Sir W. Plender to Manage Concern and Suspended Chaplin Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 8.—In view of what has been common knowledge on the Stock Exchange for at least a month past, the suspension of the Canadian Agency, identified with Arthur M. Grenfell, was far less unexpected than that of the banking firm of Chaplin, Milne, Grenfell & Co.

Partly because of this and partly because of the reassuring statement that neither concern has any open accounts on the Stock Exchange, the markets today took a distinct turn for the better. At the same time, members are by no means confident that there may not still be trouble in the house, although they hope the Stock Exchange people who may be involved, either directly or indirectly, in the suspension are in a position to bear any losses without undue strain.

Several important companies were banking clients of Chaplin, Milne, Grenfell & Co., but most of them are reluctant to disclose the extent of their credits pending publication of the official list of creditors. One or two, however, disclosed their interest in the suspension amounting to a total of £24,500.

It is understood that the official receiver has been appointed provisional liquidator of the Canadian Agency and that Sir William Plender, the accountant, is to be special manager of both suspended institutions.

Christie's on June 26 will sell sixty pictures forming the property of Arthur M. Grenfell. They comprise old masters and works of the early English school.

PROF. EHRLICH IN LIBEL SUIT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 8.—Prof. Ehrlich was in the witness box at Frankfort-on-the Main to-day in a trial for libel against a local newspaper man, who alleged that the discoverer and manufacturers of salvarsan had resorted to illicit methods to popularize the famous cure. The defendant also had made certain statements relative to the "injurious" character of salvarsan.

Prof. Ehrlich admitted in his testimony that he had heard of deaths occurring after treatment by salvarsan, but that he had no personal knowledge of these cases. He also admitted freely that in some cases paralysis had occurred after the administration of salvarsan. He had also heard of a patient in Prague who had exhibited disturbances of the nervous system.

In consequence, he had asked numerous doctors who were employing salvarsan if they had observed any such results. None of them had, so Prof. Ehrlich concluded that the Prague case was due to faulty treatment.

The court overruled a question by the defense which sought to elicit from Prof. Ehrlich the admission that whenever he had heard of disastrous results from salvarsan he had attributed them to faulty treatment.

The proceedings were adjourned till tomorrow.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, June 9.—A powerful and in some respects a pathetic appeal is made to the militants by Yvette Guilbert. In a letter to The Daily Telegraph she beseeches them to cease their present campaign of outrages and adopt peaceful methods of securing their ends. She says:

"You have turned to those old methods of the other sex, to those actions which revolutionary assassins and evildoers have always and at every period revealed, to the horror of the world and of civilized creatures. You add to the number of brutes and mad folk. To what end? You devastate, you insult, you hurt, you attack even the person of your King himself. You no longer respect even the head of your State. You lose your dignity when you lose your self-command, and you kill, you assassinate your admirable cause—a cause which must be put forward with patience of mind, soul, and heart. As a result of the deeds of a few women who could not control themselves the cause of feminism is dead, or at any rate gravely ill."

PALACE INTRUDER HELD.

Was Intoxicated When He Scaled Wall—Not a Suffragist.

LONDON, June 8.—Harry Pike, who yesterday startled the authorities and the public by invading Buckingham Palace, is not a suffragist, according to the attorney for the prosecution who appeared against him at Bow Street Police Court today.

The man who clambered over the ten-foot wall surmounted by sharp spikes which surrounds the palace grounds and eluded sentinels, police guards, and servants did so while under the influence of drink and not with any ulterior object, said the lawyer.

The Magistrate remanded the prisoner for a week for further inquiries.

Pike has issued a long, written statement giving details of his wanderings and adventures in the palace. He mentioned that his wife was in America and that he had been drinking ever since she left England. He is a motor fitter's assistant.

Suffragette Found Dead.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 8.—Lavender Guthrie, a prominent suffragette, was found dead in her flat in Jermyn Street today. Near her bed were some empty veronal bottles. Her mother, Mrs. Baillie Guthrie, is a leading member of the Lyceum Club.

20 COUSINS FIGHTING FOR $2,000,000 WILL

UNDUE INFLUENCE CHARGED

Nurse Testifies Testatrix Was Drowsy on Day She Was "Persuaded" to Sign Instrument.

Cousins of Miss Sarah A. Knight, Mrs. Hetty Green's intimate friend, who died on Oct. 13, 1913, began a fight in the Surrogates' Court yesterday to get possession of her $2,000,000 estate. The cousins were divided into two factions, those of the Knight branch of the family fighting to have the alleged last will of Miss Knight declared invalid, and those of the McLaughlin branch fighting to have the alleged will probated. If Miss Knight's will is probated the McLaughlin cousins, twenty strong, will inherit the estate in equal shares, while the Knight cousins will receive nothing.

Miss Knight at the time of her death in St. Luke's Hospital was 70 years old. She was the daughter of John Knight and Sarah McLaughlin Knight. For many years she lived in Baltimore, Md., but twenty years ago she came to this city and lived as a semi-recluse at 11 West Twenty-eighth Street.

There is an odd story connected with this Twenty-eighth Street house. Miss Knight bought it in 1889 and, the title having been searched and proved clear by the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, the deed was made out to Sarah A. Knight of Baltimore. Several years later Miss Knight changed her residence from Baltimore to New York. It was in the Fall of 1897 that Miss Knight heard that her Twenty-eighth Street property had been conveyed to a Mr. Enos of Havre de Grace, Md., who had paid $50,000 for it. When rent was demanded from Miss Knight she rebelled.

A commission was appointed to discover if there was a second Sarah A. Knight and the commission found that there was. Furthermore, the second Sarah A. Knight, who lived at Havre de Grace, claimed the property. She had been living in Baltimore and when a letter addressed to Sarah A. Knight of Baltimore was delivered to her, offering her $50,000 for a house, she decided that she was the woman the letter was intended for and that some one had made her a present of the New York house. She was soon undeceived by the other Miss Knight, who made a successful appeal to the courts.

Little was known of Miss Knight in the last two decades of her life. The cousins, who started proceedings to contest her will, charged that she did not have testamentary capacity at the time it was drawn, that she was of unsound mind, and that she was subjected to undue influence. The document was drawn up, the cousins asserted, only two days before Miss Knight's death.

The witnesses who appeared in the Surrogate's Court yesterday were Mrs. Bessie D. Mackey, wife of George Knight Mackey, one of the proponents of the will, and Miss Florence C. Missmer, who was head floor nurse at St. Luke's Hospital at the time of Miss Knight's death. Both were witnesses to the will.

Mrs. Mackey said that she had gone to Miss Knight's bedside from the hospital at the request of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, co-executor with her husband of Miss Kight's will. She testified that Miss Knight said to her, "I want to make my will, and should have done so before, but have been too busy." Mrs. Mackey said she asked Miss Knight if she was going to make the will, and Miss Knight nodded and said that she wanted the younger generation of McLaughlins to share in the estate.

"Isn't it a fact that you and Miss Missmer urged her to sign the will?" she was asked.

"Certainly," Mrs. Mackey said, "because she wanted to sign it."

When asked whether she knew that Dr. Clover of St. Luke's Hospital had entered Miss Knight's room and prayed that she might make a will, Mrs. Mackey said that all that she knew was that Dr. Clover had prayed with the decedent.

Miss Missmer admitted that Miss Knight signed the will after she had been told that if she did not sign it her personal property would go to the State. She also said that Miss Knight had been drowsy all day, but had not been in a stupor. She said that she had read the will to Miss Knight, and had finally "persuaded" her to sign it.

The trial will be continued this morning.

SUEZ CANAL TOLLS CUT.

Shareholders Grumble Because Dividend Is Only 33 Per Cent.

PARIS, June 8.—Criticism of the management of the Suez Canal was uttered for the first time in years at the annual meeting today, when the usual 33 per cent. dividend was declared. Some shareholders demanded to know why the amount was not larger.

Charles Jonnart, former French Foreign Minister, now President of the company, said the Suez Canal tolls had been reduced by 10 cents a ton to meet the rates fixed for Panama. Moreover, the larger draft of vessels at the present day necessitated the constant dredging and deepening of the canal. He declared, however, that the Panama Canal would have little effect on the Suez Canal.

Some observations were made by dissatisfied shareholders in regard to the expensiveness of the management of the canal. It was pointed out that there were thirty-two salaried members on the Board of Administrators, and it was said this number might be reduced for the profit of the company.

All the reports were adopted, as usual.

TWO CANAL TRAGEDIES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, June 8.—During a fight yesterday afternoon, Patrick Galvin, a canal molder from Yonkers, N. Y., was killed by a blow of the fist by a fellow American, William Hopkins. The latter is in custody.

The negro section was excited yesterday by a double love tragedy. A negro canal worker shot a Panama woman five times, fatally wounding her, and then committed suicide by turning the weapon against himself.

Lighthouse Needs $27,000.

Arthur Williams, Chariman of the Lighthouse Fund Committee of the New York Association for the Blind, reports that subscriptions amounting to $273,000 have been received and that $27,000 more must be given to release more than $125,000 promised on the contingency of $300,000 being raised. The office of the association is 111 East Fifty-ninth Street.

RESOURCES OVER SEVEN MILLION DOLLARS

MORE RAPP LETTERS END SINGER'S CASE

DEFENSE IS VERY BRIEF

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Rather unexpectedly this afternoon the defense closed its case in the action of Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink for divorce from William Rapp, Jr. The court then directed that the arguments should begin. As Rapp had filed a cross bill, many spectators were in attendance, expecting to hear voluminous testimony. Rapp, however, called few witnesses.

Bryan Humphries, who was the contralto's chauffeur last Winter, and Miss Helen Sattler, her traveling companion since 1910, were the chief witnesses called by Rapp. Humphries had been in Mme. Schumann-Heink's employ for six weeks, and Rapp considered him an important witness. The singer's attorneys were alert, however, and interposed many objections. Judge Sullivan sustained these objections. The trouble apparently was the specificness of Rapp's original answer. It did not permit Rapp, Judge Sullivan ruled, to take up Madame's past. Counsel for the defense immediately decided to file an amended answer. The court gave permission to do this. Humphries told of seeing George Baldwin of Appleton, Wis., at his employer's home in Chicago at intervals.

Miss Sattler said she had known Baldwin for two years and that she saw him last Christmas time, 1913. She said, also, that a policeman with a fine voice visited Mme. Schumann-Heink's home at Caldwell, N. J., to take singing lessons.

"He has a wonderful voice, but all the technique he had he got from dropping nickles in phonographs," the witness said.

Miss Sattler said that in Chicago her employer always slept on the second floor in a room next to her daughter, Marie. A door was always open between the two rooms, she said. When Mme. Schumann-Heink rented a cottage at Culver, Ind., on the occasion of her son's graduation from a school there it was so that his friends might be received and entertained. Mr. Baldwin spent one night there. His room was under hers, the witness testified.

More letters which it is alleged were written by Rapp to Mrs. Catherine P. Dean, the co-respondent, were read at the morning session of the court. Of the letters one bore the date of Aug. 1, 1913. In it the writer said: "I wrote you Friday, Saturday, Sunday. Monday I did not write, as I had conferences all day till late at night. Tuesday and Wednesday I wrote again. Yesterday I waited all day for a letter from you, and I was discouraged at not hearing from you."

The reason the writer did not hear from Mrs. Dean was in court in the person of Miss Frances J. Ashton, a nurse employed as a detective by counsel for Mme. Schumann-Heink. She testified that she rented a room from Mrs. Dean from time to time during 1913 and intercepted a number of Rapp's letters.

In the letter of Aug. 1 Mrs. Dean is addressed as "My Darling, Wonderful Girl." The writer continued:

"Without you it is awful. Just now when I require that quick wit of yours the most I must forego it. That is honest, girlie, and you know that my unbounded admiration for your ability is true. You are the one and only little woman for me who can keep me true and straight and who can bring out the best in me."

In all, Mme. Schumann-Heink's counsel read seven letters this morning which it is alleged were written by Rapp to his "Glorious Little Wonder Kid," his "Sweetest One," his "One Best Bet," and his "Darling Little Shingle."

Rapp's counsel made no opening statement, but promptly called Humphries as the first witness.

Mme. Schumann-Heink said this afternoon that she would have to miss most of the rehearsals for the Wagnerian Festival at Beireuth, but could reach the scene in time to participate in the principal event in July.

GUILTY, SAYS SECOND JAILER

Judge Sends First Nassau Offender Tried to Sing Sing.

William Clifford, a Nassau County Jail keeper, indicted for participating in orgies in the jail at Mineola, pleaded guilty before Justice Kelby yesterday, immediately after Justice Kelby had sentenced Richard Miller, the first jailer tried, to Sing Sing for from three to six years. Clifford was remanded for sentence.

Miller, who collapsed on Friday when the jury gave its verdict and was carried from the courtroom, had another sinking spell when he heard the sentence.

YOUNG SINGER SUES DR. W. W. ARMSTRONG

"KNEW I WAS MARRIED"

Physician Says Miss Hossfeld May Have Exaggerated Attentions He Paid Her.

Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain appeared yesterday as counsel for Miss Henrietta Hossfeld, who has begun suit against Dr. William Willard Armstrong for $50,000 for breach of promise. Mrs. Boissevain declined to say anything about the suit last night except that the complaint would shortly be filed and then all the facts at her disposal would become known.

Dr. Armstrong was less reticent. At his office, 255 West Thirty-ninth Street, he said he had known Miss Hossfeld for some time, and that she knew he was married.

"The young woman hails from Wichita, Kan.," he said, "where she knew my father. She came to this city about five years ago, when she was only 17 years old. She was ambitious to become a public singer, and was sure she would have a successful career on the stage if she could only get a chance to show what she could do.

"I did not know her until she was connected with the 'High Jinks' company. She lost her place in that chorus, and then she asked me to help her. I was glad to do what I could for her, not only because she knew my father, but because she seemed to be alone and in need of friendly advice and help.

"I interested some professional teachers of singing in her and I paid for some of her lessons, but I could not do so very much in this way. Then she appeared to have no place to go and I offered her shelter in my own home. It was the understanding that this arrangement was to be only temporary. My wife lives in my home, of course, and Miss Hossfeld knew her as well as she knew me. Finally she went away, and then she began this suit.

"It is difficult for me to believe that the young woman seriously intends to press it. I always treated her with the greatest respect."

Dr. Armstrong said that on one occasion Miss Hossfield did make a serious accusation against him, but he never really thought she regarded him in any but the most friendly light. He said that he would defend the suit if it ever came to trial.

"Miss Hossfeld is a very attractive young woman," said Dr. Armstrong, "but I do not think she is capable of doing much as a singer. Her voice is thin on the high notes. She may have realized that she was doomed to failure, and her disapointment may have caused her to exaggerate the attentions I paid her. I do not know where she is now."

SEEKING AUTHOR OF LIBEL.

Tower Prosecuted for Giving Circular Defaming Prof. Kirchwey.

In an effort to trace the origin of a circular apparently designed to injure Prof. George W. Kirchwey of Columbia University, the Society for the Suppression of Vice yesterday prosecuted Lewis C. Tower of Tower Brothers Stationery Company, 23 West Twenty-third Street, on the charge of giving away indecent literature.

Mr. Tower admitted that he had given one of the circulars to J. S. Sumner, an agent for the society. Mr. Tower denied that he had anything to do with the publication or the circulation of the pamphlet. He said that a clerk of his had received several of the circulars and that he had got one from the clerk to give to Sumner. While Tower's statement was accepted by Mr. Comstock, it was felt that he ought to throw more light on the subject.

Justices Salmon, Hermann and McInerney, who heard the case in Special Sessions, adjourned the trial a week to give Mr. Tower further opportunity to vindicate himself with a fuller account of how the circular got into his store.

Barnes Wins Point in Libel Case.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 8.—Justice Rudd of the Supreme Court to-day overruled a demurrer interposed by William H. The suit followed the publication of a letter in which Mr. Barnes was referred to as "the boss of the liquor end of the Republican Party."

NATION DOMINANT OVER STATE RATES

FAVORABLE TO RAILROADS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The Supreme Court of the United States today decided the last of the great rate contests by holding, in the Shreveport case, that rates fixed by a State for traffic wholly within the State must give way to orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission when the commission finds that the State regulations effect a discrimination in interstate commerce.

The decision, which was announced in an opinion by Justice Hughes, Justices Lurton and Pitney alone dissenting, is regarded as extremely favorable to the railroads—in short, as a long step toward placing the carriers under "one master instead of many," the Supreme Court upholding the power of the Interstate Commerce Commision to strike down State rates that discriminate against interstate commerce. The court said, in substance, that the Minnesota and other recent State rate cases, in which the railroads lost, might have been decided otherwise had the roads gone to the commission for relief instead of to the courts.

The case arose out of complaint by Shreveport (La.) merchants that the Texas Railroad Commission had shut them out of all Texas business by compelling the railroads to reduce Texas States rates far below what the Interstate Commerce Commission allowed the railroads running from Shreveport to Texas cities to charge.

The Supreme Court first decided that Congress had power to control interstate charges over an interstate carrier to the extent necessary to prevent injurious discriminations against interstate traffic, and then held that Congress had conferred this power upon the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"We are not unmindful of the gravity of the question that is presented when State and Federal views conflict," the opinion of Justice Hughes read. "But it was recognized at the beginning that the nation could not prosper if interstate and foreign trade are governed by many masters, and where the interests of the freedom of interstate commerce are involved the judgment of Congress and of the agencies it lawfully establishes must control."

Members of the Interstate Commerce Commission regarded this case as one of the most important in which the body has been involved. The decision of the Commission was written by Secretary Lane before he left the Commission to become a member of the President's Cabinet.

Clarifies Former Decisions.

Today's decision goes far to make plain the extent of Federal control, discussed by the high court last June in the Minnesota and Missouri State rate cases. In those cases the right of a State to fix rates for traffic within its borders was sustained in the particular instances before the court. But, as these dispatches pointed out at the time of the decision of the Minnesota cases, the court made it clear that this reservation of right of the States was sustained chiefly because the Federal Government, through the Interstate Commerce Commission, its duly constituted tribunal, had not taken jurisdiction. There was no doubt as to the jurisdiction, but until it was exercised by the proper Federal authority it remained in the hands of the States.

Today's decision rests upon an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission declaring that discriminations arose from the observance of State rules even for intrastate rates. That order is sustained, and, while the particular point at issue was the reduction of interstate rates to the level of the intrastate rates fixed by the State of Texas, the inference is plain that the roads would be at liberty to obviate the discrimination not only by reducing their interstate rates but also by raising their intrastate rates regardless of State authority.

The suits were brought in the Commerce Court by the Houston, East & West Texas, the Houston & Shreveport, and the Texas & Pacific Railroads to set aside an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission of March 11, 1912, establishing maximum class rates out of Shreveport, La., to points in Texas, the appellant railroads asserting that the commission had exceeded its authority. The order of the commission was made in a proceeding initiated by the Railroad Commission of Louisiana, shippers having complained that the rates maintained by carriers out of Shreveport discriminated against such traffic in favor of Dallas and other Texas points.

"The situation may be briefly described," says the Supreme Court. "Shreveport, La., is about forty miles from the Texas State line and 231 miles from Houston, Texas, on the line of the Houston, East & West Texas and Houston & Shreveport Companies, (which are affiliated in interest); it is 189 miles from Dallas, Texas, on the line of the Texas & Pacific. Shreveport competes with both cities for the trade of the intervening territory. The rates on these roads from Dallas and Houston, respectively, eastward to intermediate points in Texas were much less, according to distance, than from Shreveport westward to the same points. It is undisputed that the difference was substantial and injuriously affected the commerce of Shreveport. It appeared, for instance, a rate of 60 cents carried first-class traffic a distance of 160 miles to the eastward from Dallas, while the same rate would carry the same class of traffic only fifty-five miles into Texas from Shreveport."

The commission found that the rates maintained by the carriers discriminated against Shreveport, and ordered that equal rates be maintained for equal distances.

In the Commerce Court.

"In their petition in the Commerce Court," says the court, "the appellants assailed the order in its entirety, but subsequently they withdrew their opposition to the fixing of maximum-class rates, and these rates were put in force by the carriers in May, 1912. The attack was continued upon that portion of the order which prohibited the charge of higher rates for carrying articles from Shreveport into Texas than those charged for eastward traffic from Dallas and Houston, respectively.

"The holding of the Commerce Court was that the order relieved the appellants from further obligation to observe the interstate rates, and that they were at liberty to comply with the commission's requirements by increasing these rates sufficiently to remove the forbidden discrimination. The invalidity of the order in this aspect is challenged upon two grounds:

"1. That Congress is impotent to control the interstate charges of an interstate carrier even to the extent necessary to prevent injurious discrimination against interstate traffic; and

"2. That if it be assumed that Congress has this power, still it has not been exercised, and hence the action of the commission exceeded the limits of the authority which has been conferred upon it."

Justice Hughes, who delivered the opinion, then discussed these two objections to the validity of the order. Respecting the first he said:

Powers of Congress.

It is unnecessary to repeat what has been said by this court with respect to the complete and paramount character of the power confided to Congress to regulate commerce among the States. It is of the essence of this power that, where it exists, it dominates. * * * By virtue of the comprehensive terms of the grant, the authority of Congress is at all times adequate to meet the varying exigencies that arise and to protect the national interest by securing the freedom of interstate commerce from local control.

Congress is empowered to regulate—that is, to provide the law for the government of interstate commerce. * * *

As it is competent for Congress to legislate to these ends, unquestionably it may seek their attainment by requiring that the agencies of interstate commerce shall not be used in such a manner as to cripple, retard, or destroy it. The fact that carriers are instruments of intrastate commerce, as well as interstate commerce, does not derogate from the complete and paramount authority of Congress over the latter or preclude the Federal power from being exerted to prevent the intrastate operations of such carriers from being made a means of injury to that which has been confided to Federal care.

Wherever the interstate and intrastate transactions of carriers are so related that the government of the one involves the control of the other, it is Congress, and not the State, that is entitled to prescribe the final and dominant rule, for otherwise Congress would be denied the exercise of its constitutional authority, and the State, and not the Nation, would be supreme within the national field.

That an unjust discrimination in the rates of a common carrier, by which one person or locality is unduly favored as against another, under substantially similar conditions of traffic, constitutes an evil is undeniable; and where this evil consists in the action of an interstate carrier in unreasonably discriminating against interstate traffic over its line, the authority of Congress to prevent is equally clear.

It is immaterial, so far as the protecting power of Congress is concerned, that the discrimination arises from intrastate rates, as compared with interstate rates. The use of the instrument of interstate commerce in a discriminatory manner so as to inflict injury upon that commerce, or some part thereof, furnishes abundant ground for Federal intervention.

Power Exclusive With Nation.

It is also to be noted, as the Government has well said in its argument in support of the commission's order, that the power to deal with the relation between the two kinds of rates, as a relation, lies exclusively with Congress. It is manifest that the State cannot fix the relation of the carrier's interstate and intrastate charges without directly interfering with the former unless it simply follows the standard set by Federal authority.

It is also clear that, in removing the injurious discriminations against interstate traffic arising from the relation of intrastate to interstate rates, Congress is not bound to reduce the latter below what it may deem to be a proper standard fair to the carrier and to the public. Otherwise, it could prevent the injury to interstate commerce only by the sacrifice of its judgment as to interstate rates.

Having this power, Congress could provide for its execution through the aid of a subordinate body; and we conclude that the order of the commission now in question cannot be held invalid upon the ground that it exceeded the authority which Congress could lawfully confer.

Justice Hughes then took up for discussion the second objection against the commission's order, and said:

No Exemption Is Intended.

It is apparent from the legislative history of the (Interstate Commerce) act that the evil of discrimination was the principal thing aimed at, and there is no basis for the contention that Congress intended to exempt any discriminatory action or practice of interstate carriers affecting the interests of commerce which it had authority to reach.

The opposing argument rests upon the proviso in the first section of the act, which in its original form was as follows:

> Provided, however, that the provisions of this act shall not apply to the transportation of passengers or property wholly within one State and not shipped to and from a foreign country from or to any State or Territory as aforesaid.

When the act was amended so as to confer upon the commission the authority to prescribe maximum interstate rates, this proviso was re-enacted, and when the act was extended to include telegraph, telephone, and cable companies engaged in interstate commerce, an additional clause was inserted so as to exclude intrastate messages. Congress thus defined the scope of its regulation and provided that it was not to extend to purely intrastate traffic. It did not undertake to authorize the commission to prescribe intrastate rates and thus establish a unified control by the exercise of the rate-making power over both descriptions of traffic. Undoubtedly—in the absence of a finding by the commission of unjust discrimination—intrastate rates were left to be fixed by the carrier and subject to the authority of the States or of the agencies created by the States. This was the question recently decided by this court in the Minnesota rate cases. There, the State of Minnesota had established reasonable rates for intrastate transportation throughout the State, and it was contended that, by reason of the passage of the act to regulate commerce, the State could no longer exercise the Statewide authority for this purpose which it had formerly enjoyed, and the court was asked to hold that an entire scheme of intrastate rates, otherwise validly established, was null and void because of its effect upon interstate rates. There had been no finding by the Interstate Commerce Commission of any unjust discrimination.

Had Power of Correction.

Here, the commission expressly found that unjust discrimination existed under substantially similar conditions of transportation, and the inquiry is whether the commission had power to correct it. We are of the opinion that the limitation of the proviso in Section 1 does not apply to a case of this sort. The commission was dealing with the relation of rates injuriously affecting, through an unreasonable discrimination, traffic that was interstate. The question was thus not simply one of transportation that was "wholly within one State."

The court said in conclusion:

"Reading the order in the light of the report of the commission, it does not appear that the commission attempted to require the carriers to reduce their interstate rates out of Shreveport below what was found to be a reasonable charge for that service. So far as those interstate rates conformed to what was found to be reasonable by the commission, the carriers are entitled to maintain them, and they are free to comply with the orders by so adjusting the other rates, to which the order relates, as to remove the forbidden discrimination. But this result they are required to accomplish."

HARVESTER OUSTER STANDS.

Supreme Court Against Trust in Missouri Case, For It in Kentucky.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Missouri's anti-trust laws, attacked as unconstitutional because they exempt labor combinations, were upheld today by the Supreme Court. At the same time, the Kentucky anti-trust statutes were annulled because of the endeavor of the Commonwealth to exempt tobacco pools from their operation.

As a result of the decisions, the judgment of the Missouri Supreme Court ousting from the State and fining the International Harvester Company of America $25,000 for being a member of a trust was affirmed, while the action of the Kentucky Court of Appeals in affirming judgments in favor of various Kentucky counties for penalties against the same company for being a member of a trust was reversed.

The decisions do not affect the action of the Federal Government against the International Harvester Company under the Sherman anti-trust law.

Justice McKenna said that it was too late to assert that a State could not prohibit combinations induced by good intentions and which had had some good effect. This was his answer to the argument by the Harvester Company that it had reduced the prices of machinery to farmers. The Justice considered at length the contention that a State could not classify restraints so as to apply to those who sell articles and not to those who are engaged in labor pursuits or purchase articles. Such a lack of classification, he said, would lead the States to sorry straits.

He added that classification was proper so long as the classification was made with regard for the evil to be cured.

The Supreme Court condemned the Kentucky statutes because those laws made it unlawful to enhance or depress prices of commodities above or below the real market value. The court held that it was beyond human ingenuity to determine what the real market value of a commodity was, and hence the law was beyond the power of a State to enact.

Pointing out that in 1890 Kentucky passed an Anti-Trust act against combinations in restraint of trade, Justice Holmes said:

"But Kentucky grows tobacco, and the farmers were dissatisfied with the prices that they were able to get for their tobacco, as they alleged, because of a combination of buyers."

So, he added, in 1906 the State passed a law legalizing the pooling of crops for higher prices. The seeming conflict between the pooling law and the general law was avoided by the Court of Appeals, he explained, by holding that the law was to be taken to mean that any combination for the purpose of controlling prices was lawful unless for the purpose or with the effect of making prices that were greater or less than the real value of the article.

"The result seems to be," said Justice Holmes, "that combinations of tobacco growers are held to do no more than restore an equilibrium that has been disturbed by a combination of buyers, whereas, if prices are raised after a combination of manufacturers, it very nearly is presumed that the advance is above the real value, and that there is a crime committed."

As a matter of fact, the Justice held, there was no standard of conduct possible for any one under Kentucky law in arriving at what was the real price of an article.

CO-OPERATE ON TRUST BILLS

Senate Committees Aim to Work Together — Clayton Bill May Be Reported This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—There was evidence today that an attempt would be made to adjust the relations of the Senate Committee on Judiciary and the Committee on Interstate Commerce so that they might co-operate in a programme for anti-trust legislation other than the Federal Trade Commission bill, which has already been reported to the Senate. The Interstate Commerce Committee has been considering many of the problems presented in the Clayton bill amending the Sherman Anti-Trust act, and an effort will be made to harmonize the action of the two committees. The Committee on the Judiciary will try to report the Clayton Anti-Trust bill this week, or two sets of bills.

The Clayton bill as it passed the House contains a provision specifically exempting labor and other organizations from anti-trust laws, and this will probably lead to lengthy discussion in committee. Senator Kern, leader of the majority, said today that the Senate would legislate on this line in some form.

While the Judiciary Committee is considering the Clayton bill the Interstate Commerce Committee also will continue its analysis of many of the subjects covered in that measure.

Before the close of the present week Mr. Newlands, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, intends to lay before the Senate the Federal Trade Commission bill approved by his committee, and virtually identical with the measure passed by the House. The appearance of this bill, it is predicted, will be the signal for general debate on the subject of trust regulation, and a flood of amendments proposing many of the reforms contemplated in other pending measures.

Senator Lippitt of Rhode Island, Republican, issued a statement today denouncing the Trade Commission bill. He said:

"The Trade Commission is not designed to aid business in any way, and has no constructive powers at all. It is merely an inquisitorial and punitive national detective agency, with a power to conduct Paul Pry investigations into business, large and small, of such a character that if not actually violating the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution protecting people against unreasonable searches and seizure of private papers, comes as near to it as possible.

"To discover the one guilty person it puts 999 innocent ones under intolerable suspicion and to unjustifiable trouble and expense. It has been estimated that, in addition to the cost of the commission itself, it will cost the 150,000 business concerns it affects $20,000,000 annually to respond to its demands, which in the end must be paid by the consumers of their products, and all this merely to accomplish a result that is now the duty of the Attorney General.

"Under a partisan and ambitious Administration it can be made the most despotic party agency any country has ever had.

"No present important conditions call for or justify the creation of such a body. All that is necessary to be done the Government can readily do through existing agencies with much less expense and friction."

Hearings on the Railroad Securities bill were resumed today by the Interstate Commerce Committee, when A. P. Thomas, general counsel of the Southern Railway, favored the Interstate Commerce Commission having jurisdiction over the issuance of bonds by railroad companies, even when the projects involved were not interstate.

"For instance," he said, "suppose that the New York Central Railroad Company should wish to issue $75,000,000 of bonds for the purpose of erecting warehouses and office buildings on the terminal which it owns in New York City. That would be a case which would not come clearly under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, as would a similar bond issue for the purpose of double-tracking a railroad line which crossed a State border. But the effect on the company's credit of the issue of those bonds would be just as serious in the one case as in the other.

"The point is that the issue of those bonds might so impair the railroad's credit as to injure its power to serve the public as an interstate common carrier. That is the point which brings such a bond issue under the scrutiny of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"The building of the new Pennsylvania Station in New York or the tube of the Pennsylvania under the Hudson River could have been held up by the Interstate Commerce Commission, if given all the powers which Congress has the constitutional power to give that commission. The reason in holding up the improvement, however, would have to be based on the opinion of the commission that the bond issues involved in these improvements would have so injured the credit of the Pennsylvania that it could not perform its proper service as an interstate common carrier. No mere opinion as to the wisdom or unwisdom of the project would have sufficed."

Mr. Thom's testimony concluded the presentation of railroad views on the bill.

The question of the control over pipe lines by the Interstate Commerce Commission will be taken up at a hearing granted today by the committee for Saturday to Senator Owen and representatives of the independent oil interests of Oklahoma and Texas. At this hearing Senator Owen will urge that the pipe lines be classified as common carriers and then rates and regulations for their control be drafted by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

HITCH IN WANAMAKER CASE.

McAdoo Wants McReynolds to be Responsible for Settlement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—If the case against John Wanamaker for non-payment of duties on importations is compromised by the acceptance of $100,000, as tendered by Mr. Wanamaker's attorney, it must be on the sole responsibility of Attorney General McReynolds. The report that Secretary McAdoo had recommended the acceptance of the amount was not true, according to statements made at Mr. McAdoo's office today.

After an inquiry into the facts by the Department of Justice in the Taft Administration Mr. Wanamaker offered to settle in the last days of the week preceding the inauguration of President Wilson. The offer was accepted, by direction of President Taft, as being adequate and meeting all requirements of justice, in view of the complications involved in the alleged violations of the law.

Secretary McAdoo refused to abide by this decision and had the matter referred to the Department of Justice for further action. Henry A. Arnold, special attorney for the Department of Justice, was assigned to the case and has made a thorough investigation. The conclusion was that $100,000 would not be adequate to cover all the duties that had not been paid. At the same time, the Government has been unable to indict Mr. Wanamaker, and it has been accepted as a foregone conclusion that criminal proceedings would be entirely abandoned.

There have been conferences between Secretary McAdoo and Attorney General McReynolds, and it is understood that the Secretary of the Treasury has taken the position that if the Attorney General will accept full responsibility for the conclusion that a criminal prosecution cannot be sustained he will agree to accept the compromise proposed by the payment of $100,000.

THAW APPLIES FOR BAIL.

Needed in Pittsburgh to Settle Estate, Counsel Tells Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Harry K. Thaw's fight for freedom reached the Supreme Court of the United States today when ex-Gov. William A. Stone of Pennsylvania, as counsel, asked for his release on bail pending a final decision of the proceedings by which the State of New York seeks to return the noted prisoner to Matteawan from his refuge in New Hampshire. Chief Justice White gave representatives of New York State until Friday to file a brief in opposition to Thaw's release, and a decision may be given next Monday, when the Supreme Court will conclude its work for the term and adjourn until Fall.

The Supreme Court rules provide for bail in such cases, and Justice Aldrich of the Federal Court of New Hampshire, who gave the favorable decision in Thaw's habeas corpus proceedings, announced in his decision that he was not sure he ought to deny a release on bail, but would present the matter to the Supreme Court.

Mr. Stone set forth in his petition that his client was needed in court in Pittsburgh to testify in the settlement of his father's estate.

BILL TO END COLORADO WAR

Provides for a Commission of Five to be Named by the President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Settlement of the Colorado strike through a commission of five persons to be appointed by the President was proposed in the House today by Representative Keating of Colorado. The bill provides that the Commissioners shall be distinguished in experience, discretion, and integrity and free from any interest in the disputed questions.

The commission as proposed in Mr. Keating's bill would inquire into and pass upon the questions in controversy with a view to establishing peace upon a just and permanent basis. A report would be made to Congress not later than Dec. 1, 1914, by the commission.

Trace of White Makes 'Mixed Blood'

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The Supreme Court today refused to set aside sales of Indian lands on the White Earth (Minnesota) Reservation to whites on the Government's plea that Indians with less than 50 per cent. white blood were not "mixed bloods" within the meaning of the law which permits mixed bloods to sell their holdings. The court held that an Indian with any white blood at all was a "mixed blood."

Chief Judgeship for Covington.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Representative J. Harry Covington of Easton, Md., was nominated by President Wilson today to be Chief Justice of the District of Columbia Supreme Court. He is a Democrat, and has taken a leading part in framing the trust legislation programme.

Virginia Anti-Scrip Law Upheld.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The Supreme Court today upheld the constitutionality of a Virginia law requiring companies mining coal or manufacturing iron or steel to pay employes at least monthly in money and making it unlawful to issue scrip unless redeemable in money at its face value.

PRESIDENT WARNS SENATE ON TOLLS

ANOTHER ONE OFFERED

Sutherland Wants More Positive Declaration of Our Rights—Voting May Begin Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—President Wilson let his callers know today that he was not yet reconciled to the idea of material amendment to the Tolls Repeal bill along the lines planned in the Senate. From the President's point of view an amendment was unnecessary in the direction of a reservation of canal rights, and could not in any case waive or affect a treaty right or treaty obligation. The President feels that individual expressions of Senators in debate would have as much force as the proposed amendment, but to the direct question whether he opposed the amendment in the compromise form suggested by Senator Simmons of North Carolina, his floor leader in this controversy, he did not answer.

Despite the President's disapprobation, the determination even of Senators otherwise for repeal to demand the amendment of the bill in such a way that there will not be the slightest future question of the attitude of the Senate was made clear today when the following amendment was offered by Senator Sutherland:

> Provided, That nothing herein shall be considered as denying or abridging the right of the United States to discriminate in favor of the ships of commerce of its citizens in respect of the conditions or charges of traffic which may be imposed for the use of the Panama Canal, but, on the contrary, such right is hereby reasserted.

The offer of this amendment followed the presentation to the Senate of the so-called Norris-Simmons amendment intended to reserve to the United States complete control over the Panama Canal. Senator Simmons proposed that amendment immediately after the conclusion of a lengthy speech by Senator Poindexter of Washington, Progressive, in denunciation of the Tolls Repeal bill.

Senator Sutherland in presenting his amendment said "the first amendment of the Senator from North Carolina is a transparent sham. It means nothing and it accomplishes nothing.

"This second amendment is not quite so transparent, but it nevertheless is also a sham. It is a well-known fact that a majority of the members of this Senate believe the United States has an undoubted right to exempt its coastwise shipping from the payment of tolls, and having that belief we should so declare it in specific terms."

Speeches by Senator Poindexter, Senator William Alden Smith, Republican, of Michigan, and Senator Martine, Democrat, of New Jersey, all in opposition to the pending bill, consumed a seven-hour session of the Senate today. It was so clear that the bill could not be disposed of at a night session that Senator Simmons forebore to press for a continuation of the session.

Senator O'Gorman of New York said that he believed a vote would be had on one of the pending amendments by 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, but did not venture an opinion as to when the final vote would be taken.

Held as Gang Blackmailers.

Magistrate Corrigan in the Tombs Court yesterday held in $3,000 bail each Harry Lowe, 22 years old, of 336 Pearl Street; John Petorora, 20 years old, of 153 East Houston Street, and Fred Zimpelman, 20 years old, of 236 East Fifty-sixth Street. Joseph Feldman, the complainant, charged that they had demanded money for the defense of "Dopey Benny" Fein. Feldman said the three men visited him on June 2 and threatened to explode a bomb at his place if he did not give them $100.

Assembled "Sixes" must come down in price.

But they cannot come up to the Studebaker SIX manufactured quality.

The very hugeness of Studebaker SIX production is reason enough.

No car produced in smaller quantities can have manufacturing advantages like Studebaker's.

The largest, most complete laboratory in the automobile industry—one that specifies formulas, analyzes and tests steels constantly, one that determines the exact number and kind of heat treatments required to bring out strength and hardness.

The best organized and most efficient engineering department in the industry—the only one in active charge of car manufacturing.

These various factors make the Studebaker SIX the greatest motor car value in the world—at any price.

TRIPPED ON STREET RIGHTS

Free Speech Men Learn Property Owners Own Highways—White Plains Prisoners Bailed.

While the residents of White Plains were congratulating themselves last night on being rid of the I. W. W. invaders who had been held in their jail for a week after invading Tarrytown, F. R. Pierson, President, and the six men associated with him on the Tarrytown Board of Trustees, were throwing open the doors of a Trustees' meeting for the hottest free speech wrangle the village had ever known.

The advocates of free speech from New York attempted to tell the Trustees what they said was their "grievance against Tarrytown." And from the Trustees they were forced to hear Tarrytown's grievance against the recent invasions it had had to undergo.

Mr. Pierson told the sympathizers of the I. W. W. that Tarrytown felt aggrieved because it was called "John D.'s town." He said it was not John D. Rockefeller's town. He said that Mr. Rockefeller did not pay a cent of taxes there and had no interest in the village.

The Village President also notified the I. W. W. invaders, through their representatives, who had appeared to present again a petition for a permit to hold a public meeting in the streets, that the town had a grievance against them because they tried to identify it with all of the iniquities of the industrial world and to picture its citizens, "none of whom held a brief for John D. Rockefeller," as being the oil man's servants and retainers.

After five free-speech advocates had been allowed to talk until they were tired the debate between them and the Trustees became personal and centred upon the rights of persons in the public highway. Theodore Schroeder called C. S. Davison, the chief legal adviser of the Tarrytown Trustees, a "pin head," and in return Mr. Davison put him through a cross-examination about the New York State laws relating to rights in the highway that completely stumped him.

Admits He Is Wrong.

Schroeder had to admit, in a confused manner, that he had an entirely wrong impression about the laws regarding the streets of Tarrytown and that he felt forced to agree that the situation there was entirely different from the situation in New York.

It was nearly 7 o'clock when the Tarrytown people heard that Arthur Caron and his companions, including Becky Edelson, had been released on bail in White Plains and had departed quietly for New York. They were beginning to feel that the last of the trouble from invaders was over, when a train landed in Tarrytown a delegation of five "free-speech advocates." They were Leonard Abbott, President of the Free Speech League; Theodore Schroeder, Upton Sinclair, Frank Lowe, President of the Live and Let Live League, and Geo. Hiram Mann, a lawyer of 71 Wall Street, representing the Live and Let Live League.

What Happened in Seattle.

Sinclair told of the free-speech fight in Spokane, Washington, and remarked that "two months after the men were clubbed and jailed the Chief of Police, while sitting at home with his family, was shot and killed by a mysterious assassin who has not been located to this day. He told of many other killings of Judges and officials that had occurred in free-speech fights.

"That is what happens when you bottle men up," he insisted.

"I speak to you earnestly," said Sinclair, "because our country is imperiled as it has never been before by the forces that work against the poor man's rights. I fear you do not comprehend the danger of abridging the rights of free speech."

Sinclair said he had explained the Tarrytown situation to Dr. Georg Brandes, the Danish critic, who had "expressed his utter consternation that such a thing could happen in America." He wrote the following letter, according to Sinclair, who presented it to the trustees:

> To the Trustees of Tarrytown: I have visited your land of liberty and seen your beautiful statue in the haven of New York. I hope that in this crisis your action will be such as not to injure the reputation of your country as the "sweet land of liberty." Freedom of speech seems to me to be one of the most precious rights of humanity. I must ask your pardon that I, a stranger, dare to meddle in your affairs.
> Sincerely yours, GEORG BRANDES.

Rights in the Streets.

Schroeder, who was the second visitor to get a hearing, was asked as a lawyer to tell the "plain country folks" what he knew about legal precedents. He was informed that the Village Trustees were acting under legal advice.

"Well, it's from a pinhead," he declared, and he then told how New York City permitted free speech in public parks.

"But, unfortunately," put in Mr. Pierson, "we poor laymen up here have no such right. Why, we haven't a single foot of unoccupied land in town that the community owns. The title to our streets is not in the Trustees of the Village, but is held by the abutting property owners. The rights we have in the streets are merely easements covering the right of traffic to pass over them. New York owns its streets, the property owners own ours. We have no squares, parks, or public places."

That comment caught Mr. Schroeder unawares. He said he had never heard before of a village that didn't own its streets. Mr. Pierson advised him to study the ancient land laws and land titles as they existed in Tarrytown.

As Schroeder retired somewhat abashed, Mann launched into a tirade against Sinclair, the I. W. W., the anarchists, and all agitators. He said that Mrs. Inez Boissevain and Amos Pinchot were prominent members of his league and that "this anarchistic bunch was only too glad to get a lot of villagers to be chumps enough to deny it free speech."

He said hat he knew from experience, since he was an American and a Republican, that wherever the anarchists had been left unmolested they lost their audiences and their propaganda fizzled. "Big Bill" Haywood had expressed to him personally his sorrow because Police Commissioner Woods had ceased clubbing the anarchists in New York.

Clubbing and Converts.

"Haywood told me," Mann continued, "that with the clubbing came the converts, and after there was no more martyrdom there were no more additions to the ranks."

Police Commissioner Hopkins of Tarrytown interjected a suggestion that "if we allow these anarchists to come back here they will be mobbed by 95 per cent. of our people, and it will cost the village a large sum to hire policemen enough to protect them."

"Oh, go fishing with your policemen," put in Sinclair. "Go away and let me alone with the people of Tarrytown. I will speak to them and take my chances with them any day."

From suggestions made by several of the Trustees, it appeared that Tarrytown had decided to establish a free speech forum in some lot, permission for the use of which had been obtained from the owner. The visitors were sent away with a notice that the Trustees would give further consideration to the question on Wednesday night.

TO UNITE PRINTING TRADES.

Stereotypers' Convention to Consider Closer Co-operation of Unions.

The International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union met in convention in the Musicians' Temple on Plain Street, Newark, yesterday, with about 120 delegates from many of the large cities in the United States and Canada present. The convention will come to a close on Saturday. The principal subject which is to be considered by the convention is that of a closer co-operation with the Typographical Union, the International Printing Pressmen, and the Assistants' Union, the International Photo-Engravers Union, and the International Brotherhod of Bookbinders.

In his annual report President Freel said that for some time past members of the five printing trade unions had advocated the making of an agreement providing for closer relations, the fundamental objects of which should be to establish and conserve industrial peace in all of the offices employing printing trade craftsmen, to give mutual assistance when difficulty was forced on any one of the five, and to safeguard the recognized jurisdictional rights of each.

Negotiations for an arbitration agreement between international unions and the International Associatiton of Employing Electrotypers, an organization which employs 75 per cent. of the electrotypers in North America, formed another chapter in Mr. Freel's report.

The financial condition of the international was very good, said Mr. Freel, despite the fact that during the past year it had to finance lockouts in New Haven.

SAYS BULL MOOSE ARE FOR WHITMAN

Lantry Denies Robinson's Statement That Progressives Don't Want Him to Run.

HEARST STAND A SURPRISE

Bird Asserts He Supposed Independence Leaguer Would Be Tammany's Senate Candidate.

With the publication yesterday of a letter written by Theodore Douglas Robinson, Chairman of the Progressive State Committee, to Bull Moose County Chairmen and district leaders throughout the State, it became known that Mr. Robinson had ordered his Progressive lieutenants to sound public sentiment in their districts with a view to ascertaining what support Col. Theodore Roosevelt might expect outside of his own party if he was to be the Progressive candidate for Governor.

Notwithstanding an overwhelming demand among the Progressives that the Colonel should run this Fall, it is not believed that he will take the risk if the answers to Mr. Robinson's inquiry are disappointing. And even should the Colonel himself be willing to make a losing fight in order to keep his party in New York State on the Progressive map for 1916, it is not thought likely that George W. Perkins and the Bull Moose leaders in other States would sanction any such adventure. With them, "safety first" has been the slogan whenever the question has been up for discussion in the Bull Moose councils.

Here is Mr. Robinson's letter, which was sent out as a result of action taken when the Advisory Board of the Progressive State Committee met in this city on last Friday afternoon:

> My Dear Sir: Owing to numerous newspaper articles appearing lately, most of them without foundation of fact, I am sending you the inclosed statement I made yesterday in connection with the Whitman candidacy. Do not be uneasy over anything you may see in the newspapers, for the press is merely trying to do all it can to injure our party.
>
> Not one of the Progressive leaders that I know of favors the nomination of Mr. Whitman on the Progressive ticket.
> We must stick to what we set out to do, and that is to see that our platform and principles are enacted into law, and we cannot accomplish that end by trading with either the Republican or Democratic State organization.
>
> What is the sentiment in your district regarding the possible nomination of Col. Roosevelt for Governor? I know the Progressives are for him to a man, but what I particularly want to know is how much support can we expect from the independent voters?
>
> I should like to hear from you at your earliest convenience as to your views of the State situation.
>
> A State conference will be held within the next few weeks, probably at Utica.
>
> Very sincerely,
> T. D. ROBINSON, State Chairman.

The letter was not made public by Mr. Robinson. In fact, the Progressive leader showed signs of anger when he learned that its contents had become known. It was given out by Francis J. Lantry, a former Tammany district leader, who joined the Progressives and was made Bull Moose leader of the Sixteenth Assembly District, where, before he had lorded it as Tammany's representative.

Mr. Robinson, in his communication to the Progressive district leaders, asserted that so far as he knew, not a single Progressive leader was for Progressive indorsement of District Attorney Charles S. Whitman as a candidate for Governor. Mr. Whitman, in all probability, will be the Republican nominee.

Mr. Lantry, in making public Chairman Robinson's letter, handed out his reply, in which he came out unqualifiedly for Mr. Whitman's candidacy, thus taking issue with what Chairman Robinson had written. Here is the Lantry letter:

> June 8, 1914.
> Mr. T. Douglas Robinson,
> National Progressive Party,
> 32 Washington Square West,
> New York City.
> Sir: Answering yours of June 3, from which I quote, "Not one Progressive leader I know of favors the nomination of Mr. Whitman on the Progressive ticket," I want to assure you that I, as leader of the Progressive Party of the Sixteenth Assembly District, am unqualifiedly in favor of the nomination of Mr. Whitman on the Progressive ticket and of his election to the Governorship.
>
> I know that he has given this county an absolutely non-partisan and non-political administration of the office of District Attorney, and I believe that he is needed in Albany to carry on the work which he has begun here.
>
> I also know that the vast majority of the Progressives in my district and in a number of other districts in the city are strongly for him, and I believe that should he be a candidate in the Progressive primaries no one, except Col. Roosevelt himself, would be successful against him.
>
> As regards your statement that he was the Tammany candidate at the last election, permit me to recall to your mind that he was also enthusiastically nominated in the Progressive conference and was strongly supported by all parties.
>
> Very truly yours,
> FRANCIS J. LANTRY.

"It is peculiar," said Chairman Robinson, "that a letter which was personal and confidential should be made public before an answer had been received by me. All that I care to say without having had an opportunity to see Mr. Lantry's reply is that I have now found one Progressive leader who is for Mr. Whitman."

Discussing a letter written to Mr. Whitman by ex-Assistant District Attorney Charles H. Duell, Jr., in which Mr. Duell informed the District Attorney that he was starting on an up-State tour to enlist support at the Progressive primaries for Mr. Whitman and would call a conference of Progressive leaders at Syracuse toward the end of next month, Mr. Robinson said: "I do not think the Syracuse hotels will be crowded by Progressives when Mr. Duell holds his conference, if he ever does, which I doubt."

"Whitman hasn't got a Chinaman's chance in the Progressive primaries," said County Chairman Francis W. Bird.

Mr. Bird said that the statement made by William Randolph Hearst, in which the former Independence League leader denounced both the Republican and Democratic machine, Tammany leader Murphy, Republican Chairman Barnes and United States Senator Elihu Root, and intimated that under certain circumstances he might support a Progressive, surprised him.

"I had supposed that Hearst was to be the Tammany candidate for United States Senator if Glynn would run for Governor on the Democratic ticket," said Mr. Bird.

Political authorities reading between the lines of the Hearst statement, in which the Independence Leaguer disavowed any aspirations to a seat in the Senate, said that to them the statement meant that Mr. Hearst was a red-hot candidate for the nomination for United States Senator on the Democratic ticket and that he launched his anti-Barnes and anti-Root talk at this time with a view to scaring the Republicans from nominating Senator Root, whose strength Mr. Hearst is thought to fear, for a second term in the United States Senate.

From the Richmond County Progressive Committee came unequivocally a call for Col. Roosevelt to become the Progressive candidate for Governor when the County Committee gave a dinner at the Hotel St. George on Saturday night. At this dinner former Progressive State Chairman William H. Hotchkiss, Judge W. L. Ransom and Bainbridge Colby made speeches in which they asserted that it was the Colonel's clear duty to assume the leadership in the Progressive fight in this State this Fall.

GLYNN TO GET DEGREES.

Two Institutions Will Honor Him on a Busy Commencement Tour.

ALBANY, June 8.—Gov. Glynn plans to leave Albany tomorrow and speak at commencement exercises at Fordham University tomorrow night and at Syracuse University on Wednesday. He will inspect the Palisades Interstate Park on Thursday and will then go to New York, where he will remain Friday. He will attend the international polo match at Meadow Brook on Saturday.

Gov. Glynn on Sunday will deliver an address at the Flag Day exercises of a Brooklyn fraternal order. He will leave for Washington on the next day and speak at the commencement exercises at Georgetown University. On the following Wednesday he will attend the commencement exercises at St. Peter's College in Jersey City.

The degree of Doctor of Laws will be conferred on Gov. Glynn by Syracuse and Georgetown Universities.

MORTALITY RATE LOWER.

1,291 Deaths Reported for Week—Fewer Infants Succumb.

There were 1,291 deaths and a death rate of 12.06 per 1,000 of the population reported by the Department of Health for the past week, as against 1,447 deaths and a rate of 14.05 during the corresponding week of 1913, an absolute decrease of 156 deaths and of 1.99 points in the weekly rate, which is equivalent to a relative decrease of 213 deaths.

Viewed from the point of age grouping, there was a large decrease in the mortality among infants under one year, there being 91 less deaths reported at this age. The only age group that showed an increased mortality was that of over 65 years of age, there being 39 more deaths reported.

The death rate for the first twenty-three weeks of 1914 was 15.15 per thousand of the population, a decrease of .21 of a point compared with the corresponding period of 1913.

POLO GAME PUT OFF UNTIL SATURDAY

ENGLISHMAN'S EYE CLOSED

British Team's Star Player Would Not Have Been Able to Compete To-day in International Match.

The first polo game of the International Cup series, which was to have been played between the American and English teams at Meadow Brook today, has been postponed until next Saturday. The postponement was made by the Polo Association yesterday because of the injury to Capt. Leslie St. C. Cheape on Sunday, which was so serious that it would have been impossible for him to play today.

The announcement made by Secretary William A. Hazard was as follows:

> Owing to the fact that Capt. Cheape of the English team injured his eye very badly yesterday, it has been decided to postpone the game scheduled for tomorrow until Saturday, June 13, when the first game of the series will be played at 4 o'clock.

Chairman H. L. Herbert of the Polo Committee stated that the postponement was made at the request of the American players, who said they did not want to play the British four when it was not at its full strength. Lord Wimborne did not ask for the postponement, Chairman Herbert explained.

Capt. Cheape's right eye was in bad condition yesterday. Dr. L. N. Lanehard found it closed, and he stated that it would at least be twenty-four hours before the injured player would be able to see clearly. Dr. Lanehard stated that although the nose was not broken, the cartilage was dislocated and there was a deep gash cut under the eye by the impact of the polo ball from H. C. Phipps's mallet.

Last night Dr. Lanehard said that he thought Capt. Cheape would be able to play with the English team in Saturday's game.

Chairman Herbert also announced that the tickets for the first, second, and third games will be good when presented in the proper order, regardless of the dates. It has not been decided on what day next week the second game will be played.

The postponement will give the other English players more time for practice. A few days ago, Lord Wimborne asked for additional time for his players to get into better shape, but the Polo Association would not grant the request. Both teams will probably practice on alternate days during the week.

In order to keep in form until Saturday, the American four had a practice game at Field 2 at Meadow Brook yesterday. The cup defenders had as opponents a strong picked team, which included, at different times, J. Watson Webb, C. C. Rumsey, Malcolm Stevenson, Joshua Crane of Boston, and A. J. E. Traill, the Argentine player, who is a member of the Hurlingham challenging team.

The defenders displayed perfection in teamwork, and their ponies had plenty of speed, despite the fact that the turf was somewhat soft from a shower that fell before the commencement of the game. They won by a score of 11½ to 4 goals.

Rene La Montagne hit 8 goals, J. M. Waterbury 3, and Milburn 1. Milburn was penalized half a goal for the only foul of the game. The scratch team could not work effectively against the new "big four."

The English team will play on the J. S. Phipps field at Westbury this afternoon.

SCHOONMAKER SUIT HALTED

Interruption of Divorce Trial May Mean a Settlement.

The suit of Mrs. Grace Llewellyn Schoonmaker against Frank Laying Schoonmaker for divorce, was halted abruptly before Justice Giegerich in the Supreme Court yesterday and it was placed on the indefinite calendar, where it could be called again at any time. It was thought that Mrs. Schoonmaker would be called to testify and the courtroom was crowded.

Efforts to discover whether the halting of the trial meant that a settlement was in sight met with failure. Before the suit was begun attempts were made to stifle publicity. They having failed and the case having been called for trial the expectation was that it would go on to the end.

Mrs. Schoonmaker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Eaton. It was due largely to the activities of her brother, Walter Bradley Eaton, that alleged misconduct of Mr. Schoonmaker was discovered.

NO COUNTRY WANTS COHEN.

Insane Immigrant May Stay on Ellis Island Till He Dies.

Nathan Cohen, 35 years old, born in Russia, is at Ellis Island at the expense of the Lamport & Holt steamship agents, waiting until the United States Government has decided what is to be done with him. He was brought to this country from Brazil on the steamship Vestris on March 6, 1912, and allowed to land and proceed to Baltimore, where he had friends. A year later he developed insanity, and was ordered to be deported under the three-year alien limit, and the Lamport & Holt Line had to send him back to Brazil. There the immigration authorities refused to permit Nathan to land.

On his return to New York in the Fall, Nathan was taken to Ellis Island, and later sent to Russia at the expense of the Lamport & Holt Line, as it had brought him to this country in the first place. The Russian officials would not allow him to land there, as he had no papers to show that he was born in that country, so Nathan was sent back once more to New York. On March 7 of this year he was deported again to Brazil on the steamer Van Dyck in the hope that he would be allowed to go to relatives at Port Allegre, who would look after him.

The Brazilian officials were adamant in their refusal to allow the man to land, and he arrived back in New York on the Van Dyck and was taken to Ellis Island, where he will stay in the hospital for the rest of his days as the guest of the steamship company unless the authorities in Washington take some steps in the matter to be decide what is to be done with Nathan Cohen.

Reporter Enters West Point.

Frank C. Jedlika, who worked as a newspaper reporter while fitting himself for admission to West Point, left his home in Elmhurst yesterday to begin his duties as a cadet. He was appointed from the Long Island City-Newtown Congressional District by Congressman Denis O'Leary. He is a graduate of the Newtown High School and a member of the Arista League of that school and also holds a Regents diploma.

TAFT SHOWS WHY SOCIALISM FAILS

SPEAKS AT NEW HARMONY

NEW HARMONY, Ind., June 8.—Reasons for the failure of experiments in socialism were discussed by William H. Taft today in an address delivered at the centennial celebration of the founding of New Harmony. This town probably is the most famous of places in the United States where the exponents of socialistic and community ideas have tried to prove the practical value of their theories.

"The most notable socialistic experiment, that of Robert Owen, at New Harmony failed as all socialism must fail," said Mr. Taft, "because it found no substitute for the motive essential to arouse and make constant human effort that is furnished by the institution of private property and the shaping of reward by competition and natural economic adjustment. The plan was based on the assumption that man was a different being from what he is. If he were so perfect that his love of human kind would banish selfishness from every one in human form and retain in him the same energy, self-sacrifice, and industry in behalf of others that he now manifests in behalf of himself and those near to him, then there would be no need for the organization of a socialistic community because we would have it at hand. Until men are perfect beings of this kind, socialism must either constitute a tyranny so rigid as to destroy not only the right of liberty and to interfere with the pursuit of happiness, or it must be a failure."

Founding of Owen Community.

New Harmony, as Mr. Taft described, was the centre of two experiments in socialism of very different types. The first of these, started a hundred years ago by George Rapp, a German mechanic, was in motive primarily religious. The Rappites were classed by the speaker with the Shakers, the Zoarites, the Communes of Amana, the Commune of Bethel, and Aurora and the Oneida Community.

"They were all successful for years," said Mr. Taft, "in the simple methods of manufacture and agriculture to which their members devoted themselves. They are not examples useful for the sociological student in considering present-day socialism because their members had not before them the working out of a new plan for society and social progress, but rather a method of living a satisfactory religious community existence. In the intensity of their religious motive was found a spur to industry and self-sacrifice and a substitute for the institution of private property which such communities abolished. Until other forms of socialism find such a substitute they are likely to prove futile, as the history of several instances of practical trials has demonstrated."

The Rappites of New Harmony sold out their land to Robert Owen and his partners in 1825. The community Rapp founded was a heterogeneous collection of many different elements. Confusion finally resulted; the various factions asked Owen to exercise his powers as a Dictator until they could reach a satisfactory adjustment. Five or six different constitutions were adopted within two years. Then Owen had an open breach with one of his principal partners over the adoption of the Pestalozzi method of school teaching. The community disintegrated, but the Owenses remained in New Harmony and the family became leaders in the political and social life of the State.

Many Other Experiments.

"The Owenite community at New Harmony," said Mr. Taft, "was only one of a number of similar communities inaugurated to carry out the principles of one social philosopher or another. Into them entered many noble men and women with high purpose and with the conviction that the secret of the regeneration of society and the world had been committed to them and was about to be revealed in convincing realization. There were other Owenite experiments, one at Yellow Springs, Ohio; another at Haverstraw, in New York; another at Coxsackie, in the same State, and a third at Canton, Ohio, the Kendal Community. Then followed the disciples of Charles Fourier. His theory was not purely Socialistic, but a kind of a compromise of a scheme of harmony between capital and labor in which he gave to all laborers a choice and variety of occupations, short hours, and sought to make labor attractive. The various communities were called Phalanxes. The famous Brook Farm at West Roxbury, Mass., was one of these. There were many others, but in ten years or less they were no more. Another Frenchman, Etienne Cabot, described what he called a voyage in Icaria, which gave his ideal of a community on a communistic and socialistic basis. This led to the attempt to etablish a settlement in Texas, another one in Illinois, and a third in Iowa, called Icarian Communities, but they too faded out.

"No one can read the history of these isolated efforts in the direction of a regeneration of society on the socialistic principle and the abolition of the institution of private property without a most wholesome lesson. They teach the danger of destroying what we have that is good in society and that has been tested by time in order to seek a millennium which must rest for its successful achievements on the elimination of all the elements of human nature as we know it and a reforming of it that is possible only after hundreds of centuries."

LESSON IN LINCOLN'S LIFE.

Henry Clews Delivers an Address on the Emancipator.

Henry Clews addressed students of the Flushing High School yesterday on Abraham Lincoln, of whom he was a friend.

"In the study of Lincoln's career," he said, "there is much that may be learned by young people. Above all, there is the great lesson you no doubt have already learned here in this great temple of education, and that is that in Abraham Lincoln's life you can grasp the great significance of the Declaration of Independence—all men are born equal.

"Those who knew Lincoln best say he was unlike any other great man they had ever known or read of, owing to the mixtures of forces and qualities in him, the ideal and lofty with the rough and commonplace."

OPEN NEW POLICE STATION.

First Squadron Is Sent Out to Patrol the 62d Precinct.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the first squad of men were sent out on patrol from the new Bronx police station in Simpson Street, between Westchester Avenue and 167th Street. The police station is the headquarters for a new precinct, which has ninety-nine miles of streets. The precinct will be numbered 62, and is made up of parts of the Sixty-third, the Sixty-fifth, and the Sixty-ninth Precincts, known as the Morrisania, Tremont, and Westchester Stations, respectively.

FAINTS AT POSS TRIAL.

Nurse Collapses in Court—Defendant's Son Threatens Lawyer.

Miss Alice Marcille, a trained nurse, was the last witness yesterday afternoon before Justice Donnelly and a jury in the Supreme Court in the suit of Frank R. Poss, who is suing his wife, Mrs. Lillian K. Poss, for a divorce. It had been a trying time for her while the lawyers hammered at her. She appeared in behalf of Mrs. Poss, and testified that she occupied a small furnished room in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Poss at the Clarendon. Mr. Poss, who is the Vice President of the Detroit Baseball Club and a wealthy dealer in automobile supplies, sat directly in front of her and watched her closely.

Percy M. Thorne, head of the Manufacturers' Coal and Utilities Company, has been named by Poss in the suit, and Miss Marcille had to tell everything that occurred in the apartment on the night Mr. Poss and several companions broke in and found Mrs. Poss in sleeping apparel. Mr. Thorne was not there at the time, but Miss Marcille testified he had been there earlier in the night.

Miss Marcille, very thin and intensely nervous, was not capable of speaking loud enough for the jurors to hear her plainly. At 4 o'clock a juror asked a question, and this led to other questions by Abraham Levy, counsel for Mr. Poss, so that she was kept in the witness chair for twenty minutes longer. Just as her examination was concluded she fainted, and Clerk Dunn ran toward her with a glass of water. Mr. Levy and George Gordon Battle, counsel for Mrs. Poss, were greatly perturbed. Miss Marcille had just recovered and Mrs. Poss was gently leading her from the court room when Bernard Duffy, a son of Mrs. Poss by a former marriage, approached Mr. Levy in a threatening manner.

"You are not a gentlemen," he said, edging closer to the lawyer. Mr. Dunn got between them and ordered the court officers to clear the room. Mr. Levy walked away from Mr. Duffy, who was ordered away. He went reluctantly, and then Mr. Levy left. The case will be continued today.

APPEAL FOR MRS. FEROLA.

Notice of appeal in the case of Madelina Ferola, convicted for the murder of her lover, Carmello Canestrala, and now in Sing Sing waiting to be put to death, was served on District Attorney Martin of the Bronx yesterday. The notice served as a stay of execution. The execution had been set for the week of July 6, as in the case of ex-Lieut. Charles Becker.

Mrs. Ferola was the first person to be tried for first degree murder in Bronx County. She stabbed Canestrala at Park Avenue and 149th Street on the night of Dec. 29, 1913. There was no room in the Sing Sing death house for her, and Warden Clancy placed her in a special cell in an annex.

Hanson Takes Up New Work.

Bert Hanson, recently appointed by President Wilson to be Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Government's tariff litigation, assumed the duties of his new position yesterday. Mr. Hanson served as Third Deputy Police Commissioner from January, 1907, to June, 1909. He succeeds William L. Wemple, who has formed a law partnership with John Crimm of 30 Broad Street.

Woman Lawyers Elect Officers.

LONGSHOREMEN TELL OF THEIR HARD LIFE

Industrial Relations Commission Discovers Why They Drink.

HAVE MUCH IDLE TIME

"Do You Wonder That Anarchy Grows?" Commissioner Garretson Asks After Hearing Them.

The life that the longshoreman lives in this city and the difference in his condition and those prevailing in the same calling in Liverpool and Hamburg were the subjects for the inquiry yesterday of the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations at the City Hall. There is no calling in the world about which so little is known, asserted Charles Kiehn, a Hoboken longshoreman and union leader, and the commission was particularly anxious to see if more could be required from the steamship companies for the benefit of the men.

John P. Riley, general organizer of the Longshoremen's Union, began by stating there were about 45,000 men employed in the work of the port, and that at 30 cents an hour for day work, 50 cents for night work and 60 cents for Sundays and holidays, they managed to make about $9 or $10 a week. They have to wait about for jobs, and this leads them to drink.

"Their reputation for drinking," Mr. Riley said, "is true to some extent. They have to wait hours for a ship to dock. The longshoremen's rest is inadequate; they can't eat their lunches on a pier, so they must go to a saloon."

Then came up the question of accidents. The men are reluctant to report them, the witness said, as if they happened too often to a man they would reflect on his skill. Exposure to all sorts of weather also hit them hard.

"Pneumonia, tuberculosis and rheumatism are prevailing diseases and they are the result of the longshoreman's calling. It will bring down the strongest constitution in ten years," he said.

Capt. John Watson, assistant general pier superintendent of the International Mercantile Marine, did not alter materially the picture of toil along the docks given by the former witness. He thought the men employed at the piers in the Chelsea district, where the ocean liners come in, make about $15 a week, but the average for the entire port would be $10 or $12. He also said that he thought the standard of the longshoremen had deteriorated in the last ten years, the Italian having displaced the brawny Irishman.

Asked about the method adopted for the hiring of men in Liverpool, where they were taken on at definite hours only, he explained that it was possible there, as the vessels have to pass through a system of locks to reach their basins, but it would not work in an open port like New York. In reply to questions about the compensation paid the men for injuries, he said: "Subscriptions are taken up among the men themselves. The companies generally pay the collectors while they are raising these funds."

The same question concerning compensation was pressed upon S. W. Ridgway, manager of the steamship operating department of the International Mercantile Marine, and he said that each case was considered separately and, as a rule, the men received a fair proportion of their week's wages.

"Then," said Commissioner Garretson, "if a man lost two fingers and was laid off six weeks, he might get a month's pay and be two weeks and two fingers out?"

"Yes," said Mr. Ridgway.

"And if his head was cut off he wouldn't get anything and would die on his own time?"

"I suppose so."

"Do you wonder that anarchy grows?" asked Mr. Garretson.

In the afternoon Timothy Carroll, who had worked as a longshoreman in Liverpool, outlined the system by which the men there are hired on the water front at 7 A. M., 1 P. M., and 7 P. M. only, and he said that if a stevedore needs any more men between these hours he must go to a labor exchange. No man could be engaged for less than half a day's pay. Asked to compare other conditions in New York and Liverpool, Mr. Carroll replied with heat:

"It's like Chinese labor here to what it is in Liverpool. The foreman is after you all the time, bullying you and cursing you. He doesn't seem to think you are men; he treats you like a dog."

The witness explained that about half as many men again are hired for a job in Liverpool as here, and revealed a personal grievance.

"We get some excuse for drinking," he said. "They hired me for a job on the Red Star pier, and I spoiled a new pair of pants I had on. Then they turned me off after I had earned just 48 cents."

"What brought you here?" Mrs. J. Borden Harriman asked.

"Why, $3.30 a day attracted me. It sounded big when you were getting $1.25."

"And why don't you go back?" asked Chairman Walsh. "I don't intend to be personal, and you needn't answer it, if you don't want to."

"Well, I had money when I came out. I don't want to go home broke."

Further evidence on the longshoremen of the port will be taken this morning.

TO PROTEST AGAINST THUGS

Property Owners Near 65th Street Will Take Complaint to Mayor.

Property owners about Broadway and Sixty-fifth Street are arranging for a committee to ask Mayor Mitchel and Police Commissioner Woods to act against a gang of gunmen and toughs which infests that neighborhood.

Early yesterday morning six shots were fired through a big window in the store of Charles B. Gosse, a decorator at 136 West Sixty-fifth Street, in a pistol fight. Although the scene is near a fixed post, the police knew nothing of it until told by the owner of the glass.

Frequent complaints have been sent to the police of a crowd of ex-convicts who rendezvous in a near-by saloon. Despite these complaints, property owners say no action has been taken by the police.

HOTELS VIOLATE RACE LAW.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 8.—Attorney General Carmody said today that he would ask the District Attorneys of various counties in the State to prosecute the managers of Summer resorts who were advertising that any of their accommodations would be refused any person on account of his race, creed, or color.

Mr. Carmody said that several resorts were advertising these discriminations in violation of law, and that he was determined the proprietors should be prosecuted.

FOOD FOUND BAD IN INSANE HOSPITAL

"Rots" and "Spots" Among the Eggs, He Testifies—Unclean Conditions in the Kitchen.

The State Hospital Commission began an investigation yesterday of the charges filed in a report made by inspectors to the effect that bad meat and inferior eggs were found stored in the Long Island State Hospital for the Insane, at Clarkson Street near Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn, and that the main kitchen of the institution was worse than that of any other hospital visited by the inspectors. The hearings began in the morning in the assembly room of the hospital, and continued in the afternoon and last night.

The commission consists of Andrew D. Morgan, who presided at the hearings; Frederick H. Parker and Dr. James V. May. At the beginning of the hearings Chairman Morgan announced that the investigation was not for the purpose of filing charges against any one, but to disclose the true state of affairs by a thorough and impartial investigation. Besides the commission, there were present to look after the interests of the State: Deputy Attorney General August Merrill, John H. Delaney, Chairman of the State Commission of Efficiency and Economy; Charles H. Jackson, chief examiner, and Wood D. Loudoun, chief accountant. Hugo Hirsh, President of the Board of Managers of the hospital, personally conducted the cross-examination of witnesses for the hospital.

Inspector on Stand.

Reed J. Snyder, Federal Inspector in the Department of Agriculture, was the first witness examined. He said that he was an Inspector in the Bureau of Chemistry, and that he specialized in the examination of eggs, figs, and cheese. He visited the hospital on March 16 and examined the eggs he found there. In his report, which contains charges of the poor quality of the eggs, he said he examined 135 dozen eggs which he found in the hospital refrigerator. "These eggs, he said, were marked "storage extra firsts" and purchased as such. Out of ten dozen he examined, he declared he found 25 eggs classified as "rots," 75 as "spots," and 20 "weak and cloudy." He found that 20 eggs had broken under the "breaking test," and one did not break. He examined a half dozen cases of eggs in the main kitchen, and said he found nearly all of them inferior.

Snyder testified that he was informed by the storekeeper of the hospital and the kitchen cheff that the eggs used in the hospital were below specifications and were often bad. Mr. Hirsh in his cross-examination of the witness asked him for the names of the persons who gave him this information, but Snyder said he did not know their names, and he did not ask for them at the time he talked to them.

"I had a light luncheon," answered the witness.

The witness was forced to admit that he did not see any of the bad eggs used for food.

Report on the Kitchen.

The report of M. J. Buckley, Inspector of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture, who investigated the condition of the kitchen in the hospital on March 16, was read and admitted as evidence at the hearing yesterday. Mr. Buckley was not present, as he is on a visit to Chicago.

In Mr. Buckley's report he stated that he found that the shelves in the kitchen were filthy and the cooking utensils unclean, and he also saw old shoes, soiled clothing, and dirty books scattered about the kitchen floor. His report stated that out of 300 pounds of pickled beef he examined he found 58 pounds which he condemned as "sour." There were found also 200 pounds of moldy smoked bacon, two tubs of rancid lard, and forty pounds of rancid fats in the main kitchen. He discovered in the storehouse a badly cracked chopping block, with the cracks filled with decaying grease. He said he found unclean conditions in other rooms of the hospital.

Joseph A. Midwood, storekeeper of the hospital, testified that he found the quality of the eggs used in the hospital uniformly good by actual "candling" test. He said he personally made this test on every egg received at the hospital, and reported the result to the steward. He denied that he made any statement to Inspector Snyder about the quality of the eggs used in the hospital. He asserted that the "dropping" test made by Inspector Snyder was made at a height of one foot above the table, instead of from four to six inches. Even under this test, the witness said that many of the eggs only cracked.

WILL CASE TRIAL NO. 5.

Four Times This $100,000 Estate Has Been Before a Jury.

A fourth trial has failed to settle the final disposition of an estate valued at more than $100,000 left by Miss Elizabeth Rintelin, an aged spinster who died in Woodhaven in 1901, leaving her estate to a family named Schaefer and cutting off her nephew, Joseph Rintelin, with $1,000, which he was to forfeit if he contested the will. Two juries brought in verdicts setting aside the will, but these were reversed on appeal and the case sent back for retrial.

On the third trial the jury failed to agree and again on the fourth trial before Justice Scudder in the Queens County Supreme Court the jury failed to agree. Young Rintelin alleges that his aunt was mentally unsound and unduly influenced in making a will in behalf of the Schaefer family, with whom she lived. Another trial will be had shortly.

HERESY CRY AGAIN STIRS PRESBYTERY

VIRGIN BIRTH IN QUESTION

Whether Moses Got Pattern for Tabernacle from God Direct Also Asked—Up to Committee.

The New York Presbytery was torn again yesterday by heresy charges and protests against ordination of Union Seminary candidates. After two hours of discussion, further answer to protests was put up to a committee. The two men around whose beliefs the storm raged were Charles Hall Wicks, a Cornell graduate before coming to Union, and James M. Howard, a Yale man. Both were examined at the April meeting of presbytery, and accepted, and their ordination as Presbyterian ministers was ordered.

The Rev. Dr. John Fox made a protest in April and it was replied to yesterday by a committee. The reply was said to have been prepared by the Rev. Dr. George Alexander. Immediately there was a reply to the answer, and a further answer to this reply was demanded and agreed to.

Mr. Howard, who came from Montclair, was asked whether he believed that Moses saw God on the Mount. The young man pitted St. John's statement against that of Exodus, "No man hath seen God at any time." Asked whether he believed that Moses got the pattern for the tabernacle from God direct, Mr. Howard said he would not commit himself to so mechanical a view of inspiration.

When Mr. Wicks, who came from Cohoes, was asked if he believed the Virgin Birth, he replied that he probably would find no occasion to preach it, "since nobody nowadays preached sermons on such subjects." Still, he added later that he "was more than ever inclined to believe it."

A new protest was lodged by the original maker to the effect that the Presbytery committee had gone again to the candidates and examined them privately instead of in open Presbytery.

St. James Presbyterian Church for Colored People, in Fifty-first Street, near Ninth Avenue, is selling its property for $43,000 because negroes have left that community. Presbyterian Church extension leaders, out of John S. Kennedy funds, wanted to give St. James people an additional $40,000, and with $83,000 in hand go to Harlem and build a Presbyterian church for negroes there.

The plan met with stout opposition. The charge was made that there were only 28,000 negroes resident in Harlem, that there were seven fully organized churches there for them besides eleven other preaching places; that negroes were a migratory band, anyhow, and that there was no reason for giving so much Kennedy money to negroes when white people needed money so badly in many quarters. The matter was referred back to the Extension Committee.

TO THE PUBLIC:

THE State of New York, through its Department of Insurance, has completed the examination of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company which it is required by law to make every three years. The Chief Examiner, in concluding the report, said:

"The treatment by this Company of its policy-holders in the prompt payment of their claims, in the voluntary payment of millions of dollars in bonuses, and in its social welfare work—are features of the Company's business which deserve commendation."

The Superintendent of Insurance, the Hon. William Temple Emmet, in approving the report, wrote an extended review from which we make extracts:

THE COMPANY'S GROWTH AND MANAGEMENT.

"The administrative officers of the Company * * * have so increased the assets of the Company as to make these equal the resources of many states and even nations. They have at the same time steadily cheapened the cost of insurance to policy-holders, both by direct means and by the distribution of bonuses."

[The report shows that the Company has given back $35,367,293 in bonuses to Industrial policy-holders in nineteen years.]

"They have extended the Company's business to such an extent as to bring it into contact now with approximately one-eighth of the population of the United States."

[The number of policies outstanding December 31, 1913, was 13,957,748.]

"That this notable growth has involved no sacrifice of efficiency in the handling of administrative details, but, on the contrary, has been the direct result of constantly increasing efficiency, is shown by the comparatively small losses sustained by the Company in proportion to the large investments made."

ITS POLICY-HOLDERS SATISFIED.

"The fact that the percentage of lapses due to the abandonment of their insurance by policy-holders is constantly decreasing, speaks eloquently to the same effect."

[The lapse ratio of Industrial policies has decreased 31.7 per cent. in eight years.]

"This last mentioned development is perhaps the most convincing evidence which could be offered that the Company's policy-holders are, broadly speaking, very well satisfied indeed with what they get in return for the premiums they pay. A very remarkable showing altogether."

ITS SOCIAL SERVICE.

"This Company waited for no changes in existing law before striking out as a pioneer among insurance companies along the pathway of social service on a huge scale.

"For years it has maintained for its policy-holders a nursing service upon a great scale; this has latterly become a veritable marvel of efficiency and practical helpfulness."

[Metropolitan nurses made 1,127,022 visits to sick policy-holders in 1913, for which the Company paid the bills.]

"Leaving out of consideration the mere numbers of those who have been directly benefited by these activities, I think that the example which the Metropolitan has set to other great business organizations by its early recognition of the new responsibilities attaching to all business enterprises which have attained a certain size, is one of the most beneficial of recent occurrences in the field of American business. For years it has through its publications upon the question of health conservation been serving multitudes of people as a sort of University of beneficial instruction upon this most important subject."

ABREAST OF MODERN THOUGHT.

"This great institution, having so very recently been under our critical scrutiny and presenting so many admirable illustrations of what an efficient and enlightened modern business organization on a large scale can do in the way of keeping abreast of modern thought, seems to be in a position where I may properly use it as an illustration * * * that private initiative and enterprise are at their best still capable of doing the finest possible work in fields from which, latterly, all the talk has been that these agencies should be compelled to retire."

This foot powder, shaken in the shoes of soldiers, has long been in use in the German army, and Uncle Sam's adoption of this form of treating and easing the feet, is in line with the expressions heard daily for more than twenty years, in all parts of the world, from millions of people who are shaking Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder for the feet, into their shoes, as the only practical and lasting treatment for easing and absolutely preventing sore feet. 2 KILLED, 2 INJURED, BY LIGHTNING BOLTS

NINE HEAT PROSTRATIONS

One death from heat and two from bolts of lightning occurred in this city and vicinity yesterday. Many prostrations were reported, especially in the morning, when the humidity was extreme. There were three showers in the day. A thunder and lightning storm, which was light over Manhattan Island but heavier over Staten Island and New Jersey, accompanied the fall of rain between 2 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The dead are:

SVARICH, F., a deckhand, of 582 Eleventh Avenue; overcome by heat while at work yesterday morning on the West Shore Railroad ferryboat Oswego, and died on the boat.

ULERICHT, PAUL, 22 years, a farmhand, of 3,808 Richmond Turnpike, S. I.; killed by lightning on Staten Island.

When the lightning flashed shortly after 2 o'clock, Ulericht and two others were at work on the farm of John Mohlendorff at Linoleumville, S. I. They stayed at work until lightning began to strike around them, and then started on a run for the barn. Ulericht was in the lead, when a bolt struck him and enveloped him in flame. His two companions, who were close behind him, were knocked down and stunned, but they regained their feet and got to shelter. When the storm was over Ulericht was carried to the farmhouse and a physician was summoned, but he was dead. The other two men—John Nelson and Felix Deyeck—were burned severely, and they were taken in an ambulance to St. Vincent's Hospital at West Brighton.

Santa Fargara, a teamster of 149 Oak Street, was killed in Yonkers by lightning yesterday afternoon while driving a team for the Valley Farms Company. Fargara was hurrying to shelter from the shower when a bolt hit him, hurling him from the seat of his wagon and killing him.

One of the horses was stunned, but recovered. A steel wire in the brim of the man's derby is believed to have served as a conductor for the lightning. The top of the hat was burned off.

Prostrated by the Heat.

HENRY, PATRICK, 29 years old, a watchman, of 436 East Sixty-sixth Street; overcome at Sixty-sixth Street and Broadway and removed to the Polyclinic Hospital.

LACASTIO, GIUSEPPE, 30 years old, a laborer, living in East 108th Street; overcome while at work yesterday afternoon in West 151st Street, near Broadway, and removed to Washington Heights Hospital.

UNIDENTIFIED Italian, about 20 years old; overcome at First Avenue and Sixtieth Street and removed to Flower Hospital.

ZELLER, EDWARD, 54 years old, a cook, of 202 West Eleventh Street; overcome yesterday morning at Sixty-second Street and Second Avenue and removed to Flower Hospital.

Only one case of heat prostration was reported in Brooklyn. Garrett Walsh, 75 years old, of 16 Tiffany Place, was overcome at Lawrence Street and Myrtle Avenue. He was attended by an ambulance surgeon from Brooklyn Hospital and went to his home.

Humidity Drops in Afternoon.

The number of deaths and prostrations would have been far greater probably had it not been for a decided drop in the humidity after 11 o'clock in the morning. At 8 o'clock the humidity was 85 per cent. and the temperature 70 degrees. At 9 o'clock the humidity was 88 per cent., the highest figure attained in the day, while the thermometer recorded 71 degrees. At 10 o'clock the humidity was 87 per cent. and the temperature 73 degrees; at 11 o'clock the humidity was 85 per cent. and the temperature 77 degrees.

Between 11 o'clock and 12 there was a jump of five degrees in temperature, but the same hour brought relief, for in that period the humidity dropped from 85 to 65 per cent. The highest temperature for the day was at 1:30 o'clock, when the thermometer registered 83 degrees.

Fair weather to-day and to-morrow, with higher temperature to-morrow, is predicted by the Weather Bureau. There will be moderate east to south winds.

The storm between 2 and 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon was violent in some parts of New Jersey, and wind and lightning did considerable damage. Lightning shattered the flagpole in the yard of Public School 35 in Sipp Avenue, Jersey City, while school was in session, and the principal and teachers had some difficulty in quieting the pupils. The wind blew the roof from the one-story frame house of Philip Schoenberg at 649 Tonel Avenue, Jersey City, but none of the inmates was hurt.

LIGHTNING CAUSES A PANIC.

Bolt Strikes a Pavilion in Atlantic City Park.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 8.—About two thousand persons sought shelter from the storm this afternoon in Steeplechase Park and watched the effect of the lightning on the ocean. A bolt struck one end of the big pavilion in which they were, and men, women, and children ran from the place in a panic, but no one was injured.

A fire started in the end of the building where the lightning had struck, but the employes of the park soon put it out. The storm was one of the heaviest of the year.

TO AVOID TAX ROLL ERRORS.

Property Owners Urged to Make Protests Direct to Tax Board.

The Tax Board has prepared a new form on which owners of real estate who believe their property is overassessed may at any time lodge with the board an unofficial protest against an assessment.

"The Deputy Tax Commissioners," said the Mayor yesterday, "are now in the field making up their figures and suggestions from realty owners will be of value at this time and during the next two or three months. On Oct. 1 the tax rolls will be completed and on view, and from then until Nov. 15 legal protests may be made. It must be obvious that suggestions received before the deputies have made up their final figures will be of greater use than criticisms made after the rolls are completed. It is better to prevent possible mistakes than to correct them.

"Property owners are being circularized by professional 'reducers of taxation' who seek to procure reduction of assessments on a contingency basis. Property owners are advised to make any protest they feel warranted in making to the Tax Board direct. They will get attentive and fair hearing and without cost."

Copies of the new form may be had at the office of the Tax Board in the Hall of Records.

SUFFRAGE IN WALL STREET.

First Weekly Speech at Sub-Treasury Set for Today.

The Women's Political Union, with Miss Helen Todd, a California spellbinder, today will start a weekly siege of the Wall Street district, to last through the month. Miss Todd will speak in front of the Sub-treasury at 12 o'clock noon today, and on every Tuesday through June.

A procession of white-clad women will escort Miss Todd from the Franklin statue at Park Row next Tuesday. The Spirit of 1915, Miss Alberta Hill, carrying the American flag, will head the procession, accompanied by a fifer and drummer and a couple of Boy Scouts. Mrs. Norman DeR. Whitehouse's automobile will be waiting to be used for a rostrum when the procession reaches the Sub-treasury. Miss Todd will hold meetings every Wednesday for the mechanics of the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Tomorrow an automobile bus full of Women's Political Union members—Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, Mrs. Henry Wise Miller, Miss Alice Carpenter, Mrs. Whitehouse, Mrs. E. Livingston Hunt, Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch and others—will start from the Union headquarters at 12:15 P. M. with Rosie Sanderman bugling. The bus will run down Fifth Avenue to Madison Square for a meeting at 12:30 and return uptown, with speeches on the way, winding up at Columbus Arch at 5 P. M.

CALL BARBERS' STRIKE.

Men Quit Work in Lower West Side and Wall Street Shops.

The strike of the barbers for a new time schedule which was ordered on Sunday by the Journeyman Barbers' Syndicate went into effect yesterday morning in the Wall Street district.

After the syndicate's committee had gone over this region it went to the lower west side and called the barbers out in the shops below Trinity Church, including the Italian shops in Rector, Albany and adjoining streets.

MINSKY GETS WATCH WITH A PHOTOGRAPH

BURGLARY CHARGE DROPPED

Theatrical Manager's Wife Tells of Her 2 A. M. Visit to Schwager Flat.

In the West Side Court yesterday Abraham B. Minsky, a theatrical manager, had restored to him his watch and chain, two canes, a hat, a waistcoat, a coat, a wallet containing a check for $100, and several other personal effects which he charged had been taken from his room by his wife, her brother-in-law, Samuel Medler, and a private detective, when on May 23 they raided the apartment of Mrs. May Schwager, from whom Minsky rents a room at 210 West 108th Street.

Minsky thought he had gotten back more than he had lost, for he held up the watch in front of Magistrate Nolan and told him that the photograph of Mrs. Schwager pasted on the inside of the case was not in the watch when he lost it. Mrs. Etta Minsky, wife of the complainant, insisted that the photograph of Minsky's landlady was in the watch when she got possession of it.

Mrs. Schwager accused the raiders of breaking the door and forcing their way into her rooms. Minsky, who said he was out on an errand when the raiders appeared at 2 A. M., returned a few minutes later, and, finding his things gone, gave chase in a taxicab and found his wife and the others in a Subway train at Ninety-sixth Street, with his property in their arms.

"Yes, and he called me a burglar right there in the train, before all those people, humiliating me," testified Mrs. Minsky. "He said I had stolen his things, and some of the passengers remarked in a way to make it appear that they believed him. One of the passengers said: 'How dreadful! And she is such a nice-looking young woman, too.' But when I told the police whom my husband called that I had taken the things to get evidence against him they permitted us to go on, and I kept the things."

Mrs. Minsky, who is the daughter of Herman Feinberg, a retired furrier, lives with her parents at 403 Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn. She and Minsky were married in 1907, and have been separated since 1909.

"I saw a man going toward the fire escape," she replied. Edward Fish, the private detective in the raid, corroborated her, but said he could not see the face of the man who fled. When Minsky was being closely questioned by two other attorneys who appeared for the defendants, Gerard J. Cuocp and William Haskel, he refused to answer, and remarked:

"Instead of a burglary this looks like a divorce trial."

All of the raiders denied breaking the door, asserting that they got in when the door was opened by Mrs. Schwager. Medler, who is President of the Medler Realty Company, at 9 East Forty-seventh Street, and Fish, the private detective, were more annoyed because the police had taken their finger prints than they were concerned over the charges against them, which were changed from burglary to disorderly conduct.

Jesse Brenner, proprietor of a detective agency at 1,441 Broadway, by whom Fish was employed, protested to the Magistrate at his arrest on the charge of receiving stolen goods, because he had taken Minsky's watch at the request of his wife, and had locked it up in his office safe. At the request of Assistant District Attorney Coleman Brenner was honorably discharged, as also were all the others except Medler, who was fined $5 for disorderly conduct.

WOULD STOP LONG SCHOOL VACATION

HELP FOR POOR CHILDREN

Educators Must Become Efficiency Engineers, He Says—Summer Work Very Successful.

It is a question of only a very short time when New York public schools will be run all the year around without any long vacation, according to Dr. Edward W. Stitt, District Superintendent in charge of the recreation centre work of the Board of Education, who spoke at an informal conference of the Public Education Association at the home of Miss C. R. Lowell, 43 East Sixty-fourth Street, last night.

This would seem like bad news to the New York boys and girls who look forward to a Summer vacation as a pleasant rest from their school work. This is not the case, however, Dr. Stitt insists. The recreation centres and Summer edution work has proved so successful that the children, he believes, would not only be benefited by the continuation of school during the Summer, but would actually be pleased by the recreation work being made part of the regular school curriculum.

"Educators must become efficiency engineers," he said, "and work out some plan to help the many children who have no opportunity to go to the country, and who, if no schools are provided, will be idling away their time. In my judgment, it is a question of only a very short time, and the working out of proper plans of administration, when we shall have some all-the-year-around schools, probably on a basis of four terms of twelve weeks each."

Among those who attended the conference were G. W. Wingate and Nicholas J. Barrett, members of the Board of Education; Richard B. Aldcroftt, Jr., former member of the board; Dr. Josephine B. Leo, Jennie E. Rodell, Dr. John A. Beuerman, John Mulligan, Eleanor H. Johnson, Mrs. M. L. Wood, Sara Lewinson, Mrs. John Zimmerman, Mary M. Dammann, Joseph Levine, Victor G. Flinn, John Andres, G. L. Egbert, and Mrs. Harry Hastings, members of local school boards; Mary R. Davis, Mary F. Maguire, Jessie P. Colburn, and Anna Brett, school Principals, and District Supt. John S. Roberts.

City Supt. Maxwell, when interviewed on the matter, said that District Supt. Stitt's prediction that the schools would before long be open all he year round was only the prediction of Mr. Stitt himself."

"I have advocated a shorter vacation," said Dr. Maxwell. "I did so in my annual report for 1912 and 1913. I favored reopening the public schools in August, instead of in September, or making the Summer vacation one month instead of two months."

STORM PREVENTS DEFIANCE'S TRIAL--TENNIS

All three candidates for the honor of defending the America's Cup will be towed from the Sound to the Horseshoe, off Atlantic Highlands, today, in preparation for the opening of the Sandy Hook series tomorrow, Thursday, and Friday. In order to pass under the East River bridges it will be necessary to house or lower the topmast spar on each yacht, and this will be done before the journey is begun. Vanitie will leave City Island at 1 o'clock in tow of her tender, City of Stamford. Resolute will leave Glen Cove at about the same time in tow of her tender, Cape Cod, and Defiance will have two tugboats to guide her when she leaves her moorings at City Island.

The shifting of the scenes of the cup-defense races kept the crews of all three sloops busy yesterday getting the boats in shape, and no sailing whatever was done. Vanitie was unable to go out, owing to the fact that her sails were undergoing a recutting in Ratsey's sail loft at City Island. In Saturday's race off Larchmont, Ratsey, on board Alexander S. Cochran's yacht Mohican, kept close to the winner from start to finish, and his eye was constantly on her canvas. The need of several changes in the mainsail was noted, and there was also room for improvement in the jib and forestaysail.

As soon as the race was won, Vanitie made for City Island and was stripped of her rig. The great spreads of canvas were still being trimmed yesterday and the work will not be finished until this morning.

The tri-city yacht Defiance was whipped into shape in time to give her reduced mainsail and clubtopsail an airing yesterday, but a squall late in the afternoon put all thought of a tuning-up spin out of the question. With these sails set, even though she remained fast to her tow, Defiance heeled perceptibly in a light breeze, and impressed those who saw her as being quite as tender as she was before her mast was shortened and her sail area reduced.

In fact, she appeared a more remarkable boat than ever. The new six-foot spar that projects from her bow is little more than an apology for a bowsprit, and her mainsail, though smaller, has still the exaggerated roach or bulge in the leach which caused comment when she first showed her canvas. The five battens or stiffeners which hold this roach out will have to work overtime when the wind deserts them.

George M. Pynchon, Managing Director of the syndicate that owns Defiance, stood at the wheel while the yacht was towed down the Sound by E. Walter Clark's power yacht, Zipalong. On board with him were Mr. Clark, Treasurer of the syndicate, and George Owen, the designer. They had the mainsail up before they started, and it fitted smoothly for its first day. Although the new wooden mainmast is eight feet shorter, the jaws of the gaff rest only about midway between the deck and the topmast truck, while the peak is hauled high, bringing the mainsail to a sharp point.

Off Execution Light, the clubtopsail was slowly raised for the first time, while a launch from Mr. Clark's schooner, Irolita, took Mr. Owen off a distance so that he might take a good, hard look at the boat's new headgear. When finally in place, this sail reached ten feet or more above the topmast truck, and extended an almost equal distance beyond the tip of the mainsail. It is the loftiest bit of canvas on any of the cup defense candidates, and is evidently intended to do a whole lot of work.

In form, the clubtopsail is almost a perfect V, and when the crew had worked over it for some time they had it fitting as tightly as a drumhead. It has a row of small battens along its leach, and as it caught the wind the vessel listed until six inches of her grayish-white underbody showed.

Defiance was lightened 1,600 pounds yesterday by the removal of two of the four big winches below deck. One of these had been put in for raising the anchor. The two that were left weigh 1,000 pounds apiece, and will be used chiefly in raising the mainsail.

In tomorrow's race Defiance will cast precedent aside and use only her mainsail, clubtopsail, single headsail and spinnaker. She will dispense entirely with jibtopsail and balloner. Furthermore, her spinnaker, unlike those of Vanitie and Resolute, which stretch all the way from the topmast to the deck, will go no higher than her mainmast. It should not be as effective before the wind as the larger canvas of the others.

There was some disappointment on the part of her owners when they turned back for City Island without a trial spin, but they stuck to their determination to start in tomorrow's race and see what Defiance can do in fast company. The sloop got back to her anchorage just as the squall broke, and it was considered lucky that no sailing had been attempted.

LIPTON SURE HE WILL WIN.

Sir Thomas Says "Shamrock IV. Is a Certain Cup Lifter."

SOUTHAMPTON, England, June 8.—"I never felt more confident of winning the cup," said Sir Thomas Lipton tonight, when asked his opinion regarding his new challenger for the America's Cup.

"What I have seen of Shamrock IV. under sail," he continued, "has convinced me that she is a certain cup lifter. When she sails her race for the cup off Sandy Hook, I am absolutely sure she will prove able to do what she was built to do."

The wind was too boisterous today to take out Shamrock IV., challenger for the America's Cup, so instead of having her first real race with the older Shamrock she was docked to prove her measurement at the water line.

Should the weather be fine tomorrow the two boats are to be sent over a thirty-mile course, and the challenger, according to American measurements, must give the trial boat an allowance of 4 minutes 23 seconds.

In reference to the towing of the challenger across the Atlantic, Sir Thomas Lipton has decided not to ask for any favors.

WOMEN'S NATIONAL TENNIS.

PHILADELPHIA, June 8.—With the thermometer hovering around 94 women from all sections of the country started play today in the annual tournament for the women's lawn tennis championship of the United States at the Philadelphia Cricket Club. Notwithstanding the heat, there were few defaults in the preliminary and first round matches. Those eliminated in the preliminary rounds were all local players.

Mrs. Edward Raymond, the metropolitan champion, who last week won the singles, doubles and mixed doubles titles in the Pennsylvania and Eastern States tournament, is looked upon as a strong contender for the national championship, held by Miss Mary Browne of California, who is here to defend her title. Mrs. Raymond easily defeated both her opponents today. In the preliminary round she eliminated Miss Dorothy Disston, Philadelphia, 6-0, 6-2, and in the first round the metropolitan title holder defeated Miss Alberta Webber of New York, 6-0, 6-0.

Other survivors of the first round and who also are considered among the dangerous contenders for the national title include Miss Marie Wagner, New York, the indoor champion; Miss Carrie B. Neely, Chicago; Miss Isabella Pendleton, Cincinnati; Miss Ann W. Sheafe, Boston; Miss Eleanor Carey and Miss Susanne White of Baltimore.

A side issue of the tournament is the men's invasion competition, and among the visiting masculine players is Count Salm of Vienna.

FOR JERSEY TENNIS TITLE.

Rain Curtails Play in the Opening Rounds for the Championship.

Play in the New Jersey State tennis championship yesterday on the courts of the Englewood Field Club at Englewood, N. J., was curtailed materially owing to the storm which visited the tennis courts at the time when the players were preparing for the opening round. Many of the players left for the city, believing that the prospect of competition was at an end for the day.

Several matches, however, were played, and material progress was made in the tournament, and three set matches were the order of the afternoon's competition. Dr. William Rosenbaum, who has been showing exceptional form this year, defeated F. Washburn in a three-set match by the score of 6—3, 2—6, 6—3. Dr. Rosenbaum secured an easy victory in the first set, but let up in the second and allowed his opponent to even matters up. He rallied in the third and deciding set and by accurate placing easily won out.

Walter L. Pate was extended to the limit to win from J. H. Randolph. He easily secured the first set, but in the second Randolph rallied and forced the issue to a vantage, but was unable to maintain his form, and Pate won after a lively competition.

The surprise of the day was the downfall of Allen Tobey, the former Princeton player, who was defeated by Walter Blache in a three-set match. Another surprise was the easy victory of S. Howard Voshell, the Bronx and Manhattan champion, who scored a decisive victory over George S. Groesbeck in straight sets. Groesbeck secured but three games in the two sets.

Three players qualified for the third round. R. H. Palmer won from E. Behar, and T. O. Gavett and O. H. Hinck defeated E. H. Pfeiffer and Reginald F. Wood, respectively, by default.

AMATEUR ATHLETE'S STATUS IS DEFINED

Must Compete "Only for Love of Sport"—Certain Kinds of Prizes Barred.

LYONS, France, June 8.—The definition of an amateur was agreed upon today by a committee of the International Amateur Athletic Federation. It follows closely the definition as prepared in the report of the special committee submitted to the federation congress held at Berlin in 1913, and embraces the following rules:

"2—Competing for money or any other pecuniary reward in any sport considered as athletic sports makes the competitor a professional in all sports considered as athletic sports.

"3—In the event of an amateur competing with or against a professional in any sport, not for money or other pecuniary reward, then the member of the federation to which the athlete belongs shall be the judge of such competitor's status according to its own rules, and its certificate as to the competitor's status shall be accepted by all other members of the federation.

"4—In track and field athletic sports any one who knowingly competes with or against a professional thereby ceases to be an amateur.

"5—One who teaches, trains, or coaches in any sport for money or other pecuniary consideration is a professional, except, however, that so far as competition in his own country, and there only, is concerned, an employe or representative of the State or a school or other educational institution, who teaches, trains, or coaches as an incident to his main vocation or employment, may or may not be a professional, as the member of the federation of the country of such a person shall decide."

Twelve regulations are also set down as an interpretation of the fundamental rules on the violation of which an athlete ceases to be an amateur. They prohibit an amateur from making any wager in connection with the competition in which he is to participate, prohibit him from accepting certain kinds of prizes, or selling, pawning, or giving away his prizes, and provide for the manner in which he is to receive expenses.

The committee, which has not yet completed its labors, is composed of Dr. Eitzen, Germany, who replaced J. Runge, Germany, as President; Lauri Pihkala, Finland; Frantz Reichel, France; Capt. W. Wetherell, South Africa; G. V. A. Schofield, England, and Alfred J. Lill, Jr., United States.

It is understood that important alterations in the programme of the Olympic games to be held at Berlin in 1916 are to be proposed by Germany at the meeting of the International Olympic Committee in Paris. F. Burger, a German delegate now taking part in the Congress of the International Amateur Athletic Federation here, received a suggestion from the Berlin Committee that the steeplechase, the tug of war, and the walking events be eliminated. The proposal was to be brought before the Lyons Congress, but it was stated today that it was improbable the matter would be taken up here.

The International Amateur Athletic Federation Standard Olympic Programme Committee has decided not to meet at Lyons for the consideration of any alterations of the Olympic games programme suggested and passed by the federation meeting in Berlin on Aug. 20, 1913.

One of the proposals which may be made at the Lyons Congress, however, is to abolish the referee on the ground that too much power is given to a single man. It is suggested he be replaced by a jury consisting of five members from different nations.

Massachusetts Tennis Survivors.

BOSTON, June 8.—The State lawn tennis singles championship was brought to the semi-final stage today with R. C. Seaver and A. S. Pier, both of Boston, and E. H. Whitney and J. J. Armstrong, students at Harvard, as the survivors. Armstrong won his place by an unexpected victory over A. S. Dabney of Boston, regarded by many as the most likely challenger of N. W. Niles, the champion. Dabney was eliminated by scores of 6—4, 6—4.

Another Arrest in Polls Fraud.

Edward I. Stephens, Chairman of the Board of Inspectors of the Thirteenth Election District of the Twelfth Assembly District, was arrested yesterday by Detective Trojan of the District Attorney's office on three indictments charging him with neglect of duty. He was held in $2,500 bail by Judge Crain in General Sessions. The arrest is the twenty-fourth which has resulted from investigation of frauds at the constitutional convention election.

RITCHIE SIGNS TO BOX WELSH

Articles were signed last night at Considine's Café for a boxing match between Willie Ritchie and Freddie Welsh for the lightweight championship. The bout will be before the Olympia Club of London on July 4. Ritchie will get $15,000 or 50 per cent. of the receipts, as he shall choose after seeing the "house," according to Bob Vernon, who is representing the English club in making the match. He will also receive $10,000 for the motion-picture rights and a share of the receipts from advertising, which, according to the promoters, will bring his side up to nearly $30,000.

The articles were signed by Bob Vernon, representing the English club; Harry Pollok, manager of Freddie Welsh, who has already sailed for the other side, and Willie Ritchie for himself. Before the articles were signed Ritchie's manager deposited $2,500 with Billy Gibson to guarantee his appearance in the ring.

All the details for the match had not been agreed to until late in the afternoon, after an extended conference at the Hotel Astor. Ritchie was a little bit backward about desiring to deposit his forfeit, and wanted to have that part of the agreement omitted. He said if he signed the articles he would show up, and that no forfeit was necessary. Mr. Vernon, representing the club, refused to go on with the matter unless he deposited the forfeit.

EGGERS BEATS McGOVERN.

Three Olympic Bouts End in Practical Knockouts.

Philly McGovern, brother of "Terrible Terry," last night at the Olympic A. C. was punched to a standstill by "Knockout" Eggers of the west side. It was a slugfest from the tap of the bell, both boxers intending to end the contest quickly. For two rounds McGovern was able to swap punches with Eggers, though the west-side boy was easily weathering the storm, as his condition and youth gave him the advantage. In the third session it was a toe-to-toe affair, and, lacking the stamina, McGovern was battered badly. He was practically helpless, and to save him from a knockout Referee Billy Moore sent the men to their corners.

The Black Demon and Fred Homan, middleweights, in the semi-final, which it was stated was for the colored championship of New York, were guilty of everything good, bad, and indifferent in pugilism. The referee was kept busy cautioning and separating them from clinches. The Demon will be a subject for the dentist as a result of a number of hard blows in the mouth, for which he sent Homan to the canvas four times in the fourth round, in which he knocked out Homan.

Jack Doyle and Johnny Carroll boxed a very hard draw that had the spectators on their feet after the second round, up to which time Carroll had the lead. Doyle proved a game lad, and when receiving the worst punishment came back more willingly. As the bout progressed he held his own, and toward the end more than did that. It was a good draw.

Clabby to Box McGoorty for Title.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., June 8.—Jimmy Clabby, Indiana middleweight, who by popular decision of press and ring enthusiasts was deprived of the victory by the referee in his fight against Jeff Smith of Philadelphia on Saturday night, was matched today to box Eddie McGoorty of Oshkosh, Wis., here July 4, for the world's championship. Smith's award of the twenty-round match Saturday was regarded as such an unfair verdict that the Philadelphian was not considered in making up the contest for the title.

Metropolitan Tennis Plans.

All of the preliminary details for the deciding of the eighteenth annual Metropolitan tennis championship titles on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, at Forest Hills, L. I., were completed yesterday at a meeting of the committee. Watson M. Washburn, the young Harvard star, will play through in defense of his singles title, and will couple with Charles M. Bull, Jr., to defend the doubles championship.

The entry list promises to be of unusual proportions. Lindley Murray and Herbert Hahn, the Californians from Leland Stanford University, will compete, and also Reuben A. Holden, famous as Yale's Captain; Frederick B. Alexander, Harold H. Hackett, and others. The list closes at 6 o'clock P. M. Thursday next at the clubhouse, with W. Merrill Hall, Chairman of the committee, and the draw will be made that evening. All of the prizes for the tournament will be of solid gold. The committee comprises Harold H. Hackett, Raymond D. Little, E. C. Conlin, Dr. John S. Billings, Dr. T. B. Barringer, W. A. Thomson, R. C. Wilson, Don J. Moore, F. C. Inman, T. R. Pell, Karl H. Behr, and W. M. Hall, Chairman. F. B. Alexander will act as referee.

Girl Wins Hard Court Title.

PARIS, June 8.—Mlle. Lenglen, a fifteen-year-old French girl today won the women's hard court tennis world's championship under the auspices of the International Lawn Tennis Federation. She defeated Mme. Golding, also a Frenchwoman, by 6—2, 6—1 in the final round.

WHEAT CROP SOARS TO A NEW RECORD

Prospective Yield Estimated at 900,000,000 Bushels, or Half of World's Production.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—A crop of 900,000,000 bushels of wheat, almost half of the world's average wheat production, and a new record for the United States, is the prospective total yield of the farms of the country this year, as estimated by the Department of Agriculture in its June crop report issued today.

The enormous wheat harvest will be 137,000,000 bushels more than has ever been grown before in the United States in any one year, and is due to excellent weather and an increase of 6.4 per cent. in the acreage planted.

There will also be large yields of oats and barley, probably second in size on record.

The Department of Agriculture's report in detail is as under:

SPRING WHEAT—Area planted, 17,990,000 acres, compared with 18,485,000 acres last year, 19,243,000 acres in 1912, and 20,381,000 acres in 1911. Condition, 95.5 per cent. of a normal, compared with 93.5 per cent. last year and 93.6 per cent., the ten-year average. Indicated yield, 14.6 bushels per acre, compared with 13 bushels last year and 13.3 bushels, the 1909-13 average. Estimated total production, 262,000,000 bushels, compared with 239,819,000 bushels last year, 330,348,000 bushels in 1912, and 190,682,000 bushels in 1911.

Winter Wheat—Area planted 35,387,000 acres, compared with 31,699,000 acres last year, and 29,571,000 acres in 1912. Condition, 92.7 per cent. of a normal, compared with 95.9 per cent. on May 1 this year, 83.5 per cent. June 1 last year, and 80.8 per cent., the 10-year average. Indicated yield, 18.1 bushels per acre, compared with 16.5 bushels last year and 15.6 bushels, the 1909-13 average. Estimated total production, 638,000,000 bushels, compared with 523,561,000 bushels last year, 399,919,000 bushels in 1912, and 430,656,000 bushels in 1911.

All wheat—Area planted, 53,377,000 acres, compared with 50,184,000 acres last year, 45,814,000 acres in 1912 and 49,543,000 acres in 1911. Condition, 93.7 per cent. of a normal, compared with 87.2 per cent. last year and 85.5 per cent., the 10-year average. Indicated yield, 17.9 bushels per acre, compared with 15.2 bushels last year and 14.7 bushels, the 1909-13 average. Estimated total production, 900,000,000 bushels, compared with 763,380,000 bushels last year, 730,267,000 bushels in 1912, and 621,338,000 bushels in 1911.

Oats—Area planted, 38,383,000 acres, compared with 38,399,000 acres last year, 37,917,000 acres in 1912 and 37,763,000 acres in 1911. Condition, 89.5 per cent. of a normal, compared with 87 per cent. last year and 88.6 per cent., the ten-year average. Indicated yield, 31.7 bushels per acre, compared with 29.2 bushels last year and 30.6 bushels, the 1909-13 average. Estimated total production, 1,216,000,000 bushels, compared with 1,121,768,000 bushels last year, 1,418,337,000 bushels in 1912 and 922,298,000 bushels in 1911.

Barley—Area planted, 7,528,000 acres, compared with 7,499,000 acres last year, 7,530,000 acres in 1912 and 7,627,000 acres in 1911. Condition, 95.5 per cent. of a normal, compared with 87.1 per cent. last year and 90.1 per cent, the ten-year average. Indicated yield, 27.3 bushels per acre, compared with 23.8 bushels last year and 24.3 bushels, the 1909-13 average. Estimated total production, 206,000,000 bushels, compared with 178,189,000 bushels last year, 223,824,000 bushels in 1912, and 160,240,000 bushels in 1911.

Rye—Condition, 93.6 per cent. of a normal, compared with 93.4 per cent. on May 1, 1914, 90.9 per cent. on June 1 last year, and 89.7 per cent., the ten-year average. Indicated yield, 17.2 bushels per acre, compared with 16.2 bushels last year, and 16.1 bushels, the 1909-13 average.

Hay—Condition, 88.7 per cent. of a normal, compared with 90.9 per cent. on May 1, 1914, 87.5 per cent. last year, and 87.4 per cent., the six-year average.

Pastures—Condition, 99.8 per cent. of a normal, compared with 88.3 per cent. on May 1, 1914; 89.2 per cent. in 1913, and 90 per cent., the ten-year average.

Mrs. Reed's Estate $650,000.

PORTLAND, Me., June 8.—The will of Mrs. Susan P. Reed, widow of Thomas B. Reed, former Speaker of the National House of Representatives, which was filed today, disposed of an estate estimated at $650,000. The bulk of the property was left to her daughter, Mrs. Katherine Reed Balentine, of San Diego, Cal., and to Mrs. Balentine's children. Edward P. Merritt of this city, a brother of Mrs. Reed, received a bequest of $100,000.

7200 Miles

It was first put on a rear wheel and was punctured by a large wire spike at 4650 miles. The change was then made to a front wheel. Since the picture was taken the car has run over 800 miles more, and the tire is still in splendid condition. There has been but the one puncture and the same tube is still used.

Cushion-Tread

Last week we published a letter from a Simplex owner, who equipped his car last August with four Overmans. The first was taken off at 9100 miles; the second, a trifle over 9200. We have on file scores of such letters.

Call at our store, or write, and see what it will cost to equip your car with the longest wearing, easiest riding tire in the world—which is practically proof against blow-outs and punctures—and is absolutely non-skid until the last hour's use.

Indoors or Out, These Finishes Will Serve You Best

Use Berry Brothers' Varnishes for the finishing touches. Make your home look spick, span and new. Indoors or out Berry Brothers' Varnishes give lasting satisfaction. For outside woodwork subjected to weather exposure and for marine finishing there is nothing better than

It is the one waterproof, windproof and weatherproof marine and outdoor varnish.

Luxeberry Spar is easy to apply and will give your boat a tough, durable surface that stays bright and glossy the whole season through. Even varnished parts immersed in water for months won't turn white. For all sorts of marine purposes and outside woodwork exposed to the weather, there is no varnish so fully satisfactory as Luxeberry Spar.

is just such a varnish. It is exceptionally durable and sufficiently flexible to withstand the hardest sort of wear and tear. For your floors, baseboards, window sills, etc., it is superior to any other varnish you can use. It is also fine for linoleum. You can wash it with soap and water without impairing its brightness and lustre. It won't turn white or fade. For new finishing or refinishing you can safely rely on Liquid Granite.

GIANTS DEFEAT CARDINALS---YANKS AND DODGERS LOSE---CASSATT HORSES WIN TWO RACES

CARDINALS FADE AWAY ON THREE HITS

They Couldn't Land on Tesreau's Moist Delivery and Giants Won, 4 to 1.

The first thing some of the clubs in the National League know, Jeff Tesreau won't permit them to hit the ball at all. Jeff's been getting pretty stingy lately. He doesn't mind letting a team have a couple of hits, but four or five is too many. Yesterday at the Polo Grounds he gave the Cardinals three hits, and the Giants won by a score of 4 to 1.

One of these hits was made by Chief Wilson and was a whale of a drive in the seventh inning, sending Dots Miller over with St. Looey's only run. Miller scored from first, where he was perched after a single to centre. The third hit was a dribbling little grounder which went over in the vicinity of first base.

Every player on the Giants left his post to go to get a look at that ball. There seemed to be some unusual curiosity about it. Because of this sight-seeing trip on the part of all the Giants first base was left as lonesome as the desert of Sahara. Merkle, Doyle, and Tesreau all avoided that vicinity as if scarlet fever had broken out there. So Lee Magee, who was the author of this little grounder, was at first and had plenty of time to write a letter home before the Giants got through looking at the ball.

Tesreau not only kept the Cards from hitting the ball, but he waved his bat very savagely and poked in almost all of the Giants' runs—all but one. Jeff knocked Miller Huggins's strategy sky-high in the fourth inning. Huggins ran in and told Bill Steele, who was pitching, to pass Meyers and "get" Jeff. Guess Huggins don't know Jeff.

Steele carried out half of his orders to the letter. He passed Meyers. The next time he had better pass Tesreau and try to "get" the other Giant sluggers. Jeff hit the ball to right centre for two bases and sent Merkle and Stock home with some runs. In the second inning Tesreau sent Chief Meyers home from second with a nifty one-base slap to right.

The other Giant run trickled over in the first inning, before Steele got the geographical location of the plate. He had an idea it was several feet further south than it really is. He passed Bescher, who promptly stole second, and he passed Burns. Then Eddie Grant tried to bunt and a little pop fly dropped to the infield.

Umpire Mal Eason surprised his best friends by saying that Grant was out. Out? Why? Deep rumbling was heard in the immediate vicinity of John McGraw. He went right up to Eason and asked him boldly why Grant was out. Mr. Eason meekly explained that Grant was out for hitting an infield fly with one out and runners on first and second bases. It was according to law, that's why.

That measley pop an infield fly? McGraw said it was just plain libel to call it such. It didn't go any higher than Larry McLean's left ear. McGraw got rid of quite a little conversation on the subject, but Eason was unmoved.

"If that could be called a fly," said McGraw, "they will soon be calling a ground ball a liner."

St. Louis used quite a little pitching material during the thunderous afternoon. Steele gave way to Kurt Hageman, who is the player who sued the Red Sox for some money. "Davy" Fultz was his lawyer. The case was heard and the Red Sox still have the money Kurt was looking for.

Dan Griner finished the game. Huggins rung in several pinch hitters, among them being a party named Cruise from Jacksonville. This Cruise didn't get very far, as he fanned. The last few innings of the game were played in the rain, but the more slippery the ball got the better Tesreau liked it. The score:

Reds' Rally in Ninth Beats Boston.

BOSTON, June 8.—Niehoff's home run and singles by Berghammer and Clark in the ninth enabled Cincinnati to win a pitchers' battle from Boston, 3 to 2 today. Deal's error, Clark's single, Benton's sacrifice hit and Herzog's single gave Cincinnati one run in the third. Boston tied the score in its half of the same inning on singles by Mann and Evers. A base on balls to Gilbert and Deal's triple gave Boston another run in the fourth. Score:

Pinch Hitters Win for Pirates.

PHILADELPHIA, June 8.—A batting rally by Pittsburgh in the eighth inning caused the defeat of Philadelphia today, the score being 7 to 5. In that inning both of the visitors' pinch hitters made good, Hyatt's single sending in one run and Jim Kelly's double driving in two more. One of Luderus's home runs was a drive to deep centre, which struck a ledge of the wall several feet over Joe Kelly's head, while the other cleared the right centre field fence. Byrne had his left hand hurt trying to stop a grounder off Mitchell's bat and was forced to leave the game. Wagner's single, his first hit of the series, made his record for his major league career 2,999 base hits. Score:

CHICAGO, June 8.—Chicago lost a chance to take first place today by splitting a double-header with Brooklyn while Baltimore was losing at Indianapolis. Chicago won the first game, chiefly through the batting, base running, and fielding of Harrell. Evans, for Brooklyn, drove a terrific home run over the rightfield wall. In the second game both teams hit the ball hard, but Chicago fielded poorly. Seaton stopped the Chicago batters when he relieved Marion. Brooklyn won out in the tenth inning. Scores:

Yankees Sign a New Infielder.

CHICAGO, June 8.—With the object of strengthening his batting and infield Manager Chance today signed Infielder Harris of the Bay City team. Harris has been praised by the scouts as a great hitter. Harris joined Chance today. "I won't use Harris right away," said Chance, "unless there is a call for his services. I'll look him over in practice a few days, and if he looks promising he will get a chance to show cause why he should be retained." It is common gossip that Chance is not satisfied with the work of Truesdale at second base, and it is probable Harris will get this player's place unless he takes a brace in the present invasion of the West by the Eastern teams.

ONLY FOUR HITS IN CHICAGO GAME

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Callahan's White Sox went through seven innings against Ray Fisher of Chance's Yankees without getting a hit today. In six rounds this schoolmaster hurler had only eighteen men to pitch to, the only variation being a couple of bases on balls. In the eighth, just when it looked like a no-hit battle, Bodie, with the count two and nothing, slammed one between left and centre for three bases. Schalk followed with a scratch single to Maisel, sending in Ping. This one run won the third clash of the series from New York. Incidentally, these were the only hits made off Fisher.

Fisher's exhibition, however, was not the only bit of first-class hurling during the afternoon. "Rebel" Russell was every bit as good in every department. He, too, granted but two hits.

The bingle that scored the only marker of the afternoon was more or less questionable. Nine times out of ten Maisel would have turned the hit into an easy out, but the excitement of the close combat worked on his nerves, along with the fact that Bodie made a break for home with the crack of the bat, and the Yankee third-sacker missed connections in his hurry to head off the runner at the plate. Bodie's wallop rolled to the fence, and he had no trouble in getting to third. Neither of the swats made off the Chicago southpaw was a clean-cut drive. Nineteen Yankees faced him in six rounds, a walk to Maisel, the first man to face him, being the exception from the monotony of the one-two-three order.

The Texan hit Williams, who was caught stealing, in the second, and Maisel met the same fate in the third after drawing his second pass. Cook broke the ice in the seventh with a bunt that should have been converted into an out had Russell speeded up instead of taking his time in going after the pill. Even after this a fast throw would have got the runner, but "Reb" merely lobbed the ball to Chase. This runner stole, but Walsh and Nunnemaker fanned to close the chapter. The only other swat off him was a grounder which rolled between Weaver's legs. The contest abounded in sensational fielding, and Peckinpaugh, the Yankee shortstop, was by all odds the leading actor. Wares's Triple Spills Senators.

ST. LOUIS, June 8.—Wares's triple with Leary on first base in the tenth inning today gave St. Louis a victory over Washington, 8 to 7. Each side fought desperately and alternated in taking the lead. A sensational double play in the ninth inning when Walker threw out Milan at the home plate saved the game for the locals. Milan and Manager Griffith protested the decision strenuously and were banished. Score:

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 8.—Boston walked and batted its way to an 11 to 8 victory over Cleveland today. Five Cleveland pitchers were helpless to withstand the attack. Bedient was not in good form, but as the Red Sox managed to keep the lead he was allowed to finish. The local line-up and batting order were changed in an effort to put the team on its feet. Athletic Recruit Handy with Bat.

DETROIT, Mich., June 8.—Frank Baker's home run drive over the right field screen in the fourth inning, which also scored Collins, helped Philadelphia defeat Detroit, 5 to 4, today. It was a hard-fought struggle, in which each team used two pitchers and in which extra base hits and errors came with men on bases. Philadelphia won the game in the eighth when Collins walked, stole second, and scored on Thompson's single. Thompson, a recruit, also drove in McInnis in the second inning after the latter had tripled. The score:

CUBS WIN IN THE NINTH.

Score Two Runs in Last Inning and Defeat Dodgers, 3 to 2.

Any loyal Brooklyn rooter who watched the bulletins of yesterday's encounter between the Dodgers and Chicago Cubs for eight innings probably went home proud and happy. If he stayed to hear the result of the ninth inning, or was at Ebbets Field in person and had it thrust upon him, the chances are that he went home and quarreled with his wife and kicked the family cat. If he didn't he showed great self-restraint, for the way the Cubs snatched a ninth-inning victory from the home-town nine, after the Flatbush team had toyed with them for eight innings, was enough to give any Brooklyn follower a grouch.

At the end of the eighth inning the score was 2 to 1, and the one-run lead, with "Nap" Rucker pitching in his best form, looked as big as Manager Robinson himself. The final score was 3 to 2 in favor of the Cubs, however, which shows that Hank O'Day's employes did a little hitting and base running in the ninth and final round of the bout. After two hits had been secured, and Rucker had passed one batsman in this eventful inning, Robbie proceeded to close the barndoor after the horse had been stolen by yanking him out of the box and replacing him by Reulbach. Reulbach stopped the scoring, but the two runs obtained off Rucker in the start of the inning were quite sufficient for the Cubs' needs.

Except for the ninth inning, Rucker pitched very well, and gave the Cubs only six hits. Pierce, however, was even more stingy, and gave Brooklyn but five hits.

The ninth inning was started by Good being passed. The Brooklyn players protested that Umpire Quigley's eyesight was bad, but he went to first just the same. He got to second on a passed ball, but was put out when he tried to go to third on Dick Saier's easy hit to Rucker. Heinie Zimmerman, in his usual disagreeable manner, then made the situation serious by singling to centre. "Red" Corridon, who has been benched temporarily because of his poor fielding, was put in to bat in the pinch for Schulte, and he broke up the game by driving another single to centre field. Bone in Archer's Arm Cracked.

Jimmy Archer, the Chicago Cubs' catcher, whose arm was injured in Saturday's game in Brooklyn, submitted to an examination yesterday by an X-ray specialist and found that the bone was cracked at the elbow. The arm was put in a plaster paris cast. Archer will be out of the game for a month or six weeks.

Feds Want Atlantic League?

According to reports from some of the towns in the Atlantic League, negotiations are under way, and nearly completed, for the purchase of that league as a farm for the Federal League. The story is that the Federal League has made an offer for the whole league, intending to make it a minor "outlaw" league in which young players may be developed for their circuit, as they are in the minor leagues in organized ball, and also for the castoffs from the big circuit. The Federal League practically promised all the players who signed with them not to release them without any place to go if they were found wanting. As a result all the teams in the Federal circuit are carrying more players than they need, with a consequent drain upon their treasury. George S. Ward, Vice President of the Brooklyn Federals, said last night that he had heard of no such contemplated purchase, although he admitted that there had been talk of the Federals buying a minor league as a farm. Club owners of the Atlantic League refuse to discuss the report.

Merrillat to Captain Army Nine.

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 8.—Before disbanding for the season the Army baseball team today elected Cadet Louis A. Merrillat of Chicago Captain for next year. Merrillat, who is 22 years old, was appointed to West Point in June, 1911, from the First Congressional District of Illinois. He has played centre field on the Army nine for two seasons and is considered fast on the bases and a hard and timely hitter. Merrillat is prominent also in track athletics at the academy and plays end on the Army football eleven. He was the choice of nearly all the Eastern football experts last Fall for all-American honors. He is a member of the class of 1915.

New Records Must Be Approved.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Records claimed for Henderson of Illinois in the half mile and Wahl of Wisconsin in the high jump, made at the conference meet here Saturday, will not stand as official until approved by the "Big Nine" Managers' Committee, which is to hear reports on them at a meeting next week. It is said that no doubt exists as to the accuracy of the time Henderson made in the "half," 1:55 3-5, but Wahl's mark may be more closely questioned.

CASSATT WINS TWO RACES AT BELMONT

Spring Board and Flying Fairy carried the colors of Capt. E. B. Cassatt of Philadelphia to victory at Belmont Park yesterday. Both are the get of Aeronaut and both won at the end of a hard race under the sharpest sort of riding by Davies in each instance. Flying Fairy's race in the McKinney Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth stamped her as a pretty good filly, for she gave all the other starters weight and then won, coming from the rear at the head of the stretch in 1:45, which was really a better performance than was Superman's record of 1:44 3-5, made in 1907 with but 112 pounds up. Flying Fairy carried 118 pounds, as against the 111 carried by Pennant a week ago, when he beat Buckhorn and Thornhill, both of whom were again beaten by the Cassatt filly in the same time. She had a year's advantage in age, but all the same her race yesterday was generally conceded to be the most remarkable performance of the season thus far. Taking advantage of her disadvantage in the weights, Buckhorn and Thornhill started out to kill her off in the early stages of the running, and at one time had a gap between themselves and the Cassatt runner of ten lengths at least. But in the run for home she came through on the rail in good shape, found a path between the two flying leaders, and beat them home, with all three extended at their best.

Spring Board's success came in the second race only after a mix-up just after the start, in which Isidora was thrown and her jockey, Butwell, so badly shaken up that he was unable to ride again during the afternoon. Tranid, Flittergold, and Grover Hughes were clear of the mess and started off with a good lead that it did not seem possible for any of the others to cut down. But Davies persevered with Spring Board, got him steadied on the far turn, and, making a good turn into the stretch, was able to get to the front at the end of the last furlong, holding his place to the end of the run, winning by a length from Flittergold, with Grover Hughes and Helen Barbee, the latter favorite in the speculation, a couple of lengths in the rear and only heads apart. There was a general inquisition of jockeys, starters, and patrol judges after the race, but the stewards could not discover whether Spring Board or Grover Hughes, or either of them, was the horse that crowded the field and caused the accident, and so let the race stand as it was run without the disqualification of any of the placed horses.

James Butler continued his career as a winning owner by capturing the opening dash with Marion H., a handsome filly by Disguise, who looks all over a racer and ran so like a good one as to make her field look very commonplace. She was the leader all the way, and ran true as a die on the outside of the track, winning, eased up, by a couple of lengths from the favorite, The Masquerader, who was "touted" all over town and all about the track as the one sure thing of the day that could not be beaten unless he fell down. He did not fall, but Marion H. won, which shows again the value of the sure tips.

After that showing the talent picked on another Butler entry, Doublet, to win the third race, and made him the favorite in the betting solely because he was from the Butler stable, as the race was one for maidens. Once more they guessed wrong, for the best Doublet could do was to finish in fourth place, Coquette, who made all the running, George Roesch, and Piefrot all finishing in front of him, with the last two but noses apart as they flashed by the judges.

Acting as his own pacemaker in the run at a mile, San Vega had things his own way and gave a decisive beating to Golden Prime, Little Nearer, and Tea Enough, who made a hot fight for the place, finishing in a bunch with no daylight between them.

There was some sort of a mistake about the steeplechase intended to be at two miles, for they were started at a point where they had to run but about a mile and a half. It was an extremely popular race in the clubhouse set, where there was an assemblage that looked like a sort of aftermath of Piping Rock. As Sorrel, which won the short chase, was the property of Thomas Hitchcock, all the hunting set had a bet on the winner which compensated for some of the losses made at "the Piping Rock picnic party," as the regular racegoers denominated it. Summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For two-year-olds; non-winners at the meeting; $400 added; five furlongs, straight. Time—0:59.

RED TOP, Conn., June 8.—Harvard's freshman eight rowed a trial spin over a two-mile course from the quarters to the navy yard this morning, and with a strong ebb tide and a light favoring breeze the distance was done in 9:46, which is considered to be good time. The crew was called upon to do its best, using a thirty-four stroke for most of the distance and raising it only at the final dash by two points.

The Varsity eight paddled about on the upper end of the course, using its new oars, and Mr. Wray coaching individual faults from his pair-oared shell. The Henley crew, in absence of Mr. Herrick, had an easy row.

The freshman substitute four-oared boat has arranged a race with another four-oared boat for Wednesday, the opposing crew being made up of two Varsity substitutes and two freshman substitutes.

All the crews were on the river tonight for practice, despite poor rowing conditions. The 'Varsity eight paddled down stream for three miles with Coach Wray instructing the men as to individual faults. Later Wray devoted his attention to the freshman eight, which rowed two miles. The four-oar crews practiced racing starts.

R. F. Herrick, Jr., a 'Varsity substitute, who was single sculling, got a wetting tonight when his scull rammed a float. The prow of the craft was practically broken off.

GALES FERRY, Conn., June 8.—Rough water greatly handicapped the work of the Yale crews on the Thames tonight. The 'Varsity found the regular course too choppy and went up stream to Haughton's Cove for practice. Against a strong flood tide, the oarsmen made a half mile in two minutes and twenty-six seconds. The freshman eight had a short spin down the river and return.

The freshman four-oar boat decisively defeated a scrub crew in a mile brush. The freshman time was 7:12 and the scrubs 7:50. The make-up of the latter boat was: Sanderson, bow; Oakes, 2; Robb, 3; Morse, stroke, and Pratt, coxswain.

CORNELL ROWS ON HUDSON.

'Varsity Shell Fouls Fisherman's Stake Near Milton.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 8.—The Cornell crews had their first row on the Hudson this morning. Under a hot sun and on water as smooth as a mill pond Coach Courtney sent all three crews down the river for five miles. After this they returned to the boathouse.

Near Filton the 'Varsity shell fouled a fisherman's stake and the outrigger at number one was slightly bent. Mr. Courtney had warned Coxswain Rand to keep a lookout for the stakes, but Rand did not see this one. It is said that because of the mishap Chandler will be put in Rand's place to guide the senior shell.

Heavy showers interfered with the afternoon practice with both the Cornell and Columbia crews, but Coaches Courtney and Rice nevertheless had their oarsmen on the water for a long row.

Mrs. A. J. Morgan Golf Victor.

More than thirty women golfers visited the links of the Apawamis Club at Rye yesterday to compete in a one-day tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association. Mrs. Albert J. Morgan of the home club led the field for the gross prize, with a card of 100, 6—94, and tied with Mrs. R. S. Hincks of Brooklawn and Mrs. S. A. Herzog of Fairview for the net score. Mrs. Morgan, according to the rules, had to take the gross and on the play-off for the net prize Mrs. Hincks won.

There was also an approaching and putting competition in which Miss Bertha Stratton of Cranford and Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers of Baltusrol tied, Miss Stratton winning the play-off. The scores:

Consolidated Stock Exchange Golf.

Keen interest has been taken on the Consolidated Stock Exchange in the annual golf tournament of the exchange which will be held at Salisbury links, Garden City, L. I., today. A large number of entries promises exciting contests in the three classes, A, B, and C, into which the players have been divided, according to their experience in the game. In Class A "Archie" Graham, former amateur champion of New Jersey, is the "scratch" man. Others who will contest are A. R. Allen, A. S. Barnes, L. J. Dietz, J. E. Kelley, N. W. Peters, T. D. Scoble, W. S. Silkworth, C. T. Small, A. C. Sumner, J. C. Taylor, C. H. Terhune, C. L. Turton, and W. E. Valentine.

Blanding Case Postponed.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Hearing in the Kansas City Federal League Club's suit to enjoin Pitcher Blanding from playing with the Cleveland Americans here was today postponed until Friday. Postponement was due to the inability of the parties to attend, the Federal League lawyers being called to Cincinnati for the appeal in the Killifer case, due for a hearing there Wednesday. Postponement until tomorrow was announced in the suit for back salary, which Arthur Hofman, acting manager of the Brooklyn Federals, claims is due him from the Chicago Nationals.

Bridwell to Succeed Brown.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 8.—According to reports, Al Bridwell, the former Giant shortstop, is to succeed "Miner" Brown as manager of the St. Louis Federal League team. Brown was engaged as manager before the season opened and collected the present team, which has been fairly successful in the league race. Brown was formerly mainstay of the Chicago Cubs' pitching staff, but has not been doing much actual work since he entered the Federal ranks. Bridwell has been playing regularly at shortstop.

PUTS AUTO SIGNS ON TELEGRAPH POLES

Trail-Blazing Association Has Quietly Routed Much of the Country—Jersey Tags.

Using one of those plans which are so simple that they are apt to be overlooked, the Automobile Trail Blazing Association of Minneapolis, Minn., of which A. L. Meigs is the President, has marked highways all over the Middle West, and is now marking them in the East and to the Pacific Coast. Its work has been unobtrusive to such a degree that it was but little known, in this section of the country at any rate, until Mr. Meigs came to New York to make plans for a transcontinental route last week. The association's plan is simply to make use of material at hand and paint its signs on the telegraph poles. It uses color symbols to denote each trail. The road signs are bands of white with the color of the particular trail in question in the middle. On the north and south routes black is frequently used as the central pigment, so that they may cross the return routes without confusion. By this simple plan one has only to note the colors on the poles as one drives along to keep track of a route.

There are but three symbols used in addition to the colors; "R" for right turn, "L" for left turn, and "X" for railroad crossing or other danger ahead. The three stripes, two white and the color of the trail, are used for straight ahead.

Motorists have complained much of late of speed traps operating in Mamaroneck and Larchmont. The motor cycle policemen in these places are said to be particularly active. The method of capture is said to be to allow a car to go peacefuly on its way until it has a start of about half a mile and then pursue it at high speed, afterward basing the charge against the motorist on the speed the motor cycle was forced to make in order to catch it.

⁂

At a luncheon of the Broadway Association at the Hotel Cumberland yesterday, at which Marcus M. Marks, President of the Borough of Manhattan, and Street Cleaning Commissioner Fetherston were guests, suggestions for bettering conditions on Broadway from Times Square to Columbus Circle, often called "Automobile Row," were made. George H. Duck, President of the Motor Truck Club, suggested that one-way streets have a thorough test and that the practice of parking automobiles along the curb be stopped for the sake of traffic. President Marks said that the "one-way street was a two-edged sword" and that those living on the street in question must be made to see the value of the plan before it could be adopted.

Word comes from Trenton that olive green and white will be the colors of New Jersey's 1915 automobile registration tags or markers. An indication of the increase in automobile use across the river is the fact that the State Department of Motor Vehicles has ordered 60,000 sets of tags, an increase of 10,000 over the number bought last year.

Card for Brighton Cycle Races.

Percy Lawrence of San Francisco, one of the real sensations of the cycle world, will make his debut in New York as a motor-paced rider tomorrow night at the Brighton Beach Motordrome, when he will compete in the Brighton Sweepstakes against Clarence Carmen, Norman Hanson, and Leon Didier. The race will be run in three heats at ten miles each for the best two out of three. Lawrence was one of the stars in the last six-day race at the Garden. Carmen will be the popular choice in the field, having finished in front twice, with a tie in three starts this season. Didier was unfortunate Sunday night in picking a poor pacemaker, but after dropping back three laps finished in third position, tying with Collins.

A three-mile lap race for amateur bike riders will also be an interesting feature. The leading rider at the end of each lap will score one point, at the end of the first and second miles three points, and at the end of the third mile five points. There will also be a two-thirds-mile novice and a one-mile open race. A four-mile motor cycle race in two heats and a final and a three-mile handicap will give the motor cyclists a chance to grab a few prizes.

Record Entry for "Mets."

The junior track and field championship meet of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union will be held at Travers Island on June 20 and gives promise of unusual conditions and results for these important contests. In the past, the New York Athletic Club and the Irish-American Athletic Club have practically had matters their own way as the entries from the smaller clubs have not cut much figure, but this year all the less prominent organizations have taken united action looking to trying for honors in the junior contests, and many of the clubs have entered their best men.

An exceptionally heavy list of entries has been received and the organizations that will compete, aside from the two named are, the Bronx Church House A. A., the Mohawk A. C., the Pastime A. C., Mott Haven A. C., Millrose A. A., Xavier A. C., Glencoe A. C., West Harlem A. C., St. Anthony A. C., Long Island A. C., and the Kalawa A. C., all of which will strive hard to win the point trophy. In order to acquaint all registered amateur athletes with the excellence of the track and field at Travers Island, those presenting their registration cards will be admitted at 25 cents each.

Copenhagen Invites Our Athletes.

In a letter received yesterday at the office of James E. Sullivan, Secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States and the American Olympic Committee, Lieut. Arene Hojme of the Danish Athletik-Forbund of Copenhagen, Denmark, invites all the American athletes who intend to compete in the English championships to come to Copenhagen. Lieut. Hojme writes that all American athletes visting his country will receive a warm welcome from his countrymen. If the American athletes decide to visit Copenhagen a monster athletic meeting will be arranged for them to take part in.

NO MEXICAN COMPLICATION.

The withdrawal by Gen. Huerta of his order for the establishment of a blockade at Tampico indicates the shrewd Dictator's faith in the usefulness of the mediation conference at Niagara Falls. In ordering a blockade, to prevent the landing of arms for the Constitutionalists, he was quite within his rights as de facto President of Mexico, and he obeyed a natural impulse. In rescinding the order when he learned that the United States warships would prevent the blockade, by force if necessary, he gave heed to the counsel of prudence and indicated also his conviction of the ability of the Niagara Falls conference to restore order in Mexico. He has yielded to the persistence of his representatives at Niagara Falls.

Therefore, the strain has again been removed from the Mexican situation, the fears that the armistice would be broken and mediation rendered hopeless are relieved. The calm, determined man at Washington has triumphed over circumstances again. The nation ought to be ready to believe by this time that President Wilson knows what he is doing in the Mexican matter. Obviously he has known all along much more about the situation than his critics. His faith in the information he has received, often from sources not accessible to others, is justified by events. Some things have been done which have puzzled the American people, such as the neglect to prevent the sailing of the Antilla with its cargo of arms for Carranza. But it must be remembered that Huerta has received supplies of arms from Germany since the seizure of Vera Cruz. On the whole, we must conclude that no movement of the Administration in regard to the Mexican trouble will seem puzzling when all the facts are made known. Probably we shall next hear of Carranza's participation, through representatives, in the mediation conference. Peace for Mexico will then be at hand, and it will be found that President Wilson has done more than any other one man to bring it about.

STORY OF "WHITE MAGIC."

The controlled torrents of electricity that are coursing through the country's business arteries are indicated in The Annalist this week, in an article reviewing the report just made by the Committee on Progress of the National Electric Light Association. Although steam had centuries the start, electricity already yields one-fourth the industrial power of the United States, and the prediction is made that it will rapidly yield over four-fifths, forcing steam into the background.

Ancient civilizations were built on slavery, supplementing the work of draught animals. While the United States has 30,000,000 mature horses and mules, the work of 120,000,000 more horses is done by the power of steam, water, gas, and electricity—nearly one and a half horses per capita. Half of this enormous total of 150,000,000 horse power is in steam, two-thirds of which runs locomotives. But electric locomotives are invading this field, promising a vast extension of electricity. While there are over 40,000 electric motor cars in service, experts like Steinmetz predict that electric vehicles will eventually displace all other kinds for commerce and pleasure in the city, excepting cars for tours and races. The average candle power of the incandescent lamp used in households has risen from nineteen in 1907 to twenty-nine in 1912, with a reduction of cost of current and of lamps through the use of the more efficient tungsten burners. Then there is the artificial illumination of crops. The radishes, lettuce, beets, tomatoes, and parsnips of the nation's market gardens become larger and mature earlier under electric rays at night. Experiments in Ohio reported by Dr. H. E. Dorsey seem to assure a wholesale use of agricultural illumination.

Hydro-electric power is being augmented from the national forests with falls as powerful as 12,000,000 horses working day and night, while the possibilities of waterfalls under private control are inestimable. The commercial stations have increased one-third in a decade, their income has multiplied treble and a half, and the number of employes has more than doubled. The output of stations measured in kilowatt hours was 359 per cent. greater in 1912 than in 1902, while the horse power of stationary motors served with electricity increased 843 per cent. The electrical service paid for by the public amounts now to over a billion dollars a year.

BRITISH FEMALE RIOTERS.

The ineptitude and cowardice of the British Government in dealing with the peace-defying suffragists continue, but the British people seem to be taking the matter in their own hands. The riot in Cardinal Newman's beautiful church, the Brompton Oratory, on Sunday would have been inevitable in any circumstances, however, if a disturbance had been caused during the Elevation of the Host. The Oratory seems to be the last place in the world for a riotous invasion. The gentle spirit of the greatest of modern English Catholics seems ever to pervade it. But perhaps that is the reason why the wild women chose to make a rumpus there. The wonder is that they do not attack the hospitals and "hold up" a few notable funerals.

The interruption of Father Vaughan's sermon at Westminster Cathedral was more logical. That eminent and eloquent Jesuit priest has fought the hosts of quackery with splendid vigor. He is a fair mark for the crazy women who think they can secure larger political rights by destroying property and assaulting persons. Meanwhile the Government seems unable to find a way to protect itself or punish the offenders. The explanation that the women cannot be permitted to starve themselves because prison keepers are held personally responsible for the health of their charges is not satisfying. That responsibility must apply to all prisoners, yet if persons charged with murder and burglary refused to eat in prison they would surely not be set at liberty.

Meanwhile the public temper seems to have been sorely tried, and after a few more such insults to the King and Queen as those of last week and yesterday, if the authorities do not devise some plan to deal effectively with the perpetrators, those public outbreaks which Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has prophesied may yet take place.

A DIRECTOR OF NEW WORKERS.

An Associate Superintendent of Schools capable of directing an army of pupils who are to go immediately into the industries should be selected by the Board of Education to fill the present vacancy in this city's Board of Superintendents. Now that Mayor Mitchel and President Churchill have returned from their tour of Western cities that boast well-developed systems of vocational training, perhaps they can name a fit candidate.

The matter comes up for consideration by the Board of Education tomorrow. The self-development of pupils, economy of effort, and flexibility in grading and in course of study that characterize the schools of Gary, which the Mayor's party visited, might well become the keynotes of vocational education here. But who will strike the notes with sufficient mastery? It would be foolish to confine the search for the man to this city.

ONLY ONE FAIR COURSE.

Judge Hill's decision to sustain the State's demurrer to the motion of counsel for Leo M. Frank to set aside the verdict against him, on the ground that the prisoner was not present in court when the verdict was rendered, carries the settlement of that point to the Supreme Court of Georgia, which already has before it a motion for a new trial of the case. If the new trial is ordered by the Supreme Court before the decision of Judge Hill on the demurrer is argued before it, the interests of justice will probably be better served. A new trial is the only just solution of the pitiful problem in the Frank case.

Judge Hill's decision on Saturday reverses his position in the Lyons case, celebrated in Georgia criminal annals, in which, as a member of the Court of Appeals, he ruled that the defendant in a criminal trial has a right to be present in court at every stage of the proceedings. The Judge still stands by this ruling, but he found it expedient to pass this matter up to the Supreme Court. To Frank, facing the prospect of more weary months of incarceration before the next step can be taken, and to his friends and sympathizers this seems a cruel outcome of the latest appeal, but it may be all for the best. The many persons throughout the country who believe that a miscarriage of justice has been threatened in the Frank case will hope that the Supreme Court will hear the extraordinary motion for a new trial before the technical point of Frank's absence from the courtroom when the verdict was rendered is brought before it.

That Frank was unfairly tried and is guiltless of the murder of Mary Phagan many persons all over the country firmly believe. He is clearly entitled to a new trial. If the verdict should be set aside on a technicality and Frank could not be retried, the case would never be cleared. There would be a perpetual blot on the honor of the State. Now that the popular clamor has subsided, he can be tried fairly.

FAILURE OF NEW HARMONY.

In his speech at the centennial celebration of the founding of New Harmony, Ind., ex-President Taft said yesterday that the Rappites, whom he classed with the Shakers, the Zoarites, and converts of the Oneida Community, were not trying to reform society like the Socialists, but they substituted for the institution of private property a religious motive which was a spur to industry and self-sacrifice. When the disciples of Rapp sold out to Robert Owen and his partners in 1825, a real socialistic community was founded which lacked both the religious spur and the incentives found in competition for private ownership of property. The moral purpose of the men and women who settled there, and in similar communities at Yellow Springs, Ohio; at Nashoba, near Memphis; at Haverstraw and Coxsackie, N. Y., and in the Kendal Community at Canton, Ohio, did not suffice to prevent successive failures.

The Fourieristic "Phalanxes," communities intended to harmonize capital and labor and to make work a pleasure, of which the Brook Farm was one of the earliest instances, have followed the Rappite and Owenite experiments to a breakdown. They failed to take account of the selfish traits of human nature, or sought in vain to reform them or to gloss them over. The value of Mr. Taft's exposition of the long series of futile experiments consists in its warning to future enthusiasts. Usually new socialistic communities are founded by leaders who are reckless or know little of previous attempts.

THE INDIVIDUAL AT VERA CRUZ.

Nothing is more striking in Admiral Fletcher's story of the gallantry of his men at Vera Cruz than the evidence, sticking out all over it, that there was nothing of the stolid bravery of the mere fighting machine about them. Theirs was an intelligent bravery, a bravery of brains and of individual initiative. The soldierly and mechanical precision with which they did their work should impress Europeans who think the fault of our fighting men is that very individuality. Prussians could not have done the job in a more clocklike manner; but wherever there was room or need for the display of individual force, it flamed out in an instant. The man behind the gun was not a machine, but a thinking man.

Fireman J. G. Smith of the Utah finds that the mount for the machine gun he is using is unsuitable for use in the streets, and that the fire is wasted. He places the gun at his shoulder and uses it as a rifle, thereby showing his astonished superiors a new possibility in warfare; for, says his commander, "This has never before been done to my knowledge." George E. Bent, Boatswain's Mate, and W. E. Stevens, seaman, of the New Jersey, find that the recoil mechanism of their gun does not work and the gun fails to return after being fired. They turn themselves into a recoil mechanism by holding the carriage with their hands and making a brake of it when the gun is fired—a task calling for wonderful strength and steadiness.

Volunteers are called for to enter an alleyway filled with Mexicans and clear them out. Boatswain's Mate P. A. Decker of the Florida follows the volunteers and waits outside the alley, figuring that when it is cleared something may happen that is not down on the bills. Sure enough, when everything seems all right an undiscovered Mexican rises from behind a box with weapon leveled to kill the unsuspecting officer in charge. The watching Decker shoots him dead and saves the officer. G. E. Bancroft, seaman of the New Hampshire, carries a wounded man to safety under fire; he reaches a house, from which a new fire is suddenly opened on him. Bancroft calls for help, and while it is coming he engages the house himself single-handed, firing upon it until he checks the fire, and so holding the position until the wounded man can be removed. The report is fairly studded with instances in which, without orders, men rushed into the line of fire with stretchers to rescue some wounded soldier or sailor. Everywhere in Vera Cruz, at the same moment, the enlisted man was displaying not merely his courage, but his initiative, his prompt decision, and his common sense. Americans have no monopoly of bravery; the common soldier who can face death with a calm heart is common to all nations. The common soldier who carries his brains into action, who is perfectly disciplined and yet acts for himself, is not so common. The anti-militarists who talk of the soldier as a mere "fighting machine," mere "food for powder," have something to think about.

COMMERCIAL ALLIANCES.

Sir Owen Phillips is the British Napoleon of the seas, by virtue of his combination of two leading companies, with a tonnage and a capitalization which dwarf the International Mercantile Marine, the original marine trust. But Sir Owen perceives that Germany is now the enemy of England on the ocean, not the United States. His view on this subject was set out at length in The Times's London message published on Sunday. Japan also is amalgamating its scattered shipping companies for the war for business through the Panama Canal, but that is a small matter. On every sea the British marine is challenged by the German, and in the opinion of British merchants this is more the danger of the future than the rivalry of battleships.

Germany is now following the British transition from an agricultural to an industrial nation, just as we are following Germany. The present position of those two nations soon will be our own, and the time is hardly far distant when we, too, shall be envying Germany its organization for the struggle. German maritime trade, remarks Sir Owen, is centred in seven big lines, whereas British trade is scattered among 300 lines, with no unity of action.

German unity is no accident. It is the result of the Government's fostering care, under the inspiration of the Kaiser, "the greatest commercial director in the world." British companies, on the contrary, are left to their own devices. There are combinations among them, without Government repression, but without Government assistance. The American way is to make shipping artificially costly and to pass laws compelling the costs to be paid. While American opinion is in this state Germany and England are dividing world trade between them, the better organizer of victory getting the spoils. That our way is profitable for the politicians there can be no doubt, but the condition of the American merchant marine under this policy speaks for itself.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Conversation with Commuters.

While the road on which commuters do their daily traveling is always the favorite object of their deep, fierce growls and their short, sharp barks, they do once in a while turn on each other and give vehement expression to grievances for which "the company" is not to blame.

Each of them, for instance, resents, and quite as bitterly as if himself guiltless—which he never is—the desire of every fellow-commuter to get and keep a whole seat to himself if he can, and then there is always the open window that refreshes the man beside it and enrages the man behind him. The most frequent cause of animosity, however, and of an animosity which is the deeper because it usually has to be repressed, lies in another direction. It is given by the commuter who wants to beguile the journey with talk when he plants himself beside the commuter whose preference or need is to read as much of one or several newspapers as he can before the terminal station is reached.

For some people such reading is a part of their daily work, and it sets them back for the whole day if they do not get through a lot of it on the train. Others, much more numerous, must either read their papers in the car or else go uninformed of the world's happenings, since the rest of the day brings them no leisure from other tasks, and that is felt by the intelligent to be a real deprivation and detriment.

Of course, some commuters can tell some disturbers of their peace to be quiet, but none likes to do it with any, and for most it is nearly impossible. If commutation had its formulated ethics, as the other professions do, one article or section of the code would teach that he who holds a newspaper in his hand presumably wants to read it, and that unless he makes advances to a later arrival, the latter in courteous consideration should limit his converse to a pleasant greeting and not more than two remarks about the weather.

As there is no such rule, the wise commuter who simply must read his paper passes by the empty seat for which his heart yearns and takes his place beside a stranger. There, in most cases, he is safe.

Condemning Special Hospitals.

Hot controversy, if not fierce resentment, is almost sure to be caused by an editorial attack on special hospitals and a demand for their abolition which appear in the current issue of American Medicine. There is, it says, no need for institutions devoted to the cure of cancer, or to the relief of the ruptured and crippled, since "such cases can be treated more cheaply and just as well in the surgical ward of a general hospital, by the same men." An eye and ear hospital is characterized as "an expensive absurdity," and it is even declared that isolation wards in general hospitals can give better treatment to patients suffering from contagious diseases than they can get in hospitals devoted wholly to such maladies.

These surprising contentions are based on the assumption that the special hospital commands the services of only one class of specialists, while in the general hospital all kinds are or ought to be available, and any complications of the principal malady get the attention they need.

The special hospital, according to this authority, is a relic of the days when there were no specialists, and every doctor was supposed to have all the skill and knowledge needed in any case. When specializing began, the specialist was still supposed to need no assistance from others, but he does, and when it lacks the result is a high mortality.

Such statements will be ill received in some of our most famous institutions, and by their supporters as well as by the officials connected with them, for nothing but their praises has hitherto been sung.

Psychology Applied to Railways.

It was the Pennsylvania Railway, if memory serves, which, first of corporations of its class, recognized the possibilities of scientific forestry and undertook to raise on owned or leased land a considerable part of the enormous amount of timber in ties and other forms that it needs every year. That plan has since been imitated by a few other railways, but most of them still depend for their supplies of timber on contractors hardly one of whom ever thinks of a forest except as a thing to cut down and sell, regardless of the consequences to the land or as regards future demand for wood.

Now it is reported that the same company, after careful experimenting, has decided that by utilizing the resources of the new psychology—the psychology which is a product of the laboratory, not of the closet, and is a science as real and almost as exact as chemistry or mathematics—the terrible waste hitherto caused by training men for positions they were incapable of filling satisfactorily to their employers or profitably to themselves can be avoided.

To be the first in taking this step is highly commendable, but the wonder is not that it has been done, but that it has not been done before. For years now not a few, the practitioners of the new psychology have been saying—and proving—that by their tests they could render inestimable services not only to industry and commerce by disclosing what capacities and talents men did and did not have but that they could give in the administration of the law as much assistance as they have lent to medicine. The courts still reject their aid, though it would be invaluable in the handling of witnesses, but the great manufacturers are not as scornful of the "new-fangled notions," and now a great railway has taken them up.

This Money Will Be Well Spent.

"Charity," nowadays, is viewed by those of enlightened intelligence with a certain coldness unless it can prove itself to be something more and better than the often-mentioned ambulance sent to the foot of the often-mentioned precipice, there to pick up an unending stream of victims fallen from the unguarded brink above.

No such criticism can be made of the appeal for $50,000 which the Children's Aid Society wants to use in sending poor children and mothers to the country for short vacations. That is work in which there can rarely if ever be any trace of pauperizing.

Such vacations for those otherwise imprisoned in the city all through the hot weather are real help toward self-helpfulness. They make for health and happiness, and so for independence. Much is accomplished with a little money devoted to this purpose, for there are good people everywhere who will look out for the urban visitors after their arrival, and the charges they encounter are not those of the Summer resort hotels. Even a week of rest from tenement conditions in Summer counts for much—it is often the difference between life and death for a sick child—and the society's appeal should be promptly and generously answered.

Its Treasurer, by the way, is Edwin G. Merrill, and his address is 105 East Twenty-second Street.

A COMPLETE PARK PLAN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You call attention in a recent issue to Commissioner Ward's statement of the necessity of "a comprehensive plan of park improvement," and you say "New York has never had such a plan." As far back as Jan. 24, 1886, Messrs. Olmsted and Vaux, in their description of the design proposed for Prospect Park, spoke of the desirability of just such a comprehensive plan. We find them referring to the advantage of securing, while ground was inexpensive, parkways connecting the Brooklyn park with the ocean beach, and also connecting Prospect Park with Central Park by a bridge near Ravenswood and on to the Hudson River. This was, at that time, entirely practicable.

"Such an arrangement," they say, "would enable a carriage to be driven in the half of a Summer's day through the most interesting parts of both the Cities of Brooklyn and New York, through their most attractive suburbs, and through their great parks; having a long stretch of the noble Hudson, with the Palisades in the middle distance, and the Shawangunk range of mountains in the background in view at one end, and the broad Atlantic, with its foaming breakers rolling on the beach, at the other. The whole might be taken in a circuit without twice crossing the same ground, and would form a grand municipal promenade, hardly surpassed in the world either for extent or continuity of interest."

This is merely an indication of what may be learned by an examination of the literature of the subject, and though the suggestion, so intelligent, of Olmsted and Vaux, is unfortunately not now possible of accomplishment, our loss may possibly call attention to the wisdom of Commissioner Ward's words.

Services in St. John's Chapel.

Permit me to thank you for your editorial article entitled "St. John's Chapel," and to ask space for a few words upon the religious aspects of the question. It seems to an old New Yorker inevitable that the widening of Varick Street will create an important business section about the ancient chapel; and that week-day ministrations of religion might be expected to develop there, in time, which would be comparable, in their interest and helpfulness to business people, to the notable services at Trinity Church and St. Paul's Chapel during Lent and Advent. These week-day services and addresses to many people are quite as important as the Sunday services and ordinary parochial activity of these churches on lower Broadway. Good Friday at Trinity and at St. Paul's is an object lesson to the entire country. It is an inspiration to Christian people everywhere.

The point that I wish to call attention to is that the improvements in the neighborhood of St. John's suggest a future of like usefulness in Varick Street. Why not? The neighborhood of Trinity and St. Paul's was once residential, and is now commercial. Varick Street is undergoing a similar transformation. Its widening and the new subway will transform it into one of the principal thoroughfares of the city, bringing, as far as one can see, a vast week-day population to the very door of the chapel, as is now the case upon lower Broadway, and Wall Street and at Fulton Street. To abandon St. John's now seems like throwing away a religious opportunity at the moment when its promise is brighter than at any other time within a generation.

The Wasteful Nosebag.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue of your paper appeared a letter from one of your readers concerning the prevalent kind of nosebag for feeding horses, and it only added another pang to the pity which I have felt for horses when I have seen these poor, dumb beasts struggling to get sustenance out of those stifling bags. I have also observed that when the bottom was almost reached they would throw up their heads, trying to get the last of the food, with the almost invariable result that a great deal of it was spilled on the ground. Therefore, on the score of economy, putting humane reasons aside, I should think that horse owners would try to evolve some new method of feeding, or that some inventor would take this matter up with the prospect of a fortune for himself, as well as the gratitude of all who love our faithful dumb friend, the horse.

A Forgotten Sea Disaster.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice in your paper of May 30 a list o marine disasters since 1850, and in the list is no mention of the Lyonnais, Franco-American Company. She sailed on Nov. 1, 1856, and was run into by the bark Adriatic on Nov. 2, during a heavy fog, 130 lives being lost. All passengers were placed in the boats, but only one was picked up to tell the fate of the steamer. The Captain went down with his ship. My husband's mother and sister were among the lost. I have never seen it mentioned in any list since then.

THE SALE OF BIBLES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The number of languages into which the Bible has been translated in whole or in part is now not less than 600, and every year eight or ten new languages are added to the list. It is impossible at present to state the number of languages spoken to-day in all parts of the world. But it is estimated that versions are now available in which seven out of every ten human beings could read or hear at least the full Gospel narrative in the words of Holy Scripture.

At the 110th annual meeting of the British and Foreign Bible Society, held in London on May 6, a report of the preceding year was presented which far exceeds anything hitherto achieved in the circulation of these versions. The issues for the year in over 400 languages were within a few thousands of 9,000,000 copies:

New Testaments	1,275,040
Portions larger or smaller	6,676,912
Total	8,958,233

The report of the American Bible Society for the same year ending on March 31, 1914, enumerates a total issue for the year of 5,251,176 volumes, an advance over the previous year of 1,201,566 volumes.

If, in addition to the issues of the two great British and American societies, reports were to hand from the Scottish Bible Society, the Bible societies on the Continent in Holland, France, Germany, Russia, and the great private publishing houses of the world, it would be seen that during the single year just closed at least 18,000,000 copies of the Holy Scriptures were put into circulation. It should be noted that this circulation is not gratuitous. The rule of the Bible societies, as well as of the private publishers, is the rule of sale, and it is only under very exceptional circumstances that small free grants are made.

Issues reported 1910	6,620,024
Issues reported 1911	6,695,886
Issues reported 1912	7,394,523
Issues reported 1913	7,899,562
Issues reported 1914	8,958,233

It is just 100 years since the first New Testament in the Chinese language passed through the press in Canton. Last year 2,183,000 Bibles, New Testaments, and Scripture portions were issued in China by the British and Foreign Bible Society, and 1,168,965 by the American Bible Society.

Law and Order in Far Rockaway.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Where in this great City of New York is its public administration as related to the welfare of its border communities?

Take Far Rockaway, for instance. The settlement is evidently equipped to the full with fire, police, and street cleaning services. That is, we see policemen and firemen a-plenty, and seemingly enough street cleaners to do the work expected of them, but somehow things are not done as they should be and as paid for.

Last Tuesday, June 2, I moved down to Far Rockaway for the Summer, as has been my custom for years. The following morning I noticed on my way to the station, in the main thoroughfare, Central Avenue, just in front of the Ocean House and just across the way from the old site of St. Joseph's Hospital, the carcass of a large white bull terrier that had been placed there over night. This morning, June 6, that carcass is still there, despite the fact that hundreds of persons have passed in the meantime, inclusive of policemen on patrol and employes of the Street Cleaning Department.

Is this municipal efficiency?

The Vindictive Suffragists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just read your account of Gov. Glynn's reception of a delegation of woman suffragists, who called to persuade him to preside at a meeting in Albany. Miss Vandergrift's remarks concerning his refusal would have been more becoming in a petulant child. It is fortunate for the Governor and for all other public officials who have not done just as the suffragists wanted that these piqued women stand a very small chance of being able to "take it out" (through the ballot box) on those who have not agreed with them.

According to their own figures only 8 per cent. of the women of this country really want to vote, and when the question of their being given the franchise does come up to be decided by the Legislature in 1915, the men must realize that the desire of the majority should rule, and so will not force responsibility on the 92 per cent. of the women who do not want the ballot.

It is so unfortunate that our suffrage sisters are such poor losers! M. Q. W.

Japanese Slew Dr. Stryker.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The accuracy of my statement in your columns regarding the nationality of the man who murdered Dr. Stryker in Korea having been called in question by your correspondent, I have made further inquiries and have discovered the following facts. They are taken from official records in Japan:

The man was 48 years of age and hailed from Fukuoka Prefecture, in Japan. He had been repeatedly convicted of grave offenses in Japan. In November, 1899, he was sentenced to ten years of penal servitude by the Fukuoka local court for manslaughter. He was released in 1909. He subsequently crossed to Korea and engaged in shoemaking in Suan, where the American mines are situated.

The English and American papers in Japan make no mention of his possible Korean origin. The Seoul Press, a rabid apologist of Japanese tactics in Korea, would have been too glad to make out that this man was a Korean; but it makes no such statement. It is only in America and Europe that the equivocal statement has been promulgated.

GIVING HIM "THE SILENCE."

Some people are insisting
  That editors should fall
In silence on a person
  Whose name I do not call,
And make no further mention
  In print of him at all.

They're saying that his greatness
  Would be exceeding slim
If editors would only
  Stop magnifying him
And let him have a silence
  Commensurate with his vim.

They say no other product
  Of all our wonder-land
Is advertised as he is,
  Creating a demand
For him against all others,
  No matter how they stand.

But what's the good of silence
  In such a glory game—
If never in a paper
  Were mention of his name?
This rule these verses follow,
  But you know him just the same,
    Don't you?

MARRA WINS N. Y. U. PRIZE.

Junior Captures Sandham Oration Contest—Class Day Today.

In the annual Sandham Oration Prize Contest held yesterday afternoon at New York University, on the third day of the Commencement Week exercises, Ubaldo J. Marra, winning from a field of thirty-eight competitors, thirty-two of whom had been eliminated in preliminary contests, received the first prize of $100 for his oration, "An Appeal for Peace."

In announcing their decision, the judges, the Rev. Percy B. Wightman, Dr. Thomas C. Halligan and Dr. Charles Minturn Baxter, said that the winner had excelled not only in delivery but also in composition. Second place, carrying with it a prize of $75, was awarded to Joseph Spath Ziadi, for his "Human Weeds." Honorable mention was given Luigi Sorieri for his oration on Giuseppe Garibaldi. The winner of the first prize is a junior and both the other men seniors. The prizes are the income from a fund founded by Miss Anna M. Sandham in memory of her brother.

After the competition for the Sandham prizes, the formal presentation of the keys was made to those who had this year been admitted into the Phi Beta Kappa Society. In making the presentation, Prof. Charles Lawrence Bristol, who officiated in the absence of Dr. John J. Stevenson, said that out of the 26,500 persons now members of the society there were about 6,500 women. In 1898, after considerable trouble, due to objections, a chapter was established at Vassar. Now six woman's colleges have active chapters and the result of the last year's election shows that 500 women received the golden keys against only 700 men. The following men were admitted:

John S. Caudwell, John W. Draper, Norman W. Sultzer, Stephen S. Rich, Samuel S. Weinick, Maurice Pike, Edward Everett Gardner, Adolph Sitzman and Francisco Barranco. The last two were absent through sickness. Honorary membership was bestowed on Dean-elect Archibald L. Bouton, who will become dean of the College of Arts in September on the retirement of Dr. Francis Hovey Stoddard.

Today will be given up to the class day exercises of the graduates from the College of Arts and the School of Applied Science. These will be held on Battery Hill on the campus.

OPPOSES PLAYGROUND PLAN

J. H. Davis Protests Against Proposed Converting of Washington Sq.

Joseph L. Delafield, Secretary of the Washington Square Association, made public yesterday a letter which he had received from John H. Davis, banker and broker, of 10 Wall Street, protesting against the movement to turn Washington Square into a children's playground. The attack on the integrity of the square began when it was suggested as a site for the new Court House, and ever since the residents of the neighborhood have been disturbed by the threat of turning the historic park into a collection of sand piles.

"Washington Square," says Mr. Davis, "is much more than a mere public park. It is a new York institution which has become famous for its memories, its character, and its dignity. It remains typical of that older New York of which so little remains to impress the new generation and the foreign-born thousands. In its appearance the square preserves much of the sense of peaceful right living which once pervaded New York, but which now has all but disappeared since commercialism has driven so many noise-fearing families to the suburbs."

Mr. Davis goes on to cite the labors of the residents of the neighborhood to preserve its old-time character, though they themselves are financial losers by it, and points out that transformation of the square into the playground would make it an undesirable place of residence for them. He denies that the need of more playgrounds calls for the sacrifice of Washington Square, and urges that this end could be much better served by the purchase of ground further down town and nearer to congested districts, where ramshackle old houses could be pulled down.

"Such a move," he says, "would vastly improve a low neighborhood. The use of Washington Square would destroy one of a high character. The city's children need playgrounds, but the whole city needs Washington Square as an example of what is best as a memorial, as a tradition, and as a wholesome neighborhood."

WOMAN DOCTOR FOR ISLAND.

Dr. Davis Appoints Dr. Hubert Resident Physician at Workhouse.

Dr. Anna Hubert of Seattle, Wash., was yesterday appointed a resident physician at the workhouse on Blackwell's Island by Katharine B. Davis, Commissioner of Correction. For some time Commissioner Davis has been trying to obtain funds to provide for a woman physician to examine female prisoners, as the present system of examining women is very incomplete, owing to the fact that so many new prisoners are received each day and that the physicians have all they can do to examine male prisoners. There are about 400 women prisoners in the workhouse now, and new arrivals run from 15 to 80 a day.

Funds making the appointment of a woman physician possible were supplied to the Commissioner by the Association of Grand Jurors. The money supplied will be enough to pay Dr. Hubert until Jan. 1, by which time Commissioner Davis hopes to get additional funds from the city to make the appointment permanent. Her salary is to be $1,800 a year. Dr. Hubert is a graduate of the University of Washington and Johns Hopkins University. After several years of private practice she was made resident physician and surgeon at the New York Infirmary for Women and Children. She resigned last January, and returned to Seattle.

In her plan of reorganizing the prison institutions, following the arrest of Dr. Baxter, resident physician, on the charge of selling drugs, Commissioner Davis hopes to be able to appoint by July 1 a woman Superintendent to be in full charge of the female prisoners. The money for this office will also come from outside organizations.

HEARING ON NEAR-SIDE STOP

Aldermen to Vote on Street Car Ordinance Today.

The Committee on Public Thoroughfares of the Board of Aldermen held a hearing yesterday on the proposed ordinance requiring street cars to stop at the near side of crossings instead of the far side. Ernest P. Goodrich, Consulting Engineer of the Borough of Manhattan and Chairman of the Advisory Street Traffic Commission, who drafted the ordinance after a three months' investigation of traffic conditions in other cities, said:

"The police authorities in the big cities of the United States are agreed that the near side stop for street cars promotes safety and convenience. Safety, of course, is the most important consideration, and our investigation leaves no doubt on that score. Under the near side rule the cars stop for passengers before crossing streets, and the motorman has time to see intersecting traffic. Furthermore, vehicular and pedestrian traffic crossing in front of the car is more sure of its ground and less liable to danger.

"As far as convenience is concerned, it is apparent that the fewer number of stops a car makes, the less delay there is in transporting passengers. Under the present conditions the cars have to stop twice at a great number of streets, and that means wasted time."

The aldermen will vote on the ordinance today.

RARE SCULPTURES IN ART MUSEUM

FINE FLORENTINE CASSONE

The Metropolitan Art Museum has many important pieces in the Recent Accessions Room and other parts of the Museum. Among the first in importance are a couple of Renaissance sculptures and a rare Florentine cassone.

The first of the sculptures, which is to be seen in Room 1, Wing F, on the main floor of the Museum, is a beautiful Pietà, by Benedetto da Majano, one of the last of the Florentine sculptors of the fifteenth century. This is of terra cotta, four figures—the Christ, which shows wonderful refinement and delicacy of modeling and expression; the Virgin, the Magdalen, and St. John. The faces and figures of the women express deep grief, while that of the youthful saint is more artificial. The composition is similar to that of the great Pietà of Michelangelo in St. Peter's, Rome, one of his first great works, which appeared a few years later than the work of Benedetto.

Of great charm in delicacy and grace of line is a small marble relief by Agostino di Duccio, four figures, the scene supposed to show the return of the youthful Jesus to His mother after His discourse with the doctors. This was formerly in the Aynard collection.

The cassone, or wedding chest, which the Museum has now acquired is of unusual interest and beauty, differing from the varying types of the tenth, fifteenth, and early sixteenth century cassoni already in its possession, and rare in any museum. The unusual feature of the present cassone, which in general outlines has the bold relief of the late Renaissance, is the painted panel in the front. These were not unusual features in themselves, but were frequently painted by the great artists of the day, and were taken from the cassoni and sold as paintings. The beautiful Sienese panel, in two parts, by Sano di Pietro, one of the recent accessions shown by the Museum last month, was supposed to have been removed from one of these old chests. So seldom are the chests and their painted valuable panel decorations found together that the Museum is exceedingly fortunate in this acquisition. The scene in the painting is one of interest, as well as decorative value. There is a deep blue sea of the old Italian blue, buildings, and many figures in costume, giving variety of color. It represents the conquest of Trebizond by the Sultan Muhammed II. The date of the cassone is about 1475, and it is understood from a reliable source that it was originally in the Strozzi Palace.

Two pieces of Chinese sculpture, which the Museum has also placed on exhibition, are of the greatest importance. They represent the powerful and vigorous sculpture of the early dynasties of China, which has only become known within the last few years.

The Museum, Director Edward Robinson said yesterday, will endeavor to keep abreast with the development of the discoveries of this very interesting work of the Chinese as it is found. The present acquisitions are a large stone statue and a head.

The former created a sensation in the Exposition des Arts de l'Asie in the Museum Cernuschi in Paris last year. It is a female figure, possibly Kouan Yin, and came from a group of sculptures, one of the most important in the development of Chinese art and one of the few from the Long-men caves. These date from the end of the Northern Wei Dynasty to the beginning of the T'ang Dynasty, from A. D. 523 to 675. The figure is full length, standing in an easy attitude; the face, which has a straight, almost Grecian nose, and shows the Indian influence, has a pleasing expression. Kouan Yin has been placed in the gallery on the second floor near that in which is contained the Morgan porcelains.

The head, which is of Bodhisativa, has a beautiful calm majesty of expression, and is one of the finest recently imported from China. It is supposed to be somewhat earlier than the statue, belonging to the sixth century. It can be seen in the Special Exhibition Room with other Chinese exhibits and will remain there during the Summer.

A collection of eighty odd sword guards has been presented to the Museum by Mrs. Adrian H. Joline and can now be seen in the Recent Accessions Room, and will be a foundation for the Museum's further development along this line. The heirs of the late Charles Stewart Smith have presented the Museum with a collection of seventy Chinese and Japanese paintings, screens, albums, kakemonos, and work by Hokusai, which will be shown in the Gallery of Special Exhibitions in the Autumn.

Many beautiful pieces of furniture, other pieces belonging to the bequest of the late John L. Cadwalader, some of which were shown last month, are to be seen this month in the Recent Accessions Room, with porcelain, glass, and Chinese bronzes and a delightful collection of silver boxes, all a part of the same gift.

A delightful pendant designed by Holbein is one of the interesting pieces in the Accessions Room. It is of silver gilt, the stone, which has the appearance of a cornelian, oblong, held with the metal, and in the centre of a delicate cut design, with a little flower on either side and a pearl hanging from the lower edge. The design for this pendant is in the Swiss Museum at Bâle.

The Altman collection, which will be temporarily shown, probably in November in Galleries 35-39, in which the Crosby-Brown collection of musical instruments was formerly placed, has been transferred from Mr. Altman's house to the Museum and placed in storage. Theodore Y. Hobby and Arthur J. Boston, Mr. Altman's two secretaries, in whose care it was his wish that the collection should remain, have been appointed by the Trustees of the Museum, respectively, Keeper and Assistant Keeper of the Altman collection. The Crosby-Brown collection of musical instruments is being installed in its new quarters in galleries 26-29 on the first floor of the Museum.

J. S. MORGAN GOES ABROAD.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Also a Passenger on the Kronprinz Wilhelm.

The Kronprinz Wilhelm of the North German Lloyd Line sailed at 1 o'clock this morning for Bremen via Plymouth and Cherbourg, with a large cabin list.

Junius Spencer Morgan, who was just out of Harvard for the Summer, and whose engagement to Miss Louise Converse had just been announced, sailed for Switzerland, where he intended to do Alpine climbing. Lincoln Steffens went to Europe to study sociological conditions, he said.

Cornelius Vanderbilt with his young daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Orme Wilson were among the other passengers.

A report was sent out at night from the Branch Hydrographic Office stating that the Atlantic was clear of ice south of 41.50, and the bergs were moving northward.

The Uranium Line steamship Campanello reported that the position of an iceberg she sighted yesterday was latitude 42.15 north and longitude 49.00 west.

MAE A. SULLIVAN ARRESTED AT DEBUT

BAIL GIVEN IN THEATRE

Introduced as "No Actress," Breach of Promise Plaintiff Gives a Verse of a Summer Song.

Yesterday was an exciting day for Mae A. Sullivan, who recently sued Arthur Hoe for breach of promise. In the morning she was declared in contempt of court for failing to appear in a suit brought against her. In the afternoon and evening she appeared at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre and failed to make a hit, and then, following the night performance, she was arrested at the theatre on the contempt charge.

Just as the girl finished her act, so-called, last night, Deputy Sheriff Philip J. McDonnell arrested her on a bench warrant from the City Court, which charges her with contempt. She was not permitted to remove her make up and remained in the lobby of the playhouse in the custody of the Deputy Sheriff until a bond was signed. Harry Mock, an employe of the theatre, served as surety for her to the amount of $250.

Mae Sullivan was hel din contempt of court in Part I., Special Term of the City Court, before Justice La Fetra for failing to appear in answer to her name when it was called in a suit in which Sern & Greenberg of 103d Street and Columbus Avenue, house furnishers, are the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs allege that Miss Sullivan purchased from their store a little more than a year ago furnishings for the apartmen tat 420 Riverside Drive, which she asserted was furnished by Arthur Hoe in the recent suit against him for $225,000 for breach of promise.

Mirabeau L. Towns, counsel for Miss Sullivan, appeared and remarked that he was of the opinion that the tapestry referred to in the proceedings of the furniture dtaler's in particular came from Mr. Hoe. Further, he said that the arrest was illegal, for Miss Sullivan is under 21 years of age, and in the eyes of the law an infant, and service should be made on her guardian. All cotnected with the arrest, Lawyer Towns asserted, were subject to damages.

At Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre in the afternoon Miss Sullivan made her début as an actress, performer, or entertainer, or whatever term Mr. Hammerstein cared to use to describe her rôle.

The young woman was introduced by Loney Haskell, the theatre's manager, who stepped upon the stage carrying a garden hoe. He asked that the audience be lenient with the Sullivan girl, as she was making her first appearance. He said the girl was no actress, but that she was being offered simply to "show the sort of woman millionaires fall in love with."

Then Mae Sullivan spoke a few words, in which she thanked Mr. Hammerstein for the opportunity he was affording her to make a living. She said that she could not sing or dance, but that she would try and "talk" a little song. She sang a verse of a Summer song, and six young men looking like Hammerstein ticket speculators dressed in sailor clothes joined in the chorus. There was no encore.

The young woman was on the stage less than five minutes. All of the members of the Hammerstein family were present except Willie, who was ill and confined to a hospital.

MANAGERS ORGANIZE.

"Only Preparing the Shield Now," Marc Klaw Says.

A large number of theatrical managers and operators of moving picture houses, members of the United Managers' Protective Association of the Amusement Interests of the United States and Canada, which was organized last week, met at the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon and ratified the constitution and by-laws as reported by the Board of Governors. After the meeting President Marc Klaw said that the managers would not consider disagreements that may arise with the stage helpers' union. "We are only preparing the shield now," he said, "and cannot anticipate how it would be necessary to use it. We have as yet no complaint or demand from any of the unions."

GUY H. SCULL MARRIES.

Guy H. Scull, private secretary to Police Commissioner Arthur Woods, was married at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon to Miss Nancy Whitman, daughter of Mrs. Matthew C. Butler of 66 East Seventy-seventh Street. The ceremony was performed in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, 551 Fifth Avenue, by the Rev. Herbert Shipman, the rector, in the presence of a few friends, among them Mr. Woods. Philip Curtis, Mr. Scull's cousin, was best man. To most of Mr. Scull's friends the marriage will come as a surprise, as no announcement was made of the wedding. Mr. Scull didn't want any publicity, and told Commissioner Woods that he would be back at work today.

"If you are," said Commissioner Woods, "I'll fire you."

Mr. Scull has an interesting record as a soldier of fortune. The spirit of adventure seized him first while he was at Harvard, and, with several other students, he chartered the old cup defender Mayflower and went on a search for sunken treasure off the coast of Jamaica. During the Boer war he went to South Africa as a war correspondent, and he was in Manchuria as a correspondent during the Russo-Japanese war. When the Spanish-American war started he enlisted with Col. Roosevelt's Rough Riders. He also accompanied Buffalo Jones into Africa, and was a member of the Secret Service, detailed to duty on the Texas border during the Madero revolution in Mexico. He was secretary to Mr. Woods when the latter was Fourth Deputy Police Commissioner under Gen. Bingham.

Miss Marione E. Richey is to be her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will include the Misses Margaret Richey, another sister, Helen Walbridge, Frances Northrope, and Jeannette K. Tomkins.

The Rev. Tomkins will have the Rev. A. Rufus Morgan as his best man, and the ushers will be Kenneth Durant and Edwin I. Atlee, Jr., of Philadelphia, Donald Souder and Leslie Cushman of New York; George Redwood of Baltimore, and Francis Buck of New Castle.

After a short wedding trip the couple will live in Valle Crucis, N. C. The New York home of the Rev. and Mrs. Richey was at 354 West Twenty-first Street. The Rev. Richey was connected with Trinity Chapel in West Twenty-fifth Street for many years.

MISS IDA TAYLOR ENGAGED.

Mr. and Mrs. George Miller Taylor of New Rochelle, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ida Miller Taylor, to the Rev. Francis James M. Cotter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis James Cotter of 26 East Thirty-fifth Street, this city. Miss Taylor is a granddaughter of the late Alexander Taylor, banker, and her great-grandfather gave Union Square to New York.

Mr. Cotter is a graduate of Columbia University and of the General Theological Seminary. He is to leave on Aug. 4 for Hankow, China, having just been appointed to the Diocese of Hankow. Miss Taylor plans to go to China in about a year, where their wedding is to take place.

Miss Porter, Bride of Dr. Wyckoff.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Crane Porter, daughter of Mrs. Elbert S. Porter, to Dr. John Henry Wyckoff, Jr., of this city took place on Saturday at the home of the Misses Crane, aunts of the bride, at Claverack, N. Y. The Rev. Dr. John H. Wyckoff of New York, father of the bridegroom, assisted by the Rev. Herman Hageman, pastor of the Reformed Church at Claverack, performed the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of the late Rev. Elbert S. Porter of Stockbridge, Mass., and a granddaughter of the Rev. Dr. Elbert Porter, formerly of Brooklyn. She was graduated from Mount Holyoke, class of '09. Miss Lucy Porter of Barnard College, was her sister's only attendant. Dr. Robert P. Wadhams was best man.

Miss Adelaide Merry a Bride.

Miss Adelaide Merry of Brooklyn, granddaughter of the late Harley Merry and Adelle Roselle Merry, who were well known on the stage in their generation, was married yesterday morning to John Wallace, who is with the Metropolitan Art Museum. The wedding took place at St. Ignatius R. C. Church, Brooklyn. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Caprick. Miss Katherine Tadden of Flatbush was bridesmaid and Frederick Laddy of Manhattan was best man. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served in the Hotel Knickerbocker, Manhattan. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace will spend their honeymoon in a bungalow on Jamaica Bay.

Miss Holmes to Wed H. S. Durand.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Holmes of 43 West Fifty-seventh Street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mildred Holmes, to Harry S. Durand. Miss Holmes made her début in society three years ago, and is prominent in the younger set. Mr. Durand is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart Durand of 124 West Seventy-ninth Street. He was graduated from Yale University, class of '13. No date has been set for the wedding.

Reed-Townsend Engagement.

LENOX, Mass., June 8.—The engagement of Miss Edith Reed, daughter of the late Charles Reed of Yonkers, N. Y., to Richard S. Townsend of Brookline, was announced today. The wedding will take place at Miss Reed's Fairfield Farm in Great Barrington in the Fall. Mr. Townsend is a son of the late Edward B. Townsend. He was graduated from Harvard in 1907 and is a member of many Boston clubs.

COLEMAN—THORMAN.

The wedding of Miss Florence A. Thorman to Julian Coleman of this city took place on Sunday afternoon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. M. H. Tuch of 220 West Ninety-eighth Street. The bride was attended by Mrs. Albert Walter Weill, who acted as matron of honor. The Rev. Dr. Rudolph Grossman performed the ceremony, which was followed by a small reception.

OGDEN—HENRY.

Mrs. John R. Ogden of 108 East Sixty-first Street announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Sara Devereaux Ogden, to Allan J. Henry of Philadelphia, Penn. Mr. Henry is a member of the Philadelphia Club, the University Barge Club, and the Philadelphia Cricket Club. No date has been set for the wedding.

KARP—SIEGEL.

The engagement of Miss Beatrice Rita Karp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Karp of 280 New Jersey Avenue, Brooklyn, to Harry G. Siegel has been announced.

Diplomats Here for Polo Matches.

Many of the Diplomatic Corps are at the Ritz-Carlton to attend the polo matches at Meadow Brook. There was considerable disappointment yesterday morning, when it was learned that the first game would be postponed until Saturday. Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador; the Russian Ambassador and Mrs. George Bakhmeteff, Dr. Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, and Baron Haniel von Haimhausen, Counselor of the German Embassy, were some of the arrivals. Others who came for the polo were Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr., of Chicago, Mrs. Barclay Warburton of Philadelphia, and Lady Montague Allan.

7,000 GIRLS ENJOY DANCE FETE IN PARK

DEAF AND BLIND DO WELL

The sheep meadow of Central Park, near the West Sixty-sixth Street entrance, blossomed yesterday afternoon with a hundred Maypoles, around which seven or eight thousand girls belonging to the Public Schools Athletic League danced and had a great frolic. It was the seventh annual park fête, and the participants were pupils of sixty-eight schools in Manhattan, sixteen in the Bronx and eight in Queens. Miss Elizabeth Burchenal, Executive Secretary of the girls' branch of the Public Schools Athletic League, was in command.

The sheep meadow was roped off for the occasion, and behind the barriers nearly 15,000 spectators were banked. Capt. Shevlin and fifty policemen were in charge of the party, with assistance from 300 Boy Scouts under the direction of Mrs. Lorillard Spencer and Charles L. Pollard. The ceremonies began shortly after 3 o'clock, with the driving off the field of a flock of goats belonging to the city, which had been pasturing in the meadow, to the great alarm of some of the little girls, and their departure was approved by everybody.

In the centre of the field Miss Burchenal had her headquarters, in a stand occupied by the Squadron A band under M. J. Ryan. Up to this year the Huyler Band of Public School 21, Manhattan, had played at all the park fêtes, but this year's gathering was too large for them to be heard in all parts of the field, so a professional band did the work and the Huyler boys were present in uniform as guests of the management. By this time the Maypoles furnished by the Board of Education had been set up, each decorated with the colors of its school, and around each pole crowded girls dressed in white with belts or sashes of the school colors.

Massed Inside the Ropes.

As the time for the first exercises drew near they all fell back slowly and massed just inside the ropes, to come charging back at the double quick when the band and Miss Burchenal's waving flag gave the signal, and to cluster around the various Maypoles to go through the athletic and dancing events of the afternoon's programme. The heavy clouds banking up in the West threatened a downpour nearly all afternoon, but only a few scattered drops fell, and the worst inconvenience caused was the spreading over the whole field, toward the end of the afternoon, of a mist which made it difficult to see what was going on everywhere at the same time.

The list of events opened with the Carrousel, a Swedish singing game, followed by the "Three," a Danish folk dance, and another Swedish song game called "The Seven Jolly Girls." Punch ball and ball throwing brought in more vigorous activity, and were followed by rope-jumping with dancing steps, to which succeeded a series of Swedish games—"Gustaf's Skoal," "Ostgotapolska," "Our Little Girls," and "Nigarepolska." A shuttle relay and the Danish folk dance of "The Seven Jumps" ended this part of the programme, and left the way clear for the winding up of the Maypoles. The programme of the day contained the warning. "We use folk dancing to bring about a happy feeling among the dancers and not to provide a pleasant sight for onlookers," but the onlookers appeared sufficiently satisfied with what they saw.

Fifty deaf children from Public School 47, Manhattan, danced in excellent time, following the rhythm by lip-reading as the teachers called out the measure. Later, when visited by a party of the guests of honor, they lined up before Miss Adela J. Smith, their teacher, and recited the first and last stanzas of "America." Nine little blind girls from Public School 17, Manhattan, danced with a party of girls who could see, and so well did they keep together that spectators were unable to distinguish the sightless dancers from the others.

Cheers for Miss Burchenal.

After the winding of the Maypoles the girls fell back again to the ropes, while a party of visitors gathered around Miss Burchenal in the stand. At the signal the girls came charging in for the last time, crowded around the bandstand, and sang "The Star-Spangled Banner," after which they finished the day with a salvo of vigorous cheers for Miss Burchenal.

About fifteen little girls who had strayed away from their commands were picked up by police, Boy Scouts and members of Miss Burchenal's staff and taken to the Sheepfold Sub-station, just inside the park entrance, where Lieut. Easton and Motorcycle Patrolman King cared for them until teachers who were responsible for them had come in and recovered them.

Dr. Georg Brandes, the famous Danish critic, who saw the exercises, expressed himself as charmed with the dancing of the girls and amazed by the sight of a crowd of children larger than any he had ever seen in Denmark. Those in his party were G. Bech, the Danish Consul; Emil Orffer, editor of Nordlyset, and Mrs. Orffer; J. W. von Rehling-Quistgaard, the minature painter; Miss Karin Sehested, and Mrs. Löchen Drewsen, Chairman of the Norwegian Woman Suffrage Society. Among others in the headquarters gallery were Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel, M. d'Anglade, French Consul General; Mr. and Mrs. Marcus M. Marks and Miss Marks, Mrs. William Delano, Mrs. Edward Delafield, Mrs. M. L. Draper, Mrs. Howard Cushing, Miss Catherine Leverich, C. Ward Crampton, Director of Physical Education; Gustavus T. Kirby, Director of the Public Schools Athletic League, and Mrs. Kirby.

Mme. Lina Cavalieri as Manon.

"Manon Lescaut," one of the most classical of all romantic love stories, with Lina Cavalieri as the heroine and Lucien Muratore of international operatic fame in the character of Des Grieux, and a supporting company of much prominence, will be the Summer attraction at the Republic Theatre, opening with the matinee on next Saturday.

CHARITIES.

SOMETHING ELSE FOR YOU TO THINK ABOUT.

THE A. I. C. P. MEETS REAL NEEDS, NOT MERE DESIRES,

SHOW MOVIE MYSTERIES.

President Wilson pressed an electric button in Washington promptly at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and rang a bell in the Grand Central Palace here, which officially opened the second annual Motion-Picture Exposition, which will continue all this week.

Motion-picture men from all parts of the United States are here in convention this week, and yesterday afternoon and last night the exposition was crowded with representatives of the many film firms and several hundred movie actors and actresses.

Following the opening signal, flashed by President Wilson from the White House, Alma Gluck, the opera singer, sang "America," in which most of the visitors to the exposition joined. Immediately after singing Miss Gluck hurried to the Kronprinz Wilhelm and sailed for Europe.

After the singing Daniel Frohman was the first of several speakers, and he announced the purposes for which the exposition in the amusement field had been promoted. He prefaced his address by referring to the fact that in securing President Wilson's aid the exposition had "corralled the greatest player in the greatest of American dramas."

Answering clergymen who in their addresses in the city have referred to some of the objectionable features which have been under discussion concerning motion pictures, Mr. Frohman assured them that not only has the progress developed the motion picture industry to a degree of great financial representation, but with the actual co-operation of such men as David Belasco, Augustus Thomas and other playwrights of the day there need be no apprehension or fear as to the cleanliness of the entertainment sponsored by those who are interested in the moving picture industry, nor doubt as to the educational and entertaining qualities of the class of plays which are being shown and prepared to be shown on the screens of the twenty thousand moving picture theatres now in existence.

In 1904 the first Biograph studio contained a small stage where only one scene at a time could be photographed, and when daylight was not available they could use only a 50,000-candle-power light in their theatre. The studio in the exposition is a model of what is today the largest studio in the world, in which 850,000 actual candle power is employed daily for the manufacture of films, and where four stages are in operation under this ligt at the same time, and are in use constantly day and night.

In the evening many of the players who are uder contract with the various film companies entered the dancing and tango contests for prizes which are to be awarded on Saturday night.

Booths on the main floor represent every important moving picture company in the United States and are enhanced by the attendance of each company's star players.

Burglars on Roof Garden.

S. R. Tobin, manager of the Madison Square Garden Roof, reported to the police of the East Twenty-second Street Station last night that burglars had entered the stockroom, where cigars, liquors, and wines are kept, on the roof and carried off much liquer and tobacco and many gold and silver cups given as prizes for dancing.

RICE.—At a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, held on the 8th day of June, 1914, the following minute was directed to be placed on the records of the board:

It is but a scant year ago that we, the Directors of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, were called on the occasion of the celebration of his golden wedding to join in rejoicing with the family and friends of Henry Rice, our associate for forty-three years and uninterruptedly the incumbent of the Vice Presidency during nearly that whole period, and to extend our heartfelt congratulations to him and his devoted wife on the anniversary of the day which had initiated a wedlock destined for fifty years to be full fraught with happiness and contentment for themselves and their children, and to celebrate the union of two lives distinguished for works of charity, for self-sacrifice and altruism, and for service to humanity. Our felicitations to them then extended were the heartier since their faculties, so untiringly and unselfishly exercised, appeared unimpaired and further years of happiness and usefulness were then reasonably anticipated.

But this hope, so fondly entertained, has been blighted, and today we are summoned to learn the sad tidings of the death of the man to whom we owed so much and to make a brief record of our appreciation of his splendid rendition of service.

Unusually endowed with sympathy for the dependent and the suffering, his selection as Chairman of the Committee on Outdoor Relief was coincident with his election as a Director in 1872. The experience he obtained soon made him conversant with the insufficiency and the ineptitude of the methods which then prevailed among the many organizations, some actually, some perfunctorily, engaged in affording relief to the deserving poor.

As the result of this knowledge he initiated a movement, and became foremost in its development, for the aggregation of those bodies whose work in this direction was meritorious and for the segregation and eventual obliteration of others whose labors were ineffectual and, not infrequently, injurious. His plans resulted in the organization of the United Hebrew Charities, of which, in 1874, he became President, an office which he held for many years, coincidently with his incumbency of the Vice Presidency of the asylum, and it was due to this quality of office that the funds of the asylum, so far as they legitimately might be, and fairly could be, were contributed to the support of that institution, which during his administration and since has rendered such important service in the relief of the Jewish poor of New York and the maintenance of a hearty co-operation with which were the unwavering insistence of our lamented Vice President.

But his labors in that especial behalf in no respect diminished his interest in and his attention to his duties as an officer and a Trustee of the asylum.

From the early days, when its wards were few in number, to the present moment, when the guardianship over more than 1,500 dependent children is exercised, no detail in the administration of its sacred trust but has been keenly watched by him. To the executive affairs of the institution, the health, the well-being, the education, secular and religious, of the children under its care, his time and energies were always devoted.

If in the loss that his family has sustained, if in our own bereavement, there can be found solace, it will be realized not only in the revered memory and the splendid record which he has left, but in the gratitude of 5,000 alumni of the asylum, men and women who to him more than to any other owe a successful career in life, and in that of thousands of his fellow-men, who owe to the sympathy which he extended them, to the aid and advice which he gave them, their redemption from penury and want, a condition changed from misery and despair to happiness and ambition.

Be it resolved, That this expression of respect and veneration for our dear friend, Henry Rice, by many years our senior Trustee, our long-time associate, our Vice President, our leader in the paths of usefulness whom we have undertaken to follow, the patriotic citizen, the loyal friend, and devoted husband and father, be entered in proper form to his family.

LOUIS STERN, President.
THEO. OBERMEYER, Hon. Secretary.

RICE.—At a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the United Hebrew Charities, held on Monday, June 8, 1914, the following resolutions were adopted:

"It is with profound sorrow that the Trustees of the Society have learned of the death of their venerable colleague, Henry Rice, for forty years, and since its inception, a trustee of the United Hebrew Charities, its President for thirty-four years, and its Honorary President for six years.

Though he was a distinguished figure in civic, commercial, and philanthropic life, a leader in many movements for human welfare, he loved best to come in close personal touch with the needy and helpless, believing that public service is most effectively rendered by the inspiration derived from personal service.

Beloved by his family, held in affection by his co-workers, esteemed by his friends and neighbors, and respected by his fellow-citizens, he lived a complete and noble life.

Some men are liberal in their philanthropies, others wise in ideas; some are kind in deed, others active in public service. All these qualities were combined in the life of Henry Rice.

Be it resolved, That the deep sympathy of the Trustees of this organization be extended to the members of his family, that these resolutions be published and a copy sent to the bereaved family.

And be it also resolved, That the Trustees attend the funeral services of their beloved colleague in a body.

SUMMER READING

Next Sunday The New York Times Book Review will publish a special Summer Reading Number, the principal feature of which will be an annotated list of One Hundred Books, selected from the season's output. This list has been prepared with a view to aiding those who are planning their Summer vacations, and who wish to take with them such books as are best calculated to perform the service of entertaining and profitable literary companions. Other features of this Summer Number will be found in special travel articles, indicating the best and most recent books for the prospective tourist, together with comprehensive reviews of current publications by some of our best known critics.

Those interested in books should place orders at once for The Sunday New York Times containing this Special Number of the Book Review.

Have you studied and compared hundreds of securities to determine which are the safest and most profitable?

We have.

Our conclusions are set forth in our booklet, "Best Values" (June number), which we will be glad to send you.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The news bearing on business and financial matters which came to hand yesterday was highly interesting and some of it was of prime importance, but it exerted scant effect upon the stock market. The dealings on the Exchange were only a little larger than during the short session of Saturday. Then trading and prices were stimulated by the credence given the report that the Commerce Commission was ready to hand down its freight rate decision. The financial and business communities were still waiting for that decision yesterday with continued confidence that it would be a partial verdict in favor of the railroads, but without any definite information as to the day when the commission's opinion in the case would be made public.

The outstanding news of the day was the Government crop report, showing a promise for the wheat crop more brilliant than that contained in last month's Government estimate, and the Supreme Court's decision in the important Shreveport rate case, which, though nominally against the railroads, seemed in its practical workings to be much in their favor. The budget of news included also the more routine items of further gold shipments, bringing the total shipments to Paris by today's steamer up to $7,000,000 and the monthly copper producers' statement, which showed an increase of 14,000,000 pounds in the stocks of the metal in the hands of producers notwithstanding a 9,000,000-pound reduction in last month's output. This showing accords with the recent reactionary tendency in the market for copper metal and is another reflection of the trade recession which has been a matter of so much recent discussion.

The Government report, suggesting a total wheat yield this year of 900,000,000 bushels, or 137,000,000 bushels in excess of the previous maximum wheat crop, touches upon a phase of the situation which goes to the very roots of the business outlook, and which is so highly promising as vastly to strengthen the expectation of a substantial expansion in business later in the year, notwithstanding the retarding factors which are making themselves so clearly felt today. Winter wheat showed less deterioration in condition than had been expected, and the estimated yield on the basis of the 92.7, June 1, condition is 638,000,000 bushels, which is 8,600,000 bushels in excess of the May estimate. The Spring wheat promise, which is, of course, much further from fulfillment than the Winter wheat estimate, is for a crop of 262,000,000 bushels, which just about equals the promise at this date a year ago. Later mishaps brought the actual yield in 1913 about 25,000,000 bushels under the June 1 estimate, but up to this time there is no suggestion of a repetition of this experience. The condition of other crops reported upon yesterday was favorable and well beyond the average. So long as there is no substantial impairment of an agricultural outlook such as is here suggested the business world can very reasonably look forward this Fall to much better conditions than have prevailed in recent months.

The Shreveport decision, as the financial community summarized it for its own purposes yesterday, goes far toward removing the element of conflict between State and Federal control of railroad rates by placing control exclusively in the hands of the Federal Government whenever State rates conflict with interstate rates. In this instance the way is open to the railroads to meet the situation by increasing rates within the State of Texas to the level of the interstate rates already passed upon by the Commerce Commission as reasonable. This is a gain for the railways directly concerned in this particular case, but railroad men will probably also see in this decision a promised escape in the whole railroad field from annoying and sometimes costly conflict between State and Federal regulation. Sentiment among railroad men has been developing strongly in favor of Federal as compared with State regulation of rates, as it has also been developing along similar lines in respect to the regulation of railroad security issues, if the single regulation of the central Government can be substituted for multiform supervision by the States.

Price movements on the Stock Exchange yesterday were irregular, but for the most part the more active issues ended with slight net losses. In other parts of the list gains predominated. Favorable reports were received from the bond market, where the continued accumulation of funds is serving to increase the expectation of a broadened demand for high-grade issues.

Rate Case Decision Soon Now.

It is unfortunate for the speculative side of the Stock Exchange that much of the news on which it is expected to build big markets is so long delayed that the appetite for it fails. The famous Consolidated Gas and Standard Oil decisions were reported as about to be announced for so many Mondays that nearly every one grew tired of watching for them, and most people were surprised when they finally appeared. So, with the rate case, which has been in the hands of the commission for so long that everything which could possibly be said about it in advance has been said. Gossip in Washington yesterday agreed that the Commissioners are now engaged in reducing their conclusions to paper, and that it will be only a matter of days before the results are made known. It is generally believed that the railroads will find a fly in their ointment if the commission grants an increase, but any concession whatever would be regarded as evidence of a change of heart on the part of the Washington authorities, and as showing the way to further advances later.

Outside Brokers Routed.

With the first scattering drops of yesterday's gentle rainstorm every curb broker ran for shelter, and for a quarter of an hour the roped-in space allotted to the street traders was vacated. Business has to be very quiet to allow of such easy desertion. When the oil stocks were booming and orders were coming in rapidly nothing short of a cloudburst was able to clear Broad Street. Most of the brokers who work outside have wet weather regalia within easy reach, and trading goes on, no matter what the weather, but transactions yesterday were on so small a scale that the brokers were able to execute their orders under the shelter of a friendly awning.

Monday Dullness Intensified.

The combination of heat, humidity, and Monday was too much for a large number of men having offices in the financial district, and the psychological depression was considered a sufficient excuse for taking a day off. Had the original plans for the polo matches been adhered to today would have seen even fewer important men at their desks. The Stock Exchange has seen duller days than yesterday in recent months, but few in which there was less enthusiasm. The expectation of a large number of Supreme Court decisions to be cleaned up before the Summer recess saved the ticker from general neglect.

New Crop Wheat for Export.

The promise of the greatest wheat crop the country has ever seen has not worked to bring about substantial reductions of prices on future contracts, and grain brokers say that it will probably be late in July before quotations begin to reflect the yield. The leading agent acting counter to sentimental influences in the market is the heavy buying for export. It is estimated that fully 30,000,000 bushels of the new crop has already been contracted for, and the passage of time brings no slackening in the activity of exporters. The European crop, on the whole, does not appear encouraging, and it is to anticipate a shortage that supplies are being arranged for, chiefly for shipment to the Continent.

Some Wheat Needs Hot Sun.

An expert on flour who returned yesterday from a long trip through the wheat belt said that the crop is in a rather critical state in Kansas and Nebraska as regards quality. A superabundance of rain in the greater portion of these States has brought a rank growth of the stalk and grain, but has not been of benefit in hardening the latter. The crop, said he, needs ten days of dry, hot weather to mature properly. When he left the fields, at the end of last week, the mud was deep everywhere and the farmers were watching the skies closely for a promise of clear weather. Yesterday's dispatches from the regions of too much moisture said that the change had not yet arrived.

Less May Copper Than in April.

Evidently copper producing interests decided that the rate of output in April might be lessened in May and the status of the market improved thereby. The refineries turned out the metal at a daily average of nearly 50,000,000 pounds in April, while the Copper Producers' figures for the past month showed that about 4,000,000 pounds less was refined each day. The heavy increase of stocks unsold gave evidence of the listless state of buying, especially when this expansion was placed in contrast with a restricted output of the refineries.

Taking Stock of Sentiment

A group in the customers' room of a brokerage office took a canvass of their feelings yesterday, and found that each one was more cheerful about business conditions than a week ago. Perhaps the firm tone of stocks had something to do with the change, but it developed in subsequent conversation that opinion was largely based on what some one engaged in textile or steel manufacturing lines had said about his affairs in the past few days. In many directions, it was said, evidences had appeared of incipient or promised, if not actual, improvement, and a slight return of confidence in regard to legislative matters at Washington would bring further progress. The pending rate decision was left out of the discussion as a matter which had been so thoroughly considered that it might be let alone.

$1,500,000 CLAIM UPHELD.

Court Rules on Notes of Twenty-third Street Railway Company.

Judge Hand in the Federal District Court yesterday held that the promissory notes of the Twenty-third Street Railway Company for $2,203,829.92, dated April 30, 1907, now held by the Bankers Trust Company as trustee, were a valid and enforceable obligation against the railroad to the amount of $1,500,000, with interest.

The Twenty-third Street Company is entitled to refund this note by the issue and delivery of bonds to the amount of $1,5000,000, secured by a mortgage on all its property and franchises.

GAIN IN SURPLUS COPPER.

May Production Added 14,005,640 Pounds to the Overstock.

Stocks of marketable copper at the country's refineries on June 1 amounted to 84,342,641 pounds, according to the monthly report of the Copper Producers' Association yesterday, a gain in May of 14,005,640 pounds. Production in the month was 142,303,287 pounds, a decrease of 9,192,244 pounds from April's record.

Foreign deliveries declined 9,634,739 pounds to 72,710,477 pounds, and there was a falling off of 7,835,463 pounds in deliveries to domestic consumers. The amount of the metal delivered to the trade on this side of the water was 55,592,170 pounds.

The figures on both production and deliveries were about in line with the expectations of the financial district. Advance estimates had set the gain in surplus copper somewhat higher than was shown in the report.

London Failures Relieve the Tension and Prices Advance —Paris Bourse Firm.

LONDON, June 8.—Money was cheaper and discount rates were easy today.

The suspension of the Canadian Agency, Limited, following Saturday's failure, had little effect on the stock market except to relieve the tension and create the belief that the worst was known. The tone was steadier and prices advanced on covering operations in which Underground rails, copper shares, and Brazilian bonds were the best features. Paris support assisted the improvement in the afternoon, and the market closed steady.

American securities were quiet and irregular, with prices within a small fraction of parity during the forenoon. Later the list hardened on New York buying and finished steady.

PARIS, June 8.—Prices were generally firm on the Bourse today.

HOLLINS TO PAY IN NOTES.

A meeting of creditors of H. B. Hollins & Co., stock brokers, of 15 Wall Street, who failed on Nov. 13, 1913, with liabilities of $5,834,643 and nominal assets of $6,829,128, was held yesterday at the office of Stanley W. Dexter, referee in bankruptcy, at 71 Broadway. It was largely attended. An offer of composition was submitted by Beekman, Menken & Griscom, attorneys for the firm. It provides for a settlement at 100 cents on the dollar in notes of the Equities Realization Corporation, a new corporation formed for this purpose.

Of the notes, 10 per cent. is to be paid in five days after the confirmation of the composition by the United States District Court, and 90 per cent. is payable upon liquidation of the assets of the firm which are to be turned over to the Equities Realization Corporation. The expenses of the bankruptcy proceedings shall be paid by the corporation.

Beekman, Menken & Griscom also submitted a letter to the meeting stating that to aid in effecting the composition, creditors with claims of $1,200,000 partially secured by collateral that it will be impossible to realize upon promptly have agreed not to make any claim against the firm, which will assure an increased rate of dividends to those accepting the plan of composition.

A majority of creditors in number and amount agreed to accept the composition, and efforts will be made to have the papers ready to bring the composition up in the United States District Court on June 22 for confirmation by Judge Hand.

$7,000,000 GOLD SHIPMENT.

Metal Going to Paris Today the Largest Transfer in Several Years.

The movement of gold from this centre to Paris was accelerated yesterday by engagements at the Sub-Treasury by three banking houses which aggregated $5,000,000. The metal will be shipped today on the Kaiser Wilhelm with $2,000,000 more engaged by the National City Bank last Friday. The total of $7,000,000 will be the largest sent from this country on one steamship in several years in the course of international operations in gold.

Yesterday's reservations at the Sub-Treasury were of $2,000,000 each for Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. The National City Bank took $1,000,000 late in the afternoon. So far on the present transfer to Europe $25,500,000 has gone out.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Prices shaded from Saturday's final level in the earliest dealings on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, but there was a quick recovery. Later in the day irregularity developed. At the same time the undertone continued good, with trading sentiment inclined to be optimistic, largely owing to the belief that the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission upon the application of the railroads for increased rates would be handed down very soon and would be favorable to the roads. The splendid Government crop report exhibit as to wheat was much commented upon, while the reported deferring of the Mexican blockade of the Port of Tampico also exerted a good effect.

OPPOSE CENTRAL MERGER.

Lake Shore Plan Is Assailed Before Ohio Service Board.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 8.—Objection to the proposed merger of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad Company and the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company was filed here today with the Ohio Public Utilities Commission by the Continental Securities Company, the General Investment Company and C. H. Venner & Co., all of New York. It is asserted that such a combination would be in violation of the Federal Anti-Trust laws since it would produce a greater degree of monopolization of traffic lines between Buffalo and Chicago than at present.

The New York concerns also say the New York Central now owns 90 per cent. of the outstanding capital stock of the Michigan Central, 90 per cent. of the stock of the Lake Shore and most of the stock of the Nickel Plate, all operating between Buffalo and Chicago. They recite further that the New York Central owns the Western Transit Company, with the exception of the line operating between Detroit and Chicago.

NO ROCK ISLAND AGREEMENT

With a little more than three weeks left before the payment of about $3,500,000 interest and equipment maturities must be provided for, the two committees representing collateral bondholders and the stockholders of the Rock Island are still disagreed on the part that the two classes of security holders are to play in the provision of funds for reorganization.

It is agreed that $30,000,000 in cash must be obtained to carry out the changes recommended by E. W. McKenna. The protective committee representing the stockholders submitted a plan proposing a division of the assessment, and the bondholders, after studying it for several days, returned it with proposed alterations. They have not learned yet what attitude the stockholders will take toward their proposals.

It was proposed that both of the two holding companies saddled on the Rock Island Railway should be done away with, leaving only the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company. The plan under discussion called for the payment of $30,000,000 by the Rock Island Company stockholders, in return for which they would get a like amount of new 7 per cent. preferred stock to be issued by the railway. The collateral trust bondholders would get the common stock of the railway deposited under their bonds. This plan would have to be underwritten, and holders of the Rock Island Company stock who did not choose to pay the assessment would get nothing for their share in the reorganization.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday.. 3¾@4 per cent. for the best names
Saturday... 3¾@4 per cent. for the best names
The quotation is for six months' paper.

Pile Fabrics in Good Demand.

Pile fabrics are in good demand, particularly by the millinery trade. While the coat and suit trade is in more or less of an uncertain condition at present, the volume of business done by the pile fabric and imitation fur manufacturers is proportionately larger than ever before. Entire costumes are being made of pile goods, and the baby lamb effects are becoming more and more the vogue. This is accounted for by the fact that mohair is used in manufacturing them. The fabric is enduring, and the price has been brought down to one-half that of two years ago.

Scotch Herring Come In.

The Anchor liner Columbia, which arrived here yesterday from Glasgow, brought in a good-sized consignment of fine extra large Matjes herring, said by handlers to be the finest lot of this fish entering this market this season. The ship had scarcely docked before the fish were snapped up by wholesalers, who have been watching the arrival of the consignment. The first shipment of the new pack of Scotch Matjes herring reached here last week by the Campania, and like all early arrivals were green fish. Their quality, it was said, was not up to the level of yesterday's importations. From now on shipments are expected to come along freely.

Printcloth Demand Reduced.

Things were a little quiet in the local gray goods market yesterday, but, notwithstanding, a good volume of merchandise changed hands in the aggregate. Some fair sales of 38½ inch 64-60s were consummated at 5 1-16 cents, as were some nice sales of 64-56s in the same width at 4 15-16 cents; 38½ inch 60-48s sold in a good-sized way for delivery in June, July and August at 4 7-16 cents. Sheetings were in fair demand, and continued very firm at recent prices; 37 inch, 3.95, drills moved in a fair way at 5⅝ cents, and there was a little better demand noted for drills generally. Fancies are quiet for the moment.

Wash Goods Buying Liberal.

The big sale of wash goods held by the Claflin Company last week evidently did not satiate the appetites of buyers for these goods, despite the large quantities of merchandise disposed of at that time. A good business was reported on them in the market yesterday, both in the mails and from the buyers in person. Most of the day's business came from out of town, Monday being the day on which the local buyers are expected to sell rather than buy. There is now little doubt of the status of printed wash goods, as compared with woven and piece-dyed, for the majority of the orders placed yesterday called for sizeable assortments of the first-named fabrics to the neglect of the others.

Open Spring Lines of Ginghams.

Amory, Browne & Co. of this city yesterday opened new lines of Parkhill and Lancaster ginghams for the Spring, 1915, jobbing trade. It was said at the offices of the firm that the merchandise offered did not differ materially from that which has been turned out in the past. No comment was made concerning prices. It was learned from other sources, however, that prices had not been made. It was intimated there that they probably would not be made within the next sixty days, for it was said that the jobbers would not be in a position to make known their real needs much before that time. Active trading is predicted then, however. At the office of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company it was said that Spring lines of utility ginghams would not be opened for some time. In the trade it was intimated that these goods would probably not be shown before early August.

Pre-Inventory Sale a Success.

About 200 buyers, many of whom were from out of town, yesterday attended the opening of the preinventory sale of the New York Merchandise Company, which is being carried on at their store at 540 Broadway. According to executives of the company, buyers seemed pleased with the offerings and bought liberally in all departments. The largest individual sale of the day was valued at $10,000, and embraced a wide variety of merchandise. There was little preference shown in the demands of the buyers for any one class of goods, the trading being well diversified throughout. Among the offerings were stocks of notions, fancy goods, jewelry, ribbons, women's neckwear, laces, embroideries, handkerchiefs, muslin underwear, children's dresses and rompers, art goods, drapery materials and curtains, towels, gloves, infants' wear and other lines. Much of this merchandise was made up of mill clean-ups. The sale will continue for the balance of the week.

Fall Dress Trimmings Varied.

A wide variety of trimmings will be offered this year for the trimming of Fall gowns, suits, and dresses. The range is so large, it is said, that the importers themselves are puzzled as to just what will move the most freely. It is expected, however, that spangles will stand high in the race, with spangled flouncings especially good for evening gowns. A number of new and dainty effects are now being shown. Butterfly and flower effects of all kinds and sizes are expected to go big, as are medallions and other ornaments of jet. Tassels and pendants of jet occupy prominent places in the offerings. Egyptian and Oriental motifs of various sorts are freely offered. Fur and feather trimmings are thought well of, as are beaded cascade effects with and without net backgrounds. Offerings of Roman pearl trimmings are plentiful. All sorts of braid frogs and loops are favored, as are slides made up of silk and of crochet and bead work.

New Commercial Photography.

A local concern is now in the market with a new method of reproducing blue prints and a wide variety of other things by photography. The reproducing of blue prints is said to be of especial value to engineers, for heretofore, it is said, this was impossible without first tracing the drawing in question with the expenditure of much time and money. In the new process, which takes about fifteen seconds to carry out, the reproduced blue print comes out in black line on a white background. The cost is comparatively low. The process is said also to be valuable in reproducing court exhibits, being much quicker and cheaper than ordinary plate work. The process can also be used in business for reproducing rare laces or other valuable merchandise. In the insurance field it can be used for copying policies and other papers. In libraries it makes possible the reproduction of rare books page by page. The secret of the process lies in a peculiar sensitized paper, on which the copy is made direct. All work is done in the laboratory of the concern, and subjects may be enlarged to any size up to 24 by 30 inches.

A Combination Garment.

The problem of keeping up with the ever-changing styles for women is in fair way of being solved by the invention of a combination cape-coat-suit. The new garment, consisting of a cape, a coat and a skirt, may be changed about so that five different effects are obtained. An exhibit of this model will be held today and tomorrow in the Green Room of the Hotel McAlpin from 1 P. M. to 5 P. M. and invitations have been sent out to the coat and suit and costume trade. In the demonstration of the garment there is first shown a cape-coat model with which any skirt may be worn. The cape is attached under the collar of the coat by means of fasteners and is easily removed. The next design shown is a full skirt with tunic effect and a cape-coat. Following this the cape is used as a tunic over the skirt and the coat has a long collar. The model is then changed to a plain tailor-made garment, the cape being discarded. Finally another effect is obtained by the use of the cape alone with the belt, made of a multi-colored fabric, worn around the neck as a collar.

GOOD HARVESTER PROFITS.

Domestic Business Paid 14.5% and Foreign 12.6% for the Year.

The first annual report of the International Harvester Company since it was divided into two parts, one to handle the foreign business under the name of the International Harvester Corporation, shows that the old company earned a net profit of $7,915,526 from gross sales of $66,699,000. In the same fiscal period, ended with December 31, the corporation had a net revenue of $7,155,253 from a gross turnover of $51,650,000. After paying dividends the former had a surplus of $3,815,526 and the latter of $3,055,253.

The profits of the Harvester Company were equivalent to 14.5 per cent. on the outstanding shares, while the Harvester Corporation earned a net income equal to 12.6 per cent. on its stock. When the new company was formed it was capitalized at $40,000,000 and the Harvester Company's stock was reduced from $80,000,000 to $40,000,000.

The balance sheet of the Harvester Company showed total assets of $129,938,595. Of this total $42,783,935 was represented by real estate, plans, and mining and timber land. The surplus accumulated at the close of the year was $19,608,797.

The Harvester Corporation showed in its balance sheet aggregate assets of $122,006,459 and a total surplus of $18,848,524. Investments in plant, real estate, machinery, &c., amounted to $22,597,079.

CUSTOMS TEST CASES.

What Kind of Agricultural Implements Are Free of Duty?

Dissatisfied with the interpretation given by the Treasury Department to the agricultural implement provision of the new tariff, importers are preparing several suits before the Board of United States General Appraisers and the Customs Court for the purpose of obtaining judicial constructions of this section.

The department has instructed customs officials throughout the country to disregard the specific reference to the implements in the free list in all cases where such articles are specially named elsewhere in the dutiable sections of the law. This action has come as a surprise to importers as it has been generally understood that Congress in framing the new act had it in mind to exempt from duty all agricultural implements. That this was the intent of the law-making body is shown in the testimony taken last year before the Ways and Means Committee. An official justified the department's construction of the law by saying that, where articles are enumerated in the dutiable list, they should be so taxed regardless of the general designation in the free list.

As the importers do not accept this explanation, they have instructed their attorneys to prepare suits to test the Treasury's order. The first of these cases to reach the board relates to the classification of so-called hedge shears which were returned for duty by Collector Malone as "pruning knives" under paragraph 128, which provides a duty of 35 per cent ad valorem if valued at not more than $1 per dozen, and if of greater value, 55 per cent ad valorem.

The importers of the shears will contend before the board and the court, that the articles are commonly known as agricultural implements and as such fall within paragraph 391 of the free list specifically naming such goods. Budding knives now being returned for duty will also, it was said yesterday, be claimed free under the implement provision. Attorneys are also preparing protests on many other articles on which exemption will be claimed. Under the old tariff, the courts showed a disposition to give a broad interpretation to the agricultural implement provision and a similar view is hoped for in cases arising under the new law.

BANKERS' TRUST SUES ROAD

The Bankers Trust Company in a cross suit which it began yesterday in the Federal District Court against the Wabash Railroad Company asked that its lien and claim as trustee upon $14,000,000 of the stock and $3,000,000 of the bonds of the Pittsburgh Terminal Railroad and Coal Company be adjudged superior to the lien of the Wabash Railroad Company, Edward B. Pryor, its receiver, and the Equitable Trust Company, its trustee.

The trust company also asked for a decree ordering that the securities pledged to it under the note trust agreement be sold in parcels, except the notes of the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal Railroad Company and the collaterals, which consist of shares of the coal company.

Receivers for Supply Makers.

BOSTON, June 8.—Charles B. Blinn and Renton Whidden were appointed receivers for the Randall-Faicheney Company, manufacturers of surgical and office supplies, by Federal Judge Dodge today. The company has factories at Watertown, N. Y., and Roxbury, Mass. Its liabilities are estimated at $292,000. The petition for the receivership, asserting that the company might become insolvent unless receivers took charge of its affairs, was unopposed.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

In Town.

VENTILATING SYSTEMS COMPANY, 126 West Thirty-fourth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $104,309 and assets of $10,233, consisting of stock, $3,000; machinery at College Point, L. I., $200; office furniture, $100; accounts, $6,924, and cash, $9. The accounts are due from several New Jersey school boards, and $2,556 from the Chicago Duplex Ventilating Company. Nearly all the liabilities are to one creditor, George H. Bowers of Westfield, N. J., whose claim is $102,468 for money lent and merchandise sold.

THE HOROWITZ DRESS COMPANY, INC., of 40 West Twenty-seventh Street, has made an assignment to Maurice L. Shaine. The company was incorporated on Feb. 28, 1913, with capital stock of $10,000. It was named after David Horowitz, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Nov. 4, 1912, which was dismissed on a settlement of 25 cents on the dollar. A petition in bankruptcy was also filed against the company yesterday by the H. B. Claflin Company, $100; Edward Golden, $400, and William Reiss & Co., $12.

MORRIS MENDELSKORN, clothing dealer, at 125 Stanton Street, has assigned to Samuel J. Rawak. A petition in bankruptcy was also filed against him by Morris Rosen, $241; M. B. Schaenen & Sons, $268, and Harry Schwartz, $155.

FREDERICK ROTH.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Frederick Roth, hardware dealer of 2,773 Eighth Avenue, by Robert J. Masbach, $125; C. E. & E. S. Goldberg, $250, and Abraham Porter, $150. Judge Hand appointed John L. Lyttle receiver; bond $500. It was stated that on Sunday the stock, valued at $3,000 to $5,000, was removed to warehouses. Judge Hand granted an order restraining all persons having any of the stock in possession or under control from disposing of it.

ABRAHAM HILLMAN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Abraham Hillman, poultry dealer of 508 East Seventy-first Street, by Samuel Davis, a creditor for $656. It was alleged that he is insolvent and made preferential transfer of property.

GRANT SWEET, general store at Bull's Head, Dutchess County, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $4,626 and assets $4,425, consisting of stock, $500; accounts, $1,200; wagons, autos, &c., $185; harness, $40, and real estate, $2,500, mortgaged for $2,000.

ADLER, STOERGER & CO., wholesale dealers in novelties at 7 East Seventeenth Street, have filed schedules which show liabilities of $22,365 and assets of $11,127, consisting of stock, $4,000; accounts, $7,000; fixtures, $100, and cash, $27.

DAVID KAMSLER, wholesale dealer in flowers and feathers at 648 Broadway, has filed schedules in bankruptcy which show liabilities of $28,375 and assets of $10,162, consisting of stock, $7,000; fixtures, $550; accounts, $2,100; notes, $207; claims, $215, and cash in the Northern Bank, $70. He has also $8,000 face value of gold bonds, actual value unknown.

EMPIRE STATE WOODWORKING COMPANY.—Judge Hand has confirmed a composition of the Empire State Woodworking Company of Starling Avenue and Sand Street with creditors at 100 cents on the dollar, payable in notes monthly beginning Aug. 1 and extending to May 1, 1915. Liabilities were $28,652.

FISHER FURNITURE COMPANY.—Judge Hand has confirmed a composition of Fred A. Fisher at 26 East 125th Street with creditors at 40 cents on the dollar, payable 10 cents cash and 30 cents on notes. Liabilities were $40,457.

Discharges from Bankruptcy.

Judge Hand in the United States District Court yesterday granted discharges to these bankrupts:

PETO REALTY COMPANY, Riverside Drive and 178th Street; liabilities, $413,197.

ABRAHAM TRACKMAN, jeweler, 14 Maiden Lane; liabilities, $26,900.

BOSTON, Mass. — The Randall-Faichney Company, manufacturer of surgical and dental specialties; Charles P. Blinn and Renton Widden appointed receivers; liabilities about $1,282,000. Mismanagement and lack of suffient immediate cash and credits are given as the causes of the difficulties of the corporation. The receivers furnished a bond of $50,000. The company, which assented to the appointment of receivers, says it is solvent. The Cutler & Wood Supply Company of New Jersey, a creditor, requested the appointment of the receivers.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The Government crop report was issued just at the close and proved to be up to bearish expectations, indicating a Winter wheat yield of 638,000,000 bushels and Spring wheat 262,000,000 bushels, a total of 900,000,000 bushels for both crops. Prices were steady throughout the session. The only response on the late Curb to the bearish Government report was a decline of ⅛c in the July contract at New York.

Cash wheat locally was irregular, with quotations as follows: No. 2 hard Winter, $1.02⅝, cost, insurance, and freight, New York; new No. 2 red, 94½c, July shipment, cost, insurance, and freight; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.04¾, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.05¾, free on board, afloat.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces for June 29 an open competitive examination for market milk specialist, for men only, to fill vacancies as they may occur in the Dairy Division, Bureau of Animal Industry, Department of Agriculture, at salaries ranging from $1,800 to $2,500 a year, and vacancies as they may occur in positions requiring similar qualifications. The duties will include co-operative work with State and municipal authorities in the improvement of milk supplies, and it will be necessary for the appointees to perform considerable traveling throughout the United States for the purpose of conducting investigations concerning the production, handling, and distribution of milk for city consumption. In addition they will be called upon to attend darymen's conventions and other meetings for the purpose of scoring milk and cream, and making addresses pertaining to the sanitary production and handling of the same; to assist local inspectors in inaugurating and carrying out efficient systems of dairy inspection; to inspect dairy farms and city milk plants, and give advice as to improvements from a sanitary standpoint. Competitors will not be assembled for examination, but will be rated on general education and scientific training, practical experience and fitness for carrying on work along lines related to subjects outlined in the statement of duties above, and a thesis of from 1,500 to 2,500 words. An educational training equivalent to that required for a bachelor's degree from an institution of recognized standing, and in addition at least two years' responsible experience since leaving college in some phase of market milk work, are prerequisites. Applicants must have reached their twenty-first but not their forty-fifth birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—High temperatures continue over the district east of the Mississippi River, except in Western New York. In New England and along the Middle Atlantic Coast temperatures are much lower than in the interior, on account of the northeast wind from a high pressure area over Northeastern New England.

In the Far West temperatures are still low, while in the plains States they are moderately high, but were followed by a considerable fall in South Dakota and Western Nebraska, owing to thunder showers.

There were also thunder showers in Minnesota, with a heavy rainfall at Morehead.

Rains continued over the middle and northern districts west of the Rocky Mountains and showers in the Atlantic States, except the Carolinas. There will be thunder showers Tuesday in the Southwest, extending Tuesday night and Wednesday into the lower Missouri and upper Mississippi Valleys.

In the Ohio Valley, the East, South, and Southwest the weather will be generally fair Tuesday and Wednesday, and it will also be fair Wednesday in the Northwest and extreme West.

High temperatures will continue over the interior of the Eastern and Southern districts, while over the lower Missouri and upper Mississippi Valleys they will fall.

Winds along the North Atlantic Coast Tuesday and Wednesday will be moderate east; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate northeast to east, shifting to southeast by Wednesday; South Atlantic Coast, moderate and mostly south, except east off the Florida Coast.

FORECASTS TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, New England, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Generally fair Tuesday and Wednesday.

3 A. M.	58	69	4 P. M.	65	77
6 A. M.	53	70	6 P. M.	68	70
9 A. M.	54	71	9 P. M.	56	67
12 M.	59	82	11 P. M.	50	65

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 74; for the corresponding date last year it was 58; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 67.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 70, at 8P. M. it was 69. Maximum temperature 83 degrees at 1:30 P. M., minimum 65 degrees at 10 P. M. Humidity 85 per cent. at 8 A. M., 75 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.00 inches, at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.07 inches.

After remaining undecided for six years, the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday handed down a decision affecting the classification of merchandise imported by Thomas Meadows & Co., known commercially as lactic ferment. It was returned for duty under the Tariff act of 1897 as a medicinal preparation at 25 per cent. ad valorem, while the importers claimed it properly dutiable at 5 cents a pound as sugar of milk by virtue of Section 7, the similitude clause of the Dingley act. The board sustains the importers, the Collector being directed to make a reliquidation in order that refunds may be made to the firm.

John Wanamaker and Lewis & Conger objected to the Collector's assessment of plate powder as an earthly or mineral substance under the old tariff, and asked for classification either as a chemical compound or by similitude under Paragraph 54, as dry whiting carrying a rate of one-fourth of 1 cent per pound. The Collector's office conceded the claim for duty as a chemical compound, while in a recent court decision the product was held to be dutiable as whiting, one of the claims made by the protestants in the present case. Judge Hay overrules the protests on the ground that the classification of the merchandise is a little uncertain and the record in the cases incomplete.

A dispute between the Government and M. Seller & Co., Port Townsend, Wash., regarding the weights for dutiable purposes on paper napkins, was decided against the firm. The latter maintained that no allowance had been made for moisture in the goods as the result of the ocean voyage. This compelled the importers to pay much heavier duties than had the weights been taken on the basis of the invoice weights. The importers' testimony was held faulty.

Strawbridge & Clothier and G. W. Sheldon & Co., this city, succeeded in claims that gloves are not subject to the cumulative duties for embroidery imposed by the Collectors.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

St. Bartholomew's Church Votes to Take Up Option on $1,500,000 Park Avenue Site—Investor Buys Bronx Corner—Business and Dwelling Leases —Bay Ridge Auction Results.

Practically nothing of importance was recorded in the realty market yesterday. The officers of St. Bartholomew's Church met and voted to take up the option on the new church site covering the block front on the east side of Park Avenue, between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets. The contract of sale from the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company will be signed tomorrow, when the option taken a few days ago expires. The purchase price is about $1,500,000. The church will not take possession for eighteen months, by which time the new plant on the East River front of the brewing company will be completed.

Bronx Corner Sold.

The southwest corner of Montgomery and Popham Avenues, a vacant plot, fronting 90 feet on Montgomery Avenue by 118 feet on Popham Avenue, has been sold by David L. Woodall for Fernando Wood to an investor, and the same broker has also sold for Mr. Wood a plot 50 by 100 feet on the west side of Popham Avenue, 151 feet north of 176th Street.

Recent Buyers.

Herbert Ehrman was the buyer of the property at 63 Lewis Street, sold on June 5, at foreclosure by Joseph P. Day, for $26,000. The property at 209 and 211 West 101st Street, sold on June 6, for $93,025, was bought by Henry A. Peterson.

Business Leases.

The five-story loft structure at 454 West Broadway, near Prince Street, has been leased by T. A. Dondero for Mitchell & Mitchell to G. Cella & Bro., importers, for a term of five years. The plot is 25 by 75 feet.

Louis Schrag has leased for Charles A. Christmand the five-story building on the northeast corner of Forty-third Street and Eighth Avenue, to Thomas Kieran, for a term of ten years.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased a portion of the second floor in the Market and Fulton National Bank building to the Barnet Leather Company; offices in the Hanover Square Building, 130 Pearl Street, to Thompson, Towle & Co., and three floors at 242 South Street for Alfred W. Kiddle, trustee, to Jesse Price.

The Duross Company has leased for the estate of Patrick Smith the four-story building at the southeast corner of Park Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street to Xavier Griez & Co., upholsterers, and the three-story and basement dwelling at 52 Morton Street for William J. Broderick to Edward Kearney.

Pepe & Brother have leased for Mrs. Rosa Gombrecht the three-story building at 403 Bleecker Street to John Brennan. After alterations it will be used as a café.

Harlem Lease for Garage.

A plot, 100 by 100, now vacant, on the north side of Ninety-ninth Street, 250 feet west of Columbus Avenue, has been leased by Shaw & Co. for the Morrison estate for a term of years. The lessee is preparing to erect on the site a fireproof garage.

City and Country House Leases.

Slawson & Hobbs have rented for the Directors Realty Company to R. K. Brown the four-story twenty-foot dwelling at 273 West Seventy-third Street.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have leased for Malcolm D. Whitman 115 East Sixtieth Street, a five-story American basement house, to John E. Rousmaniere.

C. F. W. Johanning has leased for Harry Schiff the private dwelling at 320 West 113th Street to Adolfo De la Guardia.

John F. Scott, in conjunction with Pease & Elliman, has rented for Alexander A. Forman, Jr., his house at Woodmere, L. I., to Charles B. Barkley.

Herbert A. Sherman has rented for Mrs. J. Howard Wainwright her place, The Gables, at Milton Point, Rye, to Mrs. Helen Sloan for the Summer.

Garden City Lease.

$150,275 for Bay Ridge Lots.

Bryan L. Kennelly sold 138 lots on Saturday in the McDougall tract offering in the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn for a total of $150,275, averaging about $1,090. The highest price for a single lot was $4,750 for the northeast corner of Forty-fourth Street and New Utrecht Avenue, opposite the site of the subway express station of the dual system, secured by Silas B. Rogers. John J. Lahey, a builder, bought eight lots at $900 each near Eighth Avenue. H. A. Murphy bought ten lots.

Among the other buyers were H. A. Tower, H. A. Murphy, S. V. Stuart, Ellen M. Daly, Joseph Geraghty, J. C. Halligan, E. A. Andrews, William Cole, A. De Martini, Lester Huber, Mrs. Catherine Autz, and Frederick Aren.

$50,675 for Monmouth Beach Houses.

The Monmouth Beach auction sale held by Joseph P. Day last Saturday brought a total of $50,675. The property consisted of thirteen furnished cottages, one furnished bungalow, one laundry, an unfinished cottage, and five residential plots in the park grounds at Monmouth Beach. Among the buyers were Charles F. Brown, Foster F. Potter, T. J. Goodwin, Paul Lacoster, H. T. Gurney, Monmouth Beach Fire Company, Margaret I. Berg, J. W. Doolittle, J. F. Handel, Marie Potter, Charles F. Harms, and E. Franci Hildebrand.

Newark Terminal Contract.

The Public Service Corporation of Newark has awarded the contract to construct the foundation of an eight-story terminal building and subway connections to the Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins Corporation of this city. The work, which will cost over $600,000, is part of a plan which will involve an outlay of several millions, to relieve transportation congestion.

An eight-story office structure will be erected, occupying a 180-foot frontage on Park Place, with wings on Canal, East Park, and Pine Streets. The grade floor will be used as a concourse and show rooms. The first floor will be used for trolley loops, and the basement will be for subway tracks. The plans of the terminal and subway are by George B. Post & Sons.

Loans Placed.

The New York Title Insurance Company has made a loan of $120,000 on 40 West Fifty-seventh Street. The house belongs to Mrs. Teresa R. Carroll.

The Andon Corporation has obtained a building loan of $119,500 from Hosmer J. Barrett on the new building to be erected at 33 West Fifty-first Street.

Realty Notes.

The A. N. Gitterman Corporation has moved its office to the Vanderbilt Avenue Building, 51 East Forty-second Street. Maurice Wertheim has been elected Secretary of the corporation.

The United Real Estate Owners' Association will meet this evening at the Tuxedo Building, Madison Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street.

Dudley P. Power was the broker in the recent sale of the Verdin estate of 125 acres at New City, Rockland County, N. Y., to Squadron A.

Shampan & Shampan have filed plans for two five-story apartment houses, covering a plot 100 by 100, on the north side of Thirteenth Street, 197.10 feet west of Fifth Avenue, for the Beaux Arts Investing Company, to cost $80,000.

The STORY of JUNE 23rd, 1914

CHAPTER I

A FACT—but peculiar—when New York was occupied the people at first settled along the East Side.

The Newly Arrived by steerage or otherwise do exactly the same thing today.

However, after the first settlers commence to know a thing or two they move on the West Side and up along Broadway.

So it's a place to read more about and what is going to take place there on June 23rd.

SHORE ACRES ENTRANCE

by way of the Boston Post Road is a marvel of beauty. The parkway is 100 feet wide—a mile long—and runs direct to the Shore Acres Clubhouse facing the Sound. On each side of this parkway, and down the middle, are planted rare trees and magnificent shrubs imported by the late Robert Bonner twenty-five years ago. Building plots that face this superb parkway are yours for the choosing—lots 75 to 125 feet frontage and 135 to 200 feet in depth. Every lot has either waterfront or water view.

A booklet for the asking, but we'd much rather play host, and let you see this last available property in Westchester County that faces on Long Island Sound.

PRIESTS INDORSE THE FAIR BOYCOTT

The announcement that the Catholic Laymen's League for Retreats and Social Studies had passed a resolution to boycott the Panama-Pacific Exposition next year because Italy had appointed Ernesto Nathan, former Mayor of Rome, and an anti-Catholic as its official representative, caused much comment among prominent Catholic clergymen and laymen in New York and other cities yesterday. Supreme Court Justice Leonard A. Giegerich, former President of the Catholic Club, said last night that he did not know a movement for Catholics to boycott the fair was on foot until he saw the report of the laymen's meeting in yesterday's papers.

"I have not yet studied the question," Justice Giegerich said, "but I am sure that the laymen of this diocese will indorse and carry out whatever action the clergy of the diocese urge as best in the matter. The Cardinal is away and has expressed no opinion on it as yet. In view of this fact I think it exceedingly rash for a layman of the Church to express his opinion on the boycott."

Mgr. Matthew A. Taylor of this diocese was reticent about the subject at the present time, as were several other prominent priests. He said he had no comment to make for publication at present.

The Right Rev. Mgr. James S. Duffy, rector of St. Agnes's Catholic Church, Brooklyn, was among those who heartily indorsed the boycott.

"The resolution passed yesterday at the reunion of the Catholic Laymen's League should be indorsed by all thinking Catholics," he said. "I am in favor of resenting the insult to our Church, as is the appointment of such a man as Nathan."

The Rev. John L. Belford, who was to have addressed the laymen's meeting Sunday, but was unable to attend, said yesterday:

"The Italian Government undoubtedly knew Nathan's attitude toward the Catholic Church, and knew how he had deliberately insulted the Pope. I knew that Catholics here would resent any appointment of that kind.

"We propose to advertise liberally our determination to boycott the fair, so as to make it plain to those in charge that it will be well worth their while to see that Nathan is withdrawn in favor of a less objectionable representative."

"This man Nathan should be objected to by the authorities of the fair with a polite intimation as to the gravity of the offense to American Catholics which his appointment has proved to be," said Father Peter Donohue, rector of the Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel, Brooklyn. "He should not be allowed to represent the Italian Government here in any capacity at a celebration so thoroughly and broadly American in character."

It was said yesterday that the Knights of Columbus and the American Federation of Catholic Societies will assist in circulating the laymen's resolution during the Summer and that sentiment among the members of both organizations is in favor of a boycott.

PROTESTS IN PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, June 8.—Leading Catholics here indorse the action taken by the Laymen's League for Retreats and Social Studies in New York, calling on all Catholics to take no part in the Panama-Pacific Exposition because of the appointment of former Mayor Ernesto Nathan as the official representative of the Italian Government.

B'Rith Abraham Votes Per Capita Assessment for Ten Years.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 8.—The Independent Order of B'Rith Abraham will close its three-day session here tomorrow with the election of officers. A resolution passed this afternoon instructed the coming officers not to let up in the fight on the Federal immigration bills.

It was voted to levy a per capita assessment of 50 cents on the 192,000 members for ten years in order to establish a reserve fund for the beneficial and insurance branch of the order. Other per capita assessments to be made include 10 cents for charity. It was voted to give $3,000 to Grand Master Leon Sanders of New York for the good work he has done in the four years he has been at the head of the order.

The officers who will probably be elected at tomorrow's session are: Grand Master, Leon Sanders; Treasurer, Abe Blumenkranz, and Secretary, Max Hollander, all of New York.

TRAILED BY WOMAN SLEUTH.

Miss Wright Testifies That Cottrell Gave Gay Parties.

An application for $50 a week alimony and counsel fees was made before Justice Aspinall in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday by Mrs. Phoebe C. Cottrell, who has brought an action for divorce against Royal L. Cottrell, a teacher at Public School 11 in Brooklyn and principal of a night school. Miss Ethel M. Wright, a detective, who watched Mr. Cottrell for some time at a boarding house in Ryerson Street, where he lived, testified that there were many gay parties at the house and that Mr. Cottrell also spent several evenings in restaurants in Broadway with Mrs. Beulah Miller. She said that Mr. Cottrell helped Mrs. Miller in her household duties. Three young women, art students at Pratt Institute, who lived at the house, testified for Mr. Cottrell.

Mrs. Cottrell inherited a fortune from her first husband, who was a physician, but, according to the provisions of his will, forfeited the estate when she remarried.

TAKES H. S. REALTY STOCK.

Judge Hough signed an order in the Federal District Court yesterday stipulating that Leo A. Price and Rothenberg & Co. should pay $17,500 for the capital stock of the H. S. Realty Company, which was formerly held by Henry Siegel of the Siegel-Vogel Corporation.

Mr. Price, who was the manager of the Fourteenth Street Store, and Rothenberg & Co. purchased this property at a receiver's sale, and in order to grant a full release from the terms of the old lease, held by Henry Siegel, the court stipulated that this amount should be paid to the receivers for the realty company's stock.

WINS LE BRUN SCHOLARSHIP

The Committee on the Le Brun Traveling Scholarship of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects announces that the scholarship for 1914 has been awarded to John R. Lautenbach of 16 East Forty-seventh Street, New York. Honorable mentions were given in the order named to Charles G. Beersman, Steward Wagner, and Jerauld Dahler, all of New York City.

This scholarship was founded by Pierre L. Le Brun, the architect of the Metropolitan Life Building, and is awarded every other year. The first award was made in 1912.

J. D. CARROLL GOT LETTERS.

TRENTON, N. J., June 8.—Vice Chancellor John H. Backes today dismissed the petition of Mrs. Marie Berg of Princeton to force Joseph D. Carroll of New York City to cancel a mortgage of $1,300 on the Cleveland Farm and Dairy Company, which conducts the farm of the late President Grover Cleveland. Mrs. Berg and her husband, Carl, run the place.

Berg was the only witness, no defense being offered. He showed that the farm company had borrowed the money from Carroll, who is a member of the firm of Fiss, Doerr & Carroll, horse dealers. Some time later there was an investigation into the dealings of the Democratic administration in New York City with the Carroll firm. Berg says that he came into possession of letters which were incriminating and which would have put the horse dealers in an unfavorable position. He said he went to Tammany Hall and had a talk with Carroll, the latter saying:

"I will keep these letters and you go home and tell your wife that I will cancel this mortgage."

This was the only evidence of an agreement, and Berg's testimony was not corroborated. It was not proved that any such letters existed.

In the Evening

AFTER a hard, hot day at the office and a more or less tedious ride home, there's nothing half so refreshing as a change of clothing, and there's no Summer evening dress quite as comfortable, quite as appropriate as Blue Serge.

Our Hart, Schaffner & Marx Blue Serge Suits are fast blue whether their price be $18, $20, $25, or $30, and we feel certain that they offer more for your money than any other Blue Serge Suit in New York.

If you want to look particularly well some evening, wear a Blue Serge coat and White Serge or Flannel trousers. We have some real $5 White Serge Trousers here, specially priced at $4.
